Forrestal Backs Draft Bill; Senate Acts Today

Army Announces Fast Promotion Plan For GIs; Youths 19 To 25 Face Service

The controversial draft-training bill last night was made the Senate's unfinished business for today.

At the same time, Secretary of Defense Forrestal gave Administration backing to the much-changed measure, calling it "an excellent bill which should have the support of all members of Congress."

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee is expected to open debate on the measure, and to him Forrestal directed a letter approving the compromise Senate plan for training of 18-year-old youths on a voluntary basis, though the Administration originally had asked for a long-range universal military training program separate from the regular Army, Navy and Air Force.

2 Years' Service Planned

The draft provisions of the Senate bill would require two years of service for men 19 through 25.

Meanwhile, a ranking General Staff General revealed yesterday that faster promotion is planned for Army enlisted men—including any one inducted under the draft, if Congress allows the funds.

Testimony given the House Appropriations Committee by Lieut. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Army personnel chief, was made public yesterday, disclosing that next year's budget provides for partially automatic "hikes" in rank for lower-ranking soldiers.

General Paul and another General Staff official, Maj. Gen. H. R. Bull, gave new details of the Army's plans for inducting and training men under the pending selective service bill.

Expect Draft of 225,000

The former estimated that 225,000 men will have to be drafted into the Army during the fiscal year beginning July 1 and that another 250,000 will enlist or re-enlist.

During the fiscal year July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1950, however, the Army figures that no one will have to be drafted, Paul said. With such a large number of men taken in next year for two and three year "hitches," only 150,000 men will be needed to replace those leaving the service. Volunteers should fill the ranks, the Army chief added.

However, during the following year, if the draft continues, another 140,000 men will have to be drafted, Paul said. He added that the Army's manpower studies indicate that nearly every eligible man in the 19-through-25-year-age group will see some kind of service—regular or reserve—before he reaches the top age limit.

General Paul said that drafted men should fare just as well as volunteers in winning Army promotions.

Plans call for promoting all privates to private, first class, after four months' service, he said. This will mean an increase in pay from $75 to $80 a month. Advancement to corporal will be possible after another six months if a vacancy exists.

House Approves Bethesda Chapel, Annapolis Airport

The House yesterday approved a 12-million-dollar airport at Annapolis, a $205,000 chapel at Bethesda Naval Medical Center and improvements totaling $1,420,000 at the David Taylor Model Basin at Carderock, Md.

The training field, to be located at Sandy Point, on Chesapeake Bay, 9 miles from Annapolis, was considered the most controversial item in the bill.

Goldsborough Defers Action On Lewis, Urges Agreement

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough held up action against John L. Lewis last night—and tried to head off a summer coal strike by an agreement.

The justice said Lewis and the mine owners ought to settle their differences without coming to the courts for help, and that he thought they could do so by Friday morning, when he will rule on issuing an injunction against Lewis. Then he called counsel for Lewis and the Southern mine owners into his chambers.

After half an hour, the lawyers came out. They would not tell what the justice had said, or when or whether they would meet with him again, but hurried away from the District Court to report to their principals.

Welly K. Hopkins, the United Mine Workers counsel, took Goldsborough's views to UMW President Lewis, and he was able to add this:

That if Lewis will not work out a plan for bargaining on a new coal wage contract with Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association, Justice Goldsborough can—and very possibly will—order Lewis to do so.

And John C. Gall, counsel for the Southern Association, had this word for Moody and the mine owners:

That if the association won't come to reasonable terms, then the justice can—and may—refuse to lift a finger, leaving the mine owners to make the best terms they can with the UMW president, or with the National Labor Relations Board, which is going to have a hearing next week.

Thus the power of the court hung over both sides.

The wage-hour contract for the country's 400,000 coal miners runs out at the end of this month. Unless a new contract is ready by then it is taken for granted that the miners will raise their old cry of "no contract-no work" and walk out.

The meetings to write the new contract broke up without getting started two weeks ago. The 400 Southern mine owners chose the Southern association to bargain for them. Lewis said he would bargain with the Southern owners, or with the 14 regional groups to which they belong. And if they wanted Moody to speak for them, that was all right.

But he said he would not deal with Moody as spokesman for the association, or with the association at all. Because, said Lewis, the association didn't want an agree-

House Votes 6½-Billion Defense Bill

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A $6,500,000,000 military-spending bill—aimed largely at rebuilding the American Army—was sped through the House at top speed yesterday.

Approval came after less than three hours' debate, as leaders readied another $3,600,000,000 defense measure for action today.

Heeding sober warnings by the Nation's security chiefs, the House voted funds for the expanded 790,000-man Army and men for a 66-group Air Force. Senate approval of the measure and the Navy funds bill set for passage today will raise next year's defense appropriations to a total of $13,470,672,250.

Funds for laying down the controversial 65,000-ton aircraft carrier are carried in the Navy bill. The measure also provides for 552,000 officers and men in the Navy and Marine Corps.

The two appropriations bills brought to the floor yesterday cut $888,908,450 below President Truman's budget estimates. This reduction just about offsets the 822 millions added to a prior aircraft spending bill by Congress, and leaves the Administration's defense budget largely unchanged.

Most of yesterday's cut, however, was taken from funds for the pay, subsistence and clothing of the Army and Air Force—evidently on the theory that the services will not expand as fast as anticipated.

But the services were authorized to go ahead with recruiting and inductions as planned, and can come back for additional funds next winter if the draft bill passes and calls are met promptly.

The vote on passage of the 6.5 billion-dollar Army-Air Force appropriation bill was a thumping 348 to 2. Only Representatives Marcantonio and Isacson, New York American Labor Party members, were recorded in opposition.

Defense chiefs painted a grim but by no means hopeless picture of the international situation during the hearings on the bills. Transcripts—carefully edited—were made public when the measures were introduced.

War, said Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, is a "plausible possibility" as long as American-Russian armed forces face each other on far-flung frontiers in a "strained atmosphere of distrust and tension."

The USSR, he said, has four mil-

Group Would Let Services Hire 40,000

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday approved funds to hire upwards of 40,000 additional civilian employes in the Army, Navy, and Air Force. However, it flatly rejected requests for money to add about 90,000 others. This is the breakdown:

The Army would have money to hire about 25,000 more civilians in its arsenals, depots, and so forth. A slight cut may have to be made in the 13,000-man departmental staff here;

The Air Force would have enough money to add about 11,500 civilians to its present force of 118,000. The 1800-man headquarters staff would have to be cut about 200.

The Navy could hire a few more per-diem employes in its Navy yards, supply depots, and so forth, but "perhaps no more than 10,000." It had asked for funds for several times that number. The 12,000 Navy civilian staff at headquarters here may have to be cut by as many as 1000.

On the Senate side yesterday, the Keefe "red rider" was stricken from the Labor-Federal Security appropriation bill. Members of the Senate committee hinted the rider would also be taken out of all other money bills. However, the House committee had the rider in the bills for the military services.

The rider would have denied funds to pay the salaries of Federal employes who are members of unions whose officers fail to sign anti-Communist affidavits.

In reporting out the Labor-Federal Security bill, the Senate committee refused to go along with a proposed reorganization of those agencies as had been voted by the House.

It insisted that the United States Employment Service be kept in the Labor Department until the Hoover Committee makes its report on the reorganization of the Federal Government. The House had voted to transfer it to the Federal Security Agency where it would be merged with Unemployment Compensation Bureau.

The committee also increased USES budget for salaries by 5 million dollars which, if approved, would prevent a lay-off voted by the House. Further, it recommended increases for the Social

'Delegates' Mill at Capitol

3 Demonstrators Arrested As 5000 Protest Mundt Bill

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Three demonstrators were arrested yesterday as 5000 "delegates" swarmed around official Washington to protest against the Mundt-Nixon anti-Communist bill and to demand congressional passage of civil rights legislation.

Delegations milled in and around the Senate wing of the Capitol and the Senate Office Building; picketed the White House and the headquarters of the Republican and Democratic National Committees, and gathered en masse for a wind-up outdoor rally at the Sylvan Theater.

Leaders of the demonstrations exhorted their delegations to preserve order and discipline and not to let themselves be "provoked" into disorder. By evening, however, impatience and frayed nerves had resulted in three arrests.

The first incident involving police action occurred in the Senate Office Building late in the afternoon outside the office of Senator Alexander H. Smith (R., N. J.). Senate police, who had been permitting the delegates to call at the Senators' offices in groups of five, discovered a delegation of 30 had somehow reached Smith's office.

Police ordered the delegation to move down to the Rotunda, which was jammed most of the afternoon

New Flood Threat Faces Northwest

Upper Columbia Rising Sharply From Renewed Mountain Run-off

Portland, Oreg., June 2 (U.P.).—The upper Columbia River and its principal tributary, the Snake, rose sharply and steadily tonight posing a new serious flood threat to the Pacific Northwest where the toll of dead and damage in a two-week spring-thaw disaster continued to mount.

As the Columbia's mighty flood-crest rolled downstream from Portland to the Pacific Ocean, the renewed runoff of mountain snows sent the river surging upward again below the Canadian border.

Elmer Fishere, United States Weather Bureau forecaster, said the Columbia was rising from Coulee Dam to the mouth of the Snake, and that the lower Snake, after a brief recession, was going up again and will continue to rise for at least two or three days.

Fraser Continues Rampage

In British Columbia, the Fraser River continued its destructive rampage, rising in its rich valley where 50,000 acres have been swamped and 9000 persons left homeless. Damage in the Fraser Valley alone was estimated at 30 million dollars.

At Spokane, Wash., the upper Columbia went up another foot today and still was rising, with a 38.8-foot stage at Boundary on the Canadian line. The tributary Pend Oreille also was rising.

The Spokane weather bureau forecaster said the lower Columbia would drop to 29.0 Thursday, 28.6 Friday and 28.4 Saturday, then begin a new upward surge Sunday.

Peak of 29.9 Feet

The Columbia reached a peak of 29.9 feet at the climax of its destructive floodtide which demolished the city of Vanport, Oreg., inundated almost 25 per cent of metropolitan and suburban Portland, and forced tens of thousands of householders to flee from a 120-mile stretch from the Sandy River to Astoria.

Water poured into several evacuated communities between Portland and the sea. Eighty Astoria men were credited with saving the midland dike 3 miles northwest of Clatskanie and preventing a major breakthrough into a heavily populated farm section.

The Willamette at Portland was down to 29.48 feet from a crest of 30 after lapping to within a few inches of the top of downtown Portland's seawall.

At Omak, Wash., the Okanogan River receded several inches after flooding large areas in the Okanogan Valley and causing extensive damage.

Vanport refugees were registered at the Portland civic auditorium and shelters throughout the Portland area. Approximately 15 feet of water still covered what used to be a city of 19,000, and body-recovery work probably will have to be postponed until the floodtide recedes.

Senate Gets $99,567,983 City Budget

Approval Sought This Week; D. C. Sales-Income Tax Plan Is Advanced

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Capitol committees yesterday approved a $99,567,983 city budget bill, and a combined sales tax and high-bracket income tax plan for the District.

The two measures will become related only in the event that Congress, by approving Federal pay boosts, opens the way for city employe pay increases that would hike the budget and make the new tax plan necessary.

The city spending bill was approved and sent to the Senate by its Appropriations Committee. Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) in charge of the bill, said he would seek Senate approval this week.

The tax plan was approved by a joint subcommittee in charge of District revenue legislation, headed by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) and Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.). Approval of the House and Senate District Committees will be sought in meetings today. House action is planned on a special District day Monday.

The plan calls for a general 2 per cent retail sales tax, to take effect in the coming fiscal year if needed to finance pay boosts, and to be postponed until July 1, 1949, if there are no pay boosts this year. The income tax features would exempt the first $8000 of income, while applying the tax both to legal residents of the District and those who keep a residence here seven months or more in the year.

The city budget bill, to cover the year beginning July 1, was trimmed $1,597,000 below the House-approved figure. Coupled with this cut is a call for city heads to tap every available source of reserve money to eliminate need for new taxes other than those which a pay increase would require.

The Senate committee saw in the House-approved budget a deficit of 5.7 million dollars for next year. They made that up this way:

1. They cut about 1.6 million from the budget.

2. They told the city to use all of the 4.2 million now left in the fund saved during the war for postwar building. House plans called for using 2.4 million; Senate

Bates Plans Conference On Teacher Pay Raises

House District Fiscal Affairs Chairman George J. Bates (R., Mass.) said yesterday he plans an early conference with Washington school officials on the question of what pay increases should be given teachers if Congress gives other District employes benefits of a Federal pay boost. No date is set for the meeting.

Housing, Bread, Work Listed

Pope Urges Social Reforms As Keystone of Lasting Peace

Vatican City, June 2 (U.P.).—Pope Pius called today for social reforms as a cornerstone on which to build a lasting peace.

These reforms, particularly the urgent need to provide poorer classes with housing, bread and work, lie at the heart of and control the "fundamental problems growing out of the ruin and revolution of the war and its aftermath," he said.

But he added that it would be "dangerous" to base "fantastic hopes and expectations of a fully satisfactory and speedy solution" on this alone.

The Pontiff spoke for 25 minutes to the Sacred College of Cardinals on his name day, St. Eugene's.

In the address, the Pope:

1. Hailed the possibility of a truce in Palestine as a "dawn of new hope."

2. Called for unceasing efforts to end this "strange illness . . . the wavering between peace and war."

3. Appealed to Catholics for a "reawakening" and renewed "vigilance," and warned them against movements which tend to remove the influence of the church from all public life.

4. Praised the "vigor, high mindedness and strong feeling for order and justice" which led Italians to spurn communism.

5. Proclaimed 1950 the tenth holy year in the history of the church and expressed the hope that it would be the "harbinger of a new era of peace, prosperity and progress."

6. Told Roman Catholics they must be concerned with the events of public life since they were involved on a civic and international plane in "every question where moral interests are at stake, where the issue is to form the ranks for God or against him."

The Pope warned that the equitable distribution of economic products was "strictly bound" to increased production. Without production there could be no distribution, he said.

But he said this productivity must not be attained through unbridled competition, the unprincipled expenditure of wealth, or by the oppressive and despotic exploitation of labor to meet the needs of the state.

The Pope said the quest for world peace still was the foremost political problem of the day, and he deplored the fighting in Greece, China and Palestine.

Under Rigid Conditions

Senators Vote to Admit 200,000 Refugees in 2 Years

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate last night opened its adjournment drive by passing a bill to admit 200,000 displaced persons to the United States over a two-year period but under conditions so rigid that critics questioned its effect.

The vote was 63 to 13. The first "must" measure on the Republican leadership's priority list now goes to the House, where the more liberal Fellows displaced persons bill is now on the calendar.

Senate passage came at 10:30 p. m. after nearly 12 hours of continuous session. Virtually every liberalizing change in the bill was defeated, but the Senate at the end balked at an effort to cut back the number of refugee admissions.

A substitute measure by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.), reducing the number of admissions to 170,000 in two years, and charging these to future immigration quotas, was defeated 50 to 27 after Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) spoke against it.

Taft said "at least" 200,000 refugees should be admitted "to make any contribution to a solution of the problem."

After the Senate earlier voted down a series of liberalizing changes, Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) withdrew a Democratic substitute jointly sponsored by Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.).

McGrath said he and Hatch had concluded there was little chance of getting through the Senate "an effective or workable bill." He said he feared the Senate was passing "a bill for exclusion of displaced persons, instead of for their admission" and voiced hope the House and the Conference Committee would approve a less restricted measure."

Just before the final vote, Senator Claude A. Pepper (D., Fla.) charged that "if not by design at least by effect this bill discriminates against the Jews."

One of the "discriminatory" provisions, he said, requires in effect that at least 100,000 of the admitted DP's be of Baltic (Latvian, Esthonian or Lithuanian) origin.

Another having a discriminatory effect, he said, was the provision requiring that at least 50 per cent of those admitted be farmers.

One of the liberalizing changes earlier voted down, sponsored by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and four other Senators would have admitted displaced persons who entered Germany, Austria or Italy up to April 21 of last year.

The bill as passed qualifies for

Five Precinct Heads Quizzed On Gambling

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Precinct-by-precinct studies of the District's gambling were continued yesterday by the special grand jury, with five more police officers appearing in the probe.

The grand jury heard testimony from Capt. Beverly C. Beach, Seventh Precinct; Capt. Albert I. Bullock, Thirteenth Precinct; Capt. George R. Wallrodt, Third Precinct; Capt. Clarence Lutz, Fourth Precinct, and Capt. James E. Silvea, Eleventh Precinct.

All precinct leaders and many other ranking police officials are expected to be called in the investigation.

The special jury has already heard from Capt. Howard V. Covell, First Precinct; Capt. Clyde N. Strange, Second Precinct; Capt. Archie M. Winfree, Sixth Precinct; Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad leader, and Inspector Arthur E. Miller, chief of the Traffic Division.

Captain Bullock, whose Thirteenth Precinct has a very heavy gambling rate, said he was questioned by the grand jury about the "general gambling picture" in his precinct.

Asked by reporters if there is more or less gambling in the precinct than when he took command last July 1, he said, "Well—I'd say there is a little less."

He added, "It's a precinct with a heavy floating population, and besides that there are places in it like Griffith Stadium and Turner's Arena . . . and they attract a lot of these people."

Reporters asked Captain Beach if he was questioned about the raid he directed on February 9, 1946, on the Variety Club, at the Willard Hotel. He said that was not raised before the grand jury.

After that raid, in which six slot machines were seized, Beach told reporters he was going to wipe out gambling in the First Precinct, "regardless of whose toes I step on."

The following July 1, he was transferred to the Sixth Precinct. At that time, both the late Superintendent of Police Harvey J. Callahan and Commissioner John Russell Young denied the transfer was related to the Variety Club raid.

Asked about this yesterday, Cap-

Housing Bill Added to GOP 'Must' List

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., yesterday added long-range housing legislation to the GOP leadership's three-measure "must" list definitely slated for action before Congress adjourns.

Martin predicted House passage of "a housing bill," without specifying details, as Democrats opened fire at holes in the Republican "must" slate, singling out the housing omission as the biggest.

At a White House conference with Democratic leaders, President Truman called for passage not only of the Senate-approved housing bill, but for Federal aid to education legislation and a "noncrippling" Reciprocal Trade Act extension as well.

Unless major pending measures are added to the list, some Democrats at the Capitol said they are ready to demand Congress forget about the June 19 adjournment goal and remain in session until a more comprehensive program can be rounded out.

A "stay in session" proposition may be laid before the Senate Democratic Policy Committee within the next few days, it was learned, although there are some differences among Democrats on that strategy.

Speaker Martin told reporters that in giving A-1 priority ratings to admission of displaced persons, the draft and reciprocal trade extension at Tuesday's two-House Republican leadership conference, there was no House intention to by-pass housing.

"We have intended right along to pass a housing bill," Martin said. "We simply gave priority to the other three."

Representative Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.), whose House Banking and Currency Committee has been holding extended hearings on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, said he expects committee action "in the fore part of next week," but, like Martin, he declined to speculate on the type of bill to be reported.

Wolcott and others high in the House Republican leadership are opposed to the public housing section of the Senate-passed bill, and indications are the committee will report a bill minus public housing features. A fight to restore the original T-E-W bill presumably will develop on the House floor or in conference.

Wolcott's announcement came a short time after Representative

Arab Bias Charged

Israel Denies Jews Destroyed Christian Places in Jerusalem

Recent charges that 14 Christian religious and humanitarian institutions in Jerusalem were either heavily damaged or destroyed by Jewish fighters are deliberate distortions of the true situation in the Holy City, the government of Israel maintained last night.

And so are further charges that Jewish troops used Christian institutions as military bases, according to a statement issued by Israeli representatives at the United Nations, Lake Success, N. Y.

Such accusations were made earlier this week by the Christian Union in Palestine, which the Israeli statement declares to be pro-Arab. The Union, it says, is a "group of Arab clergymen, or clergymen with predominantly Arab congregations, which has completely identified itself with the political aims of the Arab Higher Committee."

None of the Protestant churches is associated with the group, and neither is the Roman Catholic church, it asserted.

The statement continues:

"Many of the benevolent institutions to which the (Christian Union) manifesto refers served as British army quarters prior to the termination of the mandate, and were occupied by the Jewish forces to prevent the Arab military forces from taking them.

"Others were originally occupied by Arab forces, used as military bases and taken by the Jews as a matter of absolute military necessity."

Hostilities Continue as U. N. Moves For Peace

Security Council Orders Mediator To Fix Hour for 4-Week Armistice

Israel Revokes Order

FIGHTING GOES ON in Palestine; Israeli government revokes cease-fire order which, it says, was issued under a misunderstanding. Page 2.

Time Limit Not Set

Lake Success, June 2 (AP).—The Security Council told the United Nations' Palestine mediator tonight to fix the hour for a four-week armistice accepted by Arabs and Jews.

The council agreed this should be done as soon as possible.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, and others suggested giving the mediator three days to impose the cease-fire order.

Instructions drafted by the U. N. secretariat and cabled to the Middle East set no time limit, however.

Israeli forces in Palestine meanwhile cast aside their third cease-fire order at sundown Wednesday.

There was no direct word to the Council on that development but press dispatches from Tel Aviv said the Jews had no advices about the intentions of the Arabs. The Israeli said they reserved full freedom to continue fighting if nothing was heard.

Maj. Aubrey E. Eban, representative of the Jewish Agency here, said after the Council meeting that the Jews had cancelled their third cease-fire and were fighting again. But they were committed to observing the Council's four-weeks armistice whenever the mediator, Swedish Count Folke Bernadotte, fixes the time.

There was no objection to the Council action, which was taken without a vote. However, Russia and the Soviet Ukraine announced they abstained from approving the instructions to the mediator. Soviet sources said this was done because they had abstained from approving appointment of the mediator in the recent special U. N. Assembly on Palestine.

The instructions to Bernadotte were signed by the June Council chairman, Faris El Khoury of Syria, before El Khoury arose from the table.

As he left the crowded chamber, El Khoury told reporters the order already was on its way.

He called a special meeting of the Security Council for tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. (EST) to discuss controls provided under the cease-fire resolution.

"Once again we are put in the position where the Security Council virtually tells us to go on shooting," a spokesman for the Israeli government said.

For the Arabs of Palestine, Jamal Husseini of the Arab Higher Committee, said the Council took the only reasonable decision. He said it would be at least four or five days before the cease-fire could be made effective.

Acceptance Held Unconditional

El Khoury ruled without objection that the Arabs and Jews had accepted unconditionally the cease-fire request made by the Council last Saturday night.

He said the explanations and comments made in their replies were not conditions.

Then the Syrian read out a cable from Count Bernadotte suggesting that a limited interval must be allowed between the time the Arabs and Jews accepted the cease-fire and the time it is applied.

Bernadotte said this might take some days but Austin insisted it should be done in three days.

Bergson Picked For Assistant Attorney General

Herbert A. Bergson, 39-year-old Bostonian, was nominated yesterday to head the Justice Department's antitrust division.

President Truman sent Bergson's nomination as an Assistant Attorney General to the Senate. Attorney General Clark's office said that upon confirmation Bergson will take charge of the department's anti-trust work in succession to John F. Sonnett, who resigned recently to enter private law practice.

Bergson Has Vigor and the Will to Work Needed in Justice's Antitrust Unit

Herbert A. Bergson is one of those Government officials who don't know what an eight-hour day is. But his wife knows too well the sorry look of a cold supper.

* * * * * * *

But this vigor and will to work—after 14 years in the Government—is just what Bergson needs to carry Uncle Sam's "big stick" as head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division.

President Truman nominated the 39-year-old Bostonian for that job yesterday. And Bergson's associates have no doubt the Senate will confirm him.

So zealous is this sandy-haired 6-footer about his work that evenings and Saturdays without father are nearly the rule for Mrs. Bergson and the two boys, Richard, 12, and Paul, 4. The Bergsons live up in the north corner of the District, at 7908 16th st. nw.

HERBERT A. BERGSON

It's in His Record

What he's accomplished in these long work days is revealed in his record at the Justice Department. He joined the department 14 years ago after brief practice with his father, Harry Bergson, well-known Boston lawyer. He was then fresh out of the Harvard Law School and Harvard College.

In those 14 years he held successively the jobs of trial attorney, assistant chief of the legislative section in the office of assistant to the Attorney General; chief of that section; chief legal consultant to the Assistant Solicitor General; first assistant to the Assistant Attorney General in charge of claims; acting Assistant Attorney General in charge of claims; executive assistant to the Attorney General.

Now he is slated to be a full-fledged Assistant Attorney General, in charge of what is considered one of the department's most vital jobs.

He was absent from the department for two years, to serve in the Coast Guard as a lieutenant in a New Orleans legal assignment during the last war.

He is editor of the Federal Bar Journal.

Greece Wants Say In Trusteeship on Italian Colonies

London, June 2 (U.P.).—Greece demanded a part today in any collective trusteeship set up to adminster former Italian colonies. In a memorandum to the Big Four foreign ministers' deputies, Greece did not claim any territory as her own, but demanded that Greek traders have full freedom of commerce in Lybia, Eritrea and Somaliland, and that Greek shipping lines be provided safeguards when touching at ports in these colonies.

The memorandum laid great stress on the question of sponge fishing off the Tripolitanian coast, which currently is entirely in Greek hands and provides inhabitants of several Greek islands with their livelihood.

American Official Seized in Berlin By Soviet Patrol

Berlin (Thursday), June 3 (U.P.).—Dr. Henry J. Franklin, an American Military Government political officer, was seized by a Russian patrol in the Soviet sector of Berlin last night, reliable sources reported. He is a former resident of Washington, D. C., and Louisville, Ky.

The same sources said that despite an American protest and demand for an investigation, he still had not been released early today.

German sources reported that Franklin was seized in mid-Berlin as he left the building in which he had attended an all-day meeting of the political section of the four-power Kommandatura. His wife said she had heard nothing from him since 8 p. m.

Jews Revoke Cease-Fire On All Fronts

Cairo, June 2 (AP).—The Israeli government revoked its cease fire order tonight. It ordered its troops to resume fighting on all fronts in Palestine where bombing, artillery and infantry attacks were reported in a half-dozen sectors.

The Jewish government said the order which, it claimed, caused its soldiers to withhold all unprovoked fire since 6 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, was issued under a misunderstanding.

The United Nations Security Council asked Arabs and Jews to notify it by 6 p. m. Tuesday, whether they would abide by a U. N. appeal for a four-week truce. The Jews said they mistook this deadline—and accepted it—as the actual time for ceasing fire.

The Arabs realized the U. N. had not set a specific deadline for halting the three-week-old war and, apparently, did not slacken their fighting pace. The Jews, under their earlier misapprehension, had bitterly accused the Arabs of violating the supposed order.

Meanwhile, both sides reported major battles were in progress in the Holy Land.

The Egyptian Defense Ministry said tonight in a communique that Egyptian infantry attacked a heavily fortified Jewish stronghold in the Negba area, 30 miles southeast of Tel Aviv, and occupied a "large number of positions there."

The Jews counterattacked in the strongest such thrust yet experienced by the Arabs in the coastal plain, the communique said. Arab infantry and artillery and Egyptian planes smashed the counter-attack, it added, and "the enemy retreated in disorder." Jewish casualties were reported heavy.

An Amman dispatch said a column of several hundred Jews struck 18 miles into Trans-Jordan before King Abdullah's Arab legionnaires and allied Arab planes killed 40 and beat them back in a battle that lasted until noon today.

The Israel high command said the Jews' military position was much better than two or three days ago. Last night Israeli troops drove within 3 miles of Jenin and 4 miles of Tulkarm, the Jews said. Both cities are anchors of the strategic Arab triangle in central Palestine.

Jenin now is virtually encircled by the Jews, Tel Aviv informants said. Mukbeile, Sandale and Arana, the latter less than 3 miles from Jenin, were reported seized by Jewish troops.

Shortly before 3 a. m. Jewish fighters launched attacks against the Zion, Jaffa and new gates of Jerusalem's old walled city.

King Abdullah's legionnaires beat off the attacks and said they killed 80 of the 600 Jews who came at them in three columns.

Senate Ratifies Treaties With Italy and China

The Senate last night ratified treaties of friendship, commerce and navigation with Italy and China, designed to improve business relations between those countries and the United States.

They cover a wide range of activities, including questions of entry and residence, protection of persons and property, religious activities, customs and shipping.

The Italian pact is aimed particularly at giving American business men a fair break when they trade with state and state-controlled corporations. Sponsors said it would eliminate most discriminations against private enterprise.

Lovett Slated to Be Senate Group Witness

Bevin Refuses to Stop Trans-Jordan Subsidy

London, June 2 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin flatly rejected today left wing labor demands that Britain end its nine-million-dollar-a-year military subsidy to Trans-Jordan.

Bevin, in a peppery exchange in Commons, also denied that King Abdullah's Trans-Jordan forces invaded Palestine. What happened, he held, was that Palestine Arabs invited them into territory earmarked for Arabs under the United Nations partition plan.

Bevin disclosed that Brigadier John Bagot Glubb, called Glubb Pasha, had resigned his post in the British Colonial Service so he could retain his command of the Arab Legion.

Though he refused to stop the Trans-Jordan subsidy and defended King Abdullah's activities in Palestine, Bevin said that he hoped conditions would not prevent a truce.

While Bevin spoke in Commons today, Emir Faisal al-Saud, Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister who is here as a government guest, said at a press conference:

"Not a single Arab state will acknowledge the existence of the state of Israel."

Until the Palestine problem is settled, he added, Saudi Arabia will not resume discussion of the building of an oil pipe line from its territory to the Mediterranean.

Russian Marshal Appeals for Union Of All Germany

Berlin, June 2 (U.P.).—Soviet Marshal Vassili D. Sokolovsky, in a rare statement of policy, appealed today for the unification of all Germany.

Sokolovsky, commander of the eastern occupation zone, promised Soviet zone Germans a higher standard of living, an end to expropriations of farms and said there will be no attempts to convert the Soviet zone into a Slav state.

The Russian marshal's statement plainly was an indirect attack on the London six-power conference, which provisionally plans to set up a western German constituent assembly in September.

6 Western Allies Reach Accord On West Germany Government

London, June 2 (U.P.).—The six western Allies have reached full agreement on giving the western German people a government of thir own, it was announced officially today. A constituent assembly probably will be set up in September.

Details of the plan for German self-government are expected to be released shortly. They were hammered out during weeks of secret negotiations here by the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, and will be submitted to the governments concerned for approval.

The assembly will draft a federal constitution. The government structure probably will be established in January, reliable sources said. Power will be divided between the states and a central authority.

The Big Three—the United States, Britain, France—will supervise foreign policy, defense and finance; otherwise, the German government is expected to be given extensive administrative powers.

Six-Power Agreement Indorsed by French

Paris, June 2 (NYHT).—The French government is prepared to go before the National Assembly next week and insist upon ratification of the six-power London agreements on western Germany.

Neither Premier Robert Schuman, nor Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, is ready to argue that the London decisions are the best possible solution of the present German problem, but they both are convinced that they constitute a working basis for future action and the only compromise that could have been made.

This is a notable step for a government which two weeks ago wondered whether an understanding was possible without compromising French security. It reflects last-minute concessions by the American and British delegations.

Detroit Base Target Of Huge Mock Raid

Detroit, June 2 (AP).—The Strategic Air Command's mightiest attacking force assembled since the war—about 350 planes in a single mass formation—struck at the Selfridge Field Air Base here today in a powerful mock bombing raid under simulated war conditions.

About 200 big B-29 bombers and their escort of 150 fighters (P-51 Mustangs) smashed at Selfridge Field from an altitude of 25,000 feet, too high to be seen in the haze. But the roar of their engines was audible for miles.

Pilots of the Fifty-sixth Fighter Group, based at Selfridge, raced from recreation areas, mess halls and even their bunks to defend the area with about 50 jet fighters armed with gun cameras.

Results of the mammoth mock attack won't be known until the pictures are studied.

The defensive fighter squadrons at Selfridge were kept in ignorance of the attack until about an hour and a half before the first big wave swept over the field at 3:06 p. m. (EST).

The interceptors contacted the lead force of B-29s about 15 miles west of Goshen, Ind., about 2 p. m. (EST) and "worked them over pretty well," pilots told Maj. Stuart McLeod, public information officer at the field.

Lieut. Col. David C. Schilling, commander of the Fifty-sixth Fighter Group, about half of whose pilots are wartime combat veterans, called the defensive action "a successful mission."

Selfridge Field pilots added that their jets "intercepted the bombers very successfully and made a lot of passes at them" between Goshen and their target.

From the ground here there was no evidence of the appalling might overhead except from the deafening roar of the planes. Then, as suddenly as they had arrived, the big warbirds turned and zoomed away. Their orders were to return nonstop to their nine bases, scattered from Spokane, Wash., to Tampa, Fla.

The Strategic Air Command described the huge air assault as a routine training mission, but there was little of "routine" nature in the size of the attacking force.

Today's raiders assembled at 11:45 a. m. (CST) over the Fairfax Army Air Base at Kansas City, Kans., and made the 640-mile run to Selfridge Field together. En route, the mammoth force, carrying a theoretical bomb load of 1125 tons of explosives, skirted this huge industrial center, sending residents scurrying to their telephones to inquire about "all that noise."

M. I. T. Sheds New Light on Cosmic Rays

Cambridge, Mass., June 2 (AP).—Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists said tonight they had made important discoveries concerning the structure of cosmic rays, the mysterious particles that constantly bombard the earth from outer space.

Armed with this knowledge, the MIT announcement said, scientists will be able to calculate the time of travel of the primary cosmic rays and their origin in space—long one of the major mysteries of science.

After two years' research with balloons and a U. S. Air Force B-29 equipped as a "flying laboratory," MIT said it had established:

1. Primary cosmic rays consist of less than 4 per cent electrons.

2. Important support to the theory that protons, the nuclei of hydrogen atoms, are by far the major component of cosmic radiation.

3. A contention held by many scientists that electrons constitute a major share of primary cosmic rays has been "definitely disproved."

These findings, the announcement said, "will shed new light on how the particles achieve their energies of millions of billions of volts."

House Approves Bill for Women In Armed Forces

The House yesterday approved a compromise bill to accept women as regulars in the armed forces. The hotly debated measure, finally passed 206 to 133, continues the Women's Army Corps (WAC) for one year to provide for a transition from the temporary wartime basis to a permanent peacetime program.

The WAC bill already has passed the Senate and now goes to the White House. It will allow the services to have 18,500 enlisted women and about 1500 officers in the next two years and up to 2 per cent of their authorized strength after that. Those who favored the bill said it will cut down the total number of men who may have to be drafted.

lion men and 14,000 warplanes ready, and is capable of "swiftly overrunning" most of Europe, the Near East, Korea and China.

"These Soviet military capabilities, even when viewed quite apart from their intentions, present an alarming menace to the security of the United States," Bradley added.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal said he could see no hope of a reduction in defense spending and the expanded forces planned until western Europe is on its feet.

Major cuts made by the House Appropriations Committee were in proposed expansion of civil personnel forces, Army ordnance, military housing, and Navy maintenance of ships and shore bases. Unlike the heavier slashes made in Army-Air Force pay, subsistence and clothing funds—which are not reductions at all—the armed forces cannot come back for more money later for these items without a good reason.

Breakdown of Sums Approved

Here's the way the Army-Air Force apppropriation bill was approved by the committee and passed the House:

Carries a total of $6,559,939,000, largely for support of the Army and Air Force, in the fiscal year 1949. All of the sum is cash except for 50 millions contract authority for Signal Corps research. The total is $647,903,000 under the budget estimates.

The sum is divided $5,545,953,000 for the Army, $891,736,000 for the Air Force and the remainder for Secretary Forrestal's office and separate defense agencies.

A sizable chunk of the Army money—House Appropriations Committee experts could not estimate how much—will be used to pay USAF officers and men. In addition, an earlier bill carried $2,295,100,000 for the Air Force.

Guard Gets 240 Millions

The National Guard was allowed 240 million dollars—the full amount proposed by the President—while the Army and Air Reserves received 100 million dollars, a 25-million-dollar cut.

Expansion of the Army to 790,000 officers and men is authorized, and enlargement of the Air Force to a strength of 444,500. This will give the USAF 66 active combat groups, it was said.

Bigfigest cut was 197 million dollars from the Administration proposals for Army ordnance. The bill allows 580 millions.

The Navy bill provides $3,686,733,250, which the committee said would maintain the present active fleet in full commission. The $241,005,450 cut from Navy budget estimates will allow fewer new air stations than planned and a slower rate of new ship construction.

Ship-Construction Fund Cut

President Truman had proposed $82,270,000 to lay down the new aircraft carrier, a big, antisubmarine ship and four new-style submarines, and to convert several other craft. The committee cut 10 millions from this fund.

Including money previously voted for Navy planes, about 4.6 billions are slated for spending by the Navy next year. This compares with 5.5 billions voted the Army and 3.1 billions in direct appropriations for the Air Force. Part of the Army money will be spent for the USAF.

Czech Red Slain, Party Chiefs Uneasy

By Seymour Freidin

Prague, June 2 (NYHT).—The first political assassination of a Communist leader, who was a top ranking Moscow-trained partisan commander, has caused a profound stir among the party chiefs here.

The killing, which occurred 72 hours before the election on Sunday, was kept from the public until brief mention was made yesterday in Rude Pravo, the Communist Party newspaper. The second public notice was carried this morning in a eulogy in the army newspaper Obrana Lidu.

The slain Communist leader, Major Augustin Sram, 41, was regarded as one of the unobtrusive powers in the party and ranked with the six top members.

The party's leadership is somewhat apprehensive, it was reported, because several other members of the central committee have received threatening letters similar to one received by Sram some time before his death.

At 7 a. m. last Thursday, according to authoritative sources, a man wearing glasses, knocked on the door of Sram's apartment. Sram opened the door himself. The visitor purportedly said, "The brothers greet you."

for the grade of corporal will go up automatically after a year as a pfc., Paul said. Corporal stripes carry an additional 10 bucks a month. Similarly, promotion to sergeant is possible after six months as a corporal and will come automatically after a year for qualified men. "Buck" sergeants make $100 a month.

Paul emphasized last night that the promotion speedup for enlisted men was dependent upon congressional approval of funds. The House cut the money for Army pay yesterday, but the Army personnel chief said this might not affect the plan.

General Bull told the committee that the Army is cutting its basic-training period for recruits and draftees from 13 to 8 weeks. During the war, 17 weeks of such training was allowed. The cut is temporary, it was said.

Navy Denies Sub Was Bombed

By The Associated Press

Vice Admiral Arthur W. Radford yesterday denied that the submarine Carp had been depth-bombed by a U. S. Air Force plane.

Representative Hugh D. Scott (R., Pa.) had told the House a few minutes earlier that the Carp had been bombed and 50 sailors sent to hospitals for treatment.

Radford, who is vice chief of naval operations, was questioned by reporters about Scott's statement. He said:

"This is absolutely not so."

Radford said the Carp is now at San Francisco.

Navy submarine experts also told newsmen that Air Force planes do not carry depth bombs at present.

Navy officials said that about six weeks ago inquiries were received from the family of a sailor aboard the Carp who had written his parents a hair-raising account of being depth-bombed and spending 24 hours on the bottom, slowly exhausting the oxygen supply.

The story was checked and found strictly of the tall-tale variety. The Navy so wrote the parents.

Scott's statement was made during debate on Navy appropriations. He elaborated to newsmen that the incident of which he spoke was one of "the so-called Russian submarine scares two months ago."

Scott said the plane "laid a pattern of depth bombs" around the submarine less than 200 miles off San Diego, Calif.

He told the House the bombs were dropped "by a pilot who didn't know his recognition."

The story, he said, has been kept secret.

Republicans Gain House Seat in California As All Incumbents Win Renomination

San Francisco, June 2 (AP).—Republicans netted a surprise gain of one congressional seat in Tuesday's California primary elections, unofficial returns from the see-saw contest in the Tenth District indicated tonight.

Thomas H. Werdel, Bakersfield attorney, appeared to have won both the Democratic and Republican nominations for the seat vacated by the retirement this year of Representative Alfred J. Elliott, Democrat.

Dual nomination, permitted under California's cross-filing law, is tantamount to election in November.

Nominees winning in both major party primaries this year, however, still must run against minor party candidates in the general elections. This will include the Independent Progressive Party of Henry Wallace next November.

In the congressional primaries, the 21 incumbents seeking return to the House won party renomination Tuesday. Fourteen were Republican, seven Democrats.

Werdel brought to nine the number of Republican candidates virtually assured election by winning the nominations of both major parties.

Three Democrats also won both nominations, and will be without major opposition in November.

In addition to Representative Elliott, veteran Democrat Clarence F. Lea did not stand for reelection from the First District. In the First, Herbert R. Scudder, Sebastopol, won comfortably in the Republican lists. The official count may be necessary to determine the winner of the Democratic nomination.

Only a handful of votes separated Democratic contenders Roger Kent, Kentfield attorney, and Sterling J. Norgard, Ukiah farmer.

In the presidential primariese, Republican Gov. Earl Warren and President Truman polled light complimentary votes for their unopposed candidacies.

As California's Republican favorite son, Warren has the 53 Republican convention votes pledged to him. The Democrats 54-vote delegation similarly was pledged to Mr. Truman.

Despite California's 3-2 Democratic registration proponderance, returns from more than 12,000 of 16,145 precincts gave Warren 589,725, Mr. Truman 634,292.

On the basis of incomplete but apparently conclusive returns, these incumbents appeared to have won dual party nomination:

Mundt Wins Senate Nomination Easily

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., June 2 (AP).—South Dakota Republicans overwhelmingly nominated Representative Karl E. Mundt for the United States Senate on the basis of unofficial returns from Tuesday's primary election.

With 1388 of 1949 precincts reported, Mundt, coauthor of the Mundt-Nixon bill to curb communism, polled 54,976 to 9833 for his opponent, Otto B. Linstad, a South Dakota State senator.

Mundt will meet Democ at John A. Engle, Avon attorney, in the general election for the seat now held by Republican Senator Harlan J. Bushfield, retiring because of ill health. Engle was unopposed for the democratic nomination.

Democrats voted to send a Truman-pledged slate of eight delegates to the national convention. The group polled 6091 votes against 4526 for an uninstructed slate.

The race for Mundt's First District Congressional seat was in doubt. Incomplete returns indicated the contest may have to be decided at the party convention July 12. None of the candidates received the 35 per cent vote necessary for nomination.

Harold O. Lovre, Watertown attorney and former State chairman, got 16,315 with 1077 of 1320 precincts reported. W. H. Pringle, Pierre, had 11,800; Art B. Anderson, Sioux Falls, 11,409; E. L. Stavig, Roshold, 9358.

Duff Sees Stassen Strong Contender For Nomination

Harrisburg, Pa., June 2 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen talked politics for an hour today with Gov. James H. Duff but left without getting a commitment of support for his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

Duff lauded Stassen after the conference for "a great service" in clarifying political issues.

"I feel that he has roused a strong feeling of support in Republican ranks throughout the country," he said.

"It goes without saying that he is going to be one of the serious contenders for the GOP nomination at the convention."

Stassen told newsmen that he "thoroughly understands" that the Pennsylvania delegation will remain unpledged at the GOP convention at Philadelphia starting June 21.

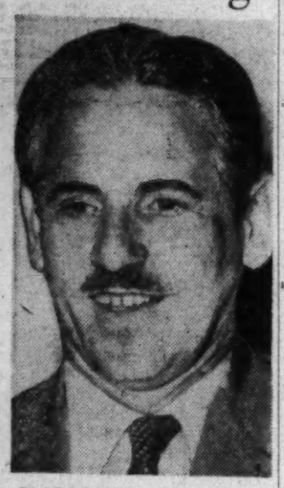
Prio Elected President in Cuban Voting



CARLOS PRIO SOCARRAS

Havana, Cuba, June 2 (AP).—Dr. Ricardo Nunez Portuondo said today he recognized the victory of Carlos Prio Socarras, administration candidate in Tuesday's presidential election.

The army announced that tabulation of returns from 7145 of the island's 7730 precincts gave Prio 857,917; Nunez 569,042; Senator Eduardo Chibas, Peoples Party, 310,925, and Senator Juan Marinello, Communist, 139,289.

Sixty-four precincts were unable to vote yesterday. Fifty-three were in Oriente Province, where torrential rains closed roads. Therefore returns from only 521 percincts remained to be tabulated.

Prio, 44-year-old senator, who has promised to "rid Cuba of Communist influence," had the support of President Ramon Grau San Martin. He will take office October 10 for a four-year term. He gained wide popularity in the anti-Machado revolution of 1933, and has been active in politics since.

No tabulations, either official or unofficial, have been made on races other than that for President. It was expected it would be several days before results would be known.

'Never Ran From a Fight,' Truman Says

Salisbury, Mo., June 2 (U.P.).—President Harry S. Truman believes he "was not brought up to run from a fight."

This was disclosed today in an exchange of letters between Mr. Truman and a Missouri dentist, Dr. H. H. Brummall of Salisbury, who urged the President to drop out of the presidential race.

His first letter to Mr. Truman said "regardless of the justice or injustice, I believe both popular opinion and opinion of liberals everywhere is that new leadership of the party is essential to victory this year."

President Truman replied on May 24 as follows:

"Dr. Brummall:

"I read your letter of the fifteenth with a lot of interest, and for your information I was not brought up to run from a fight.

"A great many of you Democrats in 1940 ran off after a certain Governor who was trying to cut my throat, and he didn't do it successfully—they are not going to succeed this time either.

"I am certainly sorry that you feel the way you do. It is not a good way for a Missourian to feel at this time.

"Sincerely yours,

"Harry S. Truman."

The President referred to former Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, who ran second to Mr. Truman in 1940 in a three-way contest for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from Missouri.

On May 27, Brummall wrote in reply that he was surprised at the President's response, particularly "when you therein impugned the motives of the Democrats who did not support you in the 1940 primary election . . .

"Freedom of the ballot and freedom of speech are two of the civil liberties, the perfection of which for all citizens you have sponsored and I hope sincerely advocated for action of the Congress.

"Never in any public utterance by you have I heard you assert that the exercise of a civil liberty at any time constituted the citizen exerciser thereof as a 'cutthroat.'"

In neither letter did Brummall propose an alternative candidate to Mr. Truman. He said he had voted for him in the 1940 general election and in the 1944 election when Mr. Truman was the running mate of the late President Roosevelt.

Brummall said he would vote for Mr. Truman again this fall "if he insists on running."

He said it was the first time he had ever written to a President and did so to offer "a grassroots political suggestion."

Federal Foundation For 'Voice' Urged

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Operation of the "Voice of America" should be lodged in a Government controlled foundation, the National Broadcasting Co. told Congress yesterday, with the State Department laying down policy.

Divided responsibility between the State Department and the private networks is responsible for such blunders as were made in the "Know Your North America" series, which have aroused congressional ire, Charles R. Denny, vice president and general counsel of NBC said yesterday.

If a foundation or other overall Government control is established, NBC will lease its three 50-kilowatt short-wave stations to the Government for $1 a year and will withdraw from international broadcast programming, Denny told the joint Senate subcommittee investigating the "Voice."

Congress Given Alternatives

Congress must choose between complete Government operation or reestablishment of complete private operations, Denny declared.

"A return to private operation inevitably means no coordination in the programming activities. It means a wasteful duplication of facilities and it means a sharp curtailment in the activity because private industry, without Government funds, cannot support extensive short-wave operations," Denny declared.

Denny said if the decision is made to have just one "Voice of America" under a Government foundation, department or corporation, short-wave facilities should be greatly expanded.

"Truly adequate facilities might cost another 50 or even another 100 million dollars," he added.

"The cost of this powerful weapon is insignificant when compared with the cost of battleships or air fleets.

Proposal Made in 1943

"The task of the 'Voice of America' is to combat lies with truth in the international struggle for men's minds."

NBC and Columbia Broadcasting System together handle about 70 per cent of all "Voice of America" programs for foreign consumption.

Denny said the proposal of a Government radio foundation was first broached in 1943 by David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corp. of America, parent corporation of NBC. The same recommendation was made to Secretary of State George Marshall in May, last year Denny declared.

The State Department concentrates on broadcasts beamed at Russia, eastern Europe, occupied Germany and Austria and the Far East.

Both Agencies Blamed

Denny said that NBC and the State Department should jointly share the blame for the unfortunate broadcasts to Latin America, which, among other things said that Texas was born in sin and New England was founded by hypocrisy.

The State Department, Denny said, with one exception, was furnished advance copies of all the broadcasts in the "Know Your North America" series but did not check them.

The Senate's investigating group, made up jointly of members of the Foreign Relations and Executive Expenditures Subcommittees, manifested far more sympathy for the unfortunate author of the broadcasts, Rene Borgia, than for either the State Department or NBC.

The disconsolate author, now staying in Washington on $5 a day witness fees, is not only out of a job and in poor health, but he doesn't know where he'll get another job. He's a Venezuelan by birth, and could get a job back there, he said, but his wife, the former Blanche Brannon, was born in Boston, Mass., and their three children, 17, 11 and 9, were all brought up here and they want to stay.

Borgia Only One Fired

When congressional criticisms began to pour in, Borgia was the only one who got fired. His supervisor, Albert O. Gandero, was demoted and later resigned.

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) and Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) both came to Borgia's defense yesterday.

Hickenlooper said that Borgia had every right to assume his scripts were satisfactory when he found that not only were there no objections from NBC but he was told the programs were what was wanted.

The two senators said it was not fair to blame the man responsible for the "mechanics" of the job.

Gandero Offers to Testify

In Havana, Cuba, Gandero offered to return here to testify.

He said he had cabled Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), President Pro Tempore of the Senate:

"The charges against me in connection with the Voice of America programs are unjust. I am at your disposal to testify."

On the House side, Chairman J. Edgar Chenoweth (R., Colo.) of a House Expenditures group also investigating the broadcasts, said he was "shocked and surprised" that the State Department has not yet appointed a public advisory committee to aid in the Voice program.

The law passed six months ago provided for such a committee, Chenoweth pointed out. Failure to establish it, he said, "is a glaring example of the loose and inefficient manner in which this whole program has been carried out."

Latin-American Taste Differs

Chenoweth heard testimony on Latin-American radio taste yesterday from Juan Jose Vasques, a Mexican citizen who is technical director of NBC's Spanish language broadcasts.

Latin American tastes were considerably different from those of U. S. Congressmen, Vasque indicated.

"To promote one product, a hair oil, Vasques said, "I produced a program called 'College of Love.' It was a quiz program on which men and women cited their experiences and told what types of the opposite sex they preferred."

His American sponsors did not like the program, Vasques declared but in six months the sale of the product tripled.

Insect Control Course

Inspectors of the Health Department's Bureaus of Public Health Engineering and Food Inspection will attend an "intensive" one-day insect control school beginning this morning, William H. Cary, jr., director of the Bureau of Public Health Engineering, announced last night.

Shrine Dedicates 3 Rooms At Washington Memorial

The Washington Post

CUTTING THEIR WAY IN—Officials of the Shrine cut a ribbon and open three dedicatory rooms in the George Washington Masonic Memorial in Alexandria, Va. They are (from left) Galloway Calhoun, Deputy Imperial Potentate of Tyler, Tex.; Karl Rex Hammers, Imperial Potentate of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Omer W. Clark, Potentate of Almas Temple, and Roland D. Baldwin, Imperial High Priest and Prophet of Jacksonville, Fla. The rooms, representing more than $1,500,000 in furnishings and decorations, contain art pieces and exhibits of the Shriners' crippled children's hospitals and a rug by Medinah Temple, Chicago, valued at $150,000

More than 1000 Shriners opened and dedicated three Shrine memorial rooms yesterday in ceremonies at the George Washington Masonic Memorial in Alexandria.

Dedication of the rooms, attended by Shrine notables from over the Nation, coincided with the annual spring ceremonial of the local Almas Temple at the Statler Hotel.

Imperial Potentate Karl Rex Hammers, Thirty-third Degree honorary inspector general from Pittsburgh's Syria Temple, cut the ribbon opening the rooms.

Other dignitaries in attendance were Roland D. Baldwin, imperial high priest and prophet; Omer W. Clark, Almas Temple potentate, and Film Actor Harold Lloyd, imperial chief rabban.

The three ground-floor Shrine rooms had been in preparation two years. Furnishings, decoration and art works were donated by Shrine temples throughout North America and were estimated to cost about $1,500,000.

One room contains oil portraits of 57 past imperial potentates and a $150,000 Oriental rug. Another includes glass-encased models of 15 of the 16 Shrine hospitals for crippled children and a portrait of President Truman, who is past grand master of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Missouri.

admission only DP's who entered those countries by December 22, 1945. Sponsors of the unsuccessful amendment charged the earlier date discriminated against thousands of Jews who escaped the 1946 pogroms in Poland. The bill's managers argue the later date might let in some Communist agents.

Two amendments by Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) adopted by voice votes permitted immediate admission under regular German and Austrian immigration quotas Sudeten Germans and other persons of German ethnic origin born in other countries. Some 27,000 of these could come in every year under the combined German-Austrian quota, under Langer's amendments.

Despite warnings by Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) and others that many members of this so-called "Volkdeutsche" served as an advance guard for Hitler's expansion, and were a direct cause of the war, the Senate adopted both amendments. Langer and Senator James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) contended many of them were anti-Nazi and have been discriminated against by denial of admission to this country.

Also approved was an amendment by Senator C. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.) placing DP's who fought with the Allies next in priority after orphans.

Ives' Amendment Defeated

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) urged provision for admission as nonquota immigrant children under 14 whose parents died or disappeared in the war, but his amendment was defeated.

On motion of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), however, the Senate voted to permit entry of orphans for whom adoption arrangements had been made in the United States.

Rejected by a standing vote was an amendment by Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) to admit permanently as displaced persons some 15,000 persons already in the United States on a temporary basis.

Southern Democrats voting with mostly Midwest Republicans defeated the liberalizing moves sponsored by a group led by Senators Ferguson, Cooper and H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.). The same group had succeeded earlier, however, in raising the total admitted under the bill from 100,000 in two years to 200,000 in the same period. It was this increase in the total that the Kem substitute sponsors tried and failed to cutback.

Oak Ridge Atom Workers Reject Pay Raise Offer

Oak Ridge, Tenn., June 2 (NYHT.).—Atomic-energy workers at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory have rejected, 771 to 26, a "final" management offr for settling a six-month-old labor dispute, and will meet Sunday to determine whether to strike at midnight Monday.

In special balloting held yesterday and today by the National Labor Relations Board under the strike-prevention clause of the Taft-Hartley Law, members of the Atomic Trades and Labor Council (AFL) voted against accepting the 10-cents-an-hour offer made by the Carbide & Carbon Chemical Corp. before negotiations broke down two months ago. The corporation operates the laboratory for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The poll was the first ever conducted under national-emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, which the Government used last March 19 to obtain an 80-day injunction against a strike. The injunction expires Monday.

Security Administration which would also be overhauled under the House bill.

PAY-RAISE advocates haven't given up hope. They were planning a new line of attack yesterday in an effort to insure Congressional action on the Federal employe pay bills before Congress adjourns.

In the House, there is talk of filing a petition with the Speaker to discharge the House Rules Committee from further consideration of the pay bill. The proposed petition would have to be signed by a majority of the House members to get action on it.

Pay-raise sponsors are certain they can get more than enough signatures to force action. They point out that upwards of 280 House members have gone on record in support of pay legislation.

In the Senate, Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.) asked Senator Taft, the GOP leader, when the bill would be taken up. Taft said: "I think I can assure you that the bill will be brought up before the Senate."

At the joint House-Senate meeting late Monday of GOP policymakers, it was definitely learned that the pay bill was discussed. However, the Republican leaders present could not agree on amounts and action on it was postponed until next Monday.

Several policymakers also took the position that no pay bill should be brought up until all the appropriation bills were enacted into law. At that time, they explained, "we'll know where we stand financially." They expressed a fear that the huge pending appropriations would put the Government back into the red.

ECA: The House Appropriations Committee is reported to have agreed tentatively to cut the President's budget request for ECA by half a billion dollars.

NOTES: The President yesterday nominated Herbert A. Bergson, the executive assistant to the Attorney General, to be Assistant Attorney General in charge of the antitrust division as predicted here Monday . . . The Veterans' Administration has openings for CAF-3 dictating machine transcribers. Make application in Room 2037 of the Munitions Building . . . The Senate has approved a bill to allow six more Air Force civilians to be paid salaries up to $15,000 each . . . The Senate Civil Service Committee has okayed the Langer bill to give maternity leave up to 60 days to women employes.

LOYALTY: The FBI has checked and has found "no disloyal data" on 1,955,314 Federal workers, its director, J. Edgar Hoover, reported yesterday. The job of preliminary checking each employe is virtually complete, Hoover said.

Hoover said that questionable information had been found on 4137 employes and full-scale inquiries are being conducted on them. Only 1391 of the investigations are completed and 231 of the employes resigned during them. In 13 other cases, the individuals were no longer employed by the Government. The remaining 1147 cases have been referred to Civil Service.

Committee Passes $99,567,983 City Budget

plans for using the other 1.8 million to reduce the deficit.

3. They trimmed $300,000 out of a one-million-dollar reserve fund for unforseen expenses.

4. They tapped 1.6 million in unspent balances from previous appropriations.

5. They hiked the estimated income tax yield by $370,000. Cutting the budget and tapping the reserves reduced the deficit total to $30,000, which city budget officials said could be taken care of by normal economies.

The budget reduction trimmed more than 100 jobs from District agencies. Biggest cutbacks in personnel programs were in the Police and School Departments. Where the House approved 207 new police positions, the Senate group trimmed back the total to 157, and cited a Civil Service Commission estimate that only 100 new jobs could be filled in the year.

A $100,000 cut was ordered in the school instruction budget to eliminate 50 teachers in the white school divisions one to nine. School officials said the reduction could be made without firings, by not filling vacancies, but that a problem was presented about where 50 teachers could be taken from the school system without impairing services. Funds were left in the bill for an additional 37 teachers in the Negro schools, and for six additional teachers for physically handicapped children.

School officials also questioned the relationship between the $100,000 cut and the reduction of 50 teachers on the ground that with average salaries of about $3000, the reduction could be made by eliminating some 30 teaching positions.

The big House-approved school construction program totaling $5,023,283 was left virtually unchanged in its major projects by the Senate committee. The only reductions were $50,000 for new equipment for Western High School and $27,600 for equipment in other schools.

Eight proposed new employes for the Public Library were knocked out of the bill by a $20,000 cut. Another $20,000 was cut from the Recreation Department.

In the welfare budget, $50,000 was cut from the funds for public assistance. The Senate committee also called on the Board of Public Welfare to take steps toward closing the National Training School for Girls on the ground that it now has but nine inmates and will cost $72,000 next year. Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler was told to provide funds out of welfare appropriations for two teachers at the District Receiving Home for Children.

From the welfare building budget, the Senate group cut $185,000 of the $406,000 allowed by the House, but said the remaining money could be used for a start on the House-approved projects—residence buildings for employes and medical staff at the District Training School, and for preliminary study of a proposed children's center.

Other big cuts were made in the public works appropriations. A House-approved fund of $400,000 in new money for a refuse transfer station and garage and shop building was erased from the bill, but the city will still be able to go ahead with $875,000 previously appropriated for the project. Total cost is fixed at $1,375,000.

The Senate group trimmed out $250,000 of the House-approved $2,661,000 for sewer construction.

The District National Guard budget was cut $10,000 below the House total of $95,200. That figure represented a $20,000 reduction below what the Guard asked. The Senate committee in its report ordered the commanding general of the District Guard, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, to "stay within the sum recommended."

In another section, the report said "it has been called to the attention of the committee that the National Guard has a boat provided for it by the Department of the Army. The adjutant general informs us that he does not know who uses this boat. The committee therefore directs the return of the boat immediately to the Department of the Army."

Senator Dworshak said he was convinced the budget revisions would not impair city services, but instead "will increase efficiency in the District government."

The committee report pointed out that the proposed budget total is $3,631,754 more than the city has to spend this year, and $2,239,300 below the budget proposed by the District Commissioners.

In view of the record budget, the committee declared "a determined effort must be made by the Commissioners during 1949 to find ways of reducing expenditures in the fiscal year 1950.

"If District expenditures cannot be brought within the limits of revenue in another year, it will be necessary to seek increased property taxes in the District to cover part of a deficit that may be nine million dollars.

"Members of the committee are of the opinion that reorganiation of certain functions in the District government can result in substantial savings. The committee recommends inclusion of $100,000 in the budget to finance a study of the District school system which accounts for 25 per cent of all District appropriations. (The school report would be made to Congress by March 1, 1949.)

"The committee recommends further that the welfare agencies of the city develop a program to correlate their activities and to eliminate duplication and inefficiency in their operations."

The Senate committee took out of the bill, in line with similar actions on other appropriations bills, the rider barring payment of funds to employes who belong to unions whose officers have not signed non-Communist oaths under the Taft-Hartley Act.

One Candidate Announced for Arlington Post

William Nemeth, 32, of 1419 North Cleveland st., Arlington, an insurance claims agent, was the only announced candidate for Arlington County Board last night as the deadline for filing drew near.

Three other possible candidates, however, had qualifying petitions prepared, but said they were still "undecided" on entering the party primaries to be held in August. Deadline for filing to enter the primaries is tonight midnight.

Nemeth said he would seek the Democratic nomination for the one county board vacancy.

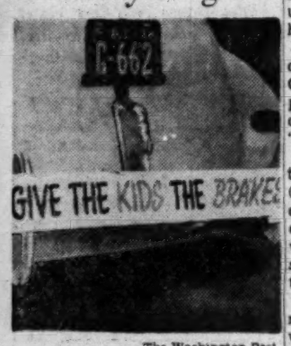
Model Code Urged For Traffic Here

Bumper Crop Of Safety Slogans



The Washington Post

WORDS TO WISE—Distribution of 15,000 of these slogans for auto bumpers started yesterday in connection with the District's Summer Traffic Safety Program. Private car owners may get them this week from service stations, car and tire dealers

The Traffic Court Conference resolved yesterday to try to eliminate ticket-fixing, to get periodic reexamination of automobile drivers and to press for the adoption of a uniform code of traffic regulations here.

The third annual meeting of the conference was held in Municipal Court, where in the afternoon the public was invited to present their complaints to the authorities in a "gripe session."

At a luncheon given in the Carlton Hotel, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) urged the adoption here of either the uniform vehicle code or the model traffic ordinances which would impose uniform standards of traffic enforcement throughtout the Nation.

Judge Brice Clagett of the Municipal Court of Appeals said he was amazed at the frequency of traffic violations in Washington.

"You take your life in your hands when you drive down Constitution ave.," he said.

He said that despite the prevalence of violations, in the last saveral years, the number of cases to appear in Traffic Court has decreased from an average of perhaps 100 to between 40 and 50 a day. He suggested that it was not entirely due to law enforcement measures.

There was much discussion over the present collateral scale, with opinion divided as to whether it should be raised in order to force defendants into court.

It was Judge Clagett who suggested that efforts be made to eliminate ticket fixing.

George E. Keneipp, director of traffic, suggested periodic reexamination of drivers.

Truck Driver Exonerated in Child's Death

Gordon H. Burch, 32, of 3914 Madison st., Hyattsville, Md., was absolved of blame yesterday in the traffic death of Virginia Carol Jackson, 2 years old.

A coroner's jury, after considering the case for 40 minutes, decided the death was accidental. An ice truck driven by Burch backed over and killed the child Tuesday in front of her home at 4731 Lily Pond dr. ne.

The child's father, Dickie Jackson, 28, an attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital and a part-time worker on Burch's ice truck, had left the vehicle and entered the house several minutes before the tragedy.

Michael Webster, 7, of 4357 Lily Pond dr. ne., told the jury he saw Virginia Carol run across the road and fall. He said the truck backed over the child as she lay in the street.

Burch testified he did not know his truck had run over the child until he heard screams of children.

Burch had been held in $800 bond—$500 for action of the coroner, and $300 on a charge of unsafe backing. He will face a Traffic Court judge June 16 on the latter charge.

Villa Heights, Md., Boy Severely Hurt by Car

A 5-year-old Villa Heights, Md., boy suffered a possible skull fracture and internal injuries yesterday when struck by an automobile at 56th and Randolph sts., Villa Heights.

Prince Georges County police said the boy, Ronald O'Brien, son of Wilbur O'Brien, 3904 56th pl., was hit by a car driven by Stanley E. Moreland, 38, of Lanham, Md. The victim was brought to Children's Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad.

Bethlehem Steel Refuses Increase To Shipbuilders

New York, June 2 (U.P.)—Bethlehem Steel today turned down the wage demands of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO).

The company said wage increases for its Atlantic Coast shipyard employes "are completely unwarranted at this time."

Bethlehem Steel held shipyard wages "stand near the top in all industries, and have increased an average of 82 per cent since 1940, while the cost of living has increased only 69 per cent, according to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. Average hourly earnings of its shipyard workers are over $1.65, the company said.

The company said the General Motors formula of tying a wage increase to the cost of living, if applied to the shpyard rates, would result in a wage decrease of 10 cents an hour.

Free Penicillin Drive Planned

An all-out public campaign against gonorrhea will be launched here soon, with free distribution of penicillin, it was learned yesterday.

All private physicians in the District have been urged to cooperate in the fight planned by the District Health Department's bureau of venereal diseases.

The plan will make available enough penicillin for 17,000 treatments of gonorrhea during the next year. The drug will be given physicians for use in their offices. It is expected to bet under way late this month or early in July, having already been indorsed by both the District Medical Society and District Medico-Chiurgical Society.

The penicillin, which costs the Health Department about 73 cents a dosage, will be sent to physicians free at their requests, a department head said. The physician, in turn, is expected to make no charge for the medicine but may charge for his services in administering it.

Couple Charges Doctor's Sterility Operation Failed

New York, June 2 (AP).—A Manhattan physician was sued today for $100,000 by a couple who claimed that failure of a terility operation on the husband caused them "humiliation, shame and disgrace."

The couple, Jack and Esther Berman, of Ellenville, N. Y., charged the doctor was "careless and negligent" in performing the operation, and that afterward Mrs. Berman became pregnant, and gave birth to a daughter.

The birth led relatives to believe Mrs. Berman had committed adultery, the suit stated. It also claimed that the childbirth caused the mother "serious and permanent injuries."

Answering the suit, Dr. Donheiser entered a general denial, but admitted that he "performed an operation on the duct of plaintiff, Jack Berman, in order to effect sterilization."

Metering the Brain . . .

The Washington Post

ELECTROENCEPHALOGRAPH IN USE—This is how wires of Georgetown University's "brain meter" are attached to the head of a person being tested. The wires are connected with the dial-board of the machine (lower left). A hospital worker is the "patient"

"Brain metering," to determine organic disorders of the brain and locate brain tumors, lesions and mental decay, has been added to services at the new Georgetown University Hospital.

Acquisition of a $3200 electroencephalograph at the hospital was disclosed yesterday by Dr. Harold Stevens, associate professor of neurology of the university. The machine will be most valuable, said Dr. Stevens, in diagnosis of epilepsy.

Other hospitals which use electroencephalographs here include George Washington University, St. Elizabeths, Walter Reed and Bethesda Naval hospitals.

Operation of the new machine was explained yesterday by Dr. Stevens. Basically, said Dr. Stevens, it records microwaves of electric energy emanating from the brain. The normally healthy brain, he said, gives out such waves in regular rhythm of about 10 movements to a second.

Such rhythms are transcribed by the electroencephalograph into uniformly wavy lines on a continuous graph paper chart. But with epileptics or persons suffering other organic brain disorders the rhythm is disrupted and the lines show wild fluctuations of the electrical output. An experienced interpreter of the charts can diagnose the patient's ills, said Dr. Stevens.

Health Lag Hit In Alexandria

A pamphlet summarizing a year-long study by the Alexandria League of Women Voters takes the Alexandria City Council and health department to task for what it terms "serious deficiencies" in the city's health program.

The pamphlet, issued yesterday, charges:

1. The Alexandria Health Department holds no clinics for expectant mothers or well babies. The Community Health Center is so crowded it can care only for babies who are sick.

2. The health department X-ray equipment stands idle most of the time because a city ordinance forbids its use for anyone but schoolteachers and indigent tuberculosis cases.

3. The Alexandria health officer is paid only $6000 a year, "not enough to get or keep an interested and inspired public health officer." The same job in Montgomery County, Md., pays $10,000, the pamphlet points out.

4. The highest paid staff nurse in the health department is paid $145 a year less than the lowest paid staff nurse in the District Health Department.

5. Insanitary conditions prevail in the city. Raw sewage flows in uncovered Hooffs Run. There is no rat control program. Bucket toilets, the pamphlet says, are prohibited by law, but the city acts as a collection agent for several hundred.

6. Alexandria is the only community in Greater Washington not to have a mass X-ray survey for tuberculosis.

7. The Alexandria Board of Health has met only five times in the past two years instead of once a month as required by city law.

8. Alexandria Hospital may have to close its doors unless it can raise $200,000 in its current drive. The city council, the pamphlet recommends, should assume greater financial responsibility toward the hospital.

The pamphlet calls for community support "in the fight for better health."

The study lauds the establishment in Alexandria of a mental hygiene clinic and the addition of limited medical and dental services for school children.

It urges more money for the city's health department, "more vigorous leadership" from the health department, and the formation of an Alexandria Community Health Council.

Five Precinct Heads Quizzed

tain Beach also denied any ulterior motive for the transfer and said, "I was a young captain at the time. I really had no right to expect to be in charge of a downtown precinct like No. 1."

Walldrodt Has No Comment

Captain Walldrodt, whose Third Precinct covers the Foggy Bottom section of Georgetown, for many years reputed to be a center of gambling activity, had no comment for reporters. Walldrodt, a former Marine, holds several police commendations.

Captain Lutz and Captain Silvea, who followed him before the grand jury, also declined comment on their testimony.

Lutz, known throughout the Police Department as "a hard-boiled cop" and a strict disciplinarian, earned a law degree at National University while on the police force. He was named first night supervisor of police when Superintendent of Police Barrett inaugurated that post after he took office, to keep a closer watch on policemen.

Silvea, a member of the force for 23 years, and a former Marine, has been in the Eleventh Precinct since 1940, and was appointed a captain last July 1.

Chest Studies Raising Fees To Hospitals

Community Chest Federation budget makers will study means to pay hospitals here full-cost fees for Chest-sponsored patients, it was learned yesterday.

At present, the Chest pays the hospitals at a flat rate of $7.50 a patient-day, which even Chest officials admit is far below the actual cost for hospital treatment and care. Hospital administrators generally agree such costs are nearer $15 a patient-day.

Federation officials said yesterday they plan to base 1949 payments to the hospitals on "amounts approximating what the hospitals charge other ward patients."

The budget committee which determines needs of Chest-financed activities is scheduled to meet next week

The Chest this year allocated $432,000 to the hospitals for Chest-sponsored patient care in area hospitals. Another $100,000 was lost to the hospitals when the Chest fund-raising drive fell $575,000 short of its goal of $3,900,000, officials said.

Under the $7.50 flat payment plan, the following hospitals reported they lost these amounts in 1947 care of Community Chest patients: Garfield, $183,719; Providence, $73,376; Columbia, $49,724; and Emergency, $2,335. Other hospitals said they had losses in similar proportion to services rendered.

Numbers Suspects Held in Home Raid

A motorcycle allegedly used to collect numbers bets, and a locked safe containing $2240 figured in an unusual gambling raid yesterday.

Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, said that for seven days his detectives observed Robert C. Thorpe, 42, of 609 New Jersey ave. nw., making collections, alternately using a convertible coupe and a motorcycle.

At 2:45 p. m. yesterday vice squad men followed Thorpe into the New Jersey ave. address, and arrested Thorpe and his wife, Mrs. Bessie P. Thorpe, 33, both of whom have police records.

Safe in Kitchen Contains $2240

In the kitchen of the home, said police, was a 2000-pound safe which they asked Thorpe to open. When Thorpe refused, the raiders called Lieutenant Blick at police headquarters, and when Blick threatened to send down safe squad members to do the job, Thorpe opened the safe, police said. In it was $2240, police said, including 16 $100 bills.

A large quantity of alleged numbers slips and numbers books also was found in the raid, said police. Thorpe and his wife, each charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips, were released in $1500 bond for arraignment today before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Both Have Been Convicted

Last week, Mrs. Thorpe was fined $50 or 60 days on each of two charges of keeping liquor without a license and selling it without a license.

Vice squad detective said they entered her home on May 7 and May 15, and in an elaborate recreation room on the first floor they were sold liquar by Mrs. Thorpe.

Thorpe has paid fines on numbers charges in 1945 and 1946, and last October 2, he, Mrs. Thorpe and another man were charged with operating a lottery at their home and possession of numbers slips.

Thorpe later paid a $50 fine when the operations against him was nol-prossed. Police records carry no notation of the disposition of Mrs. Thorpe's charges beyond "held for the grand jury."

Two Garners May Learn Fate Today

Lawrence J. Garner, 23, and his brother, George A. Garner, 25, who are on trial for the holdup murder of Taxi Driver Howard Jones, 37, probably will hear the verdict of a District Court jury today.

The defense rested yesterday, without either of the brothers having taken the witness stand to deny the confession the police claim they made, or to explain how one of them happened to be in possession of the slain man's watch, and to know where to look in the sewer for his pocketbook and change carrier.

Defense Counsel John Alvin Groghan and Louis Jongbloet contend that the confessions were given under compulsion and that the Garners are the victims of a taint of hereditary insanity that had afflicted their family for four generations. The records of St. Elizabeths Hospital showed their father was a patient there for two years, and Dr. Oscar Legault, 1101 Trenton pl. se., testified that George Garner suffered from delusions.

However, yesterday, Drs. Norman Taub and Bernard A. Cruvans of St. Elizabeths testified that they made thorough examinations of the accused brothers within a few days after they were placed under arrest, and that both men were sane.

Assistant District Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin is expected to conclude the Government's rebuttal this morning, and after hearing argument, Justice Richmond B. Keech probably will instruct the jurors sometime this afternoon.

Former Internes At Freedmen's Honor Warfield

More than 150 former internes of Freedmen's Hospital met there yesterday in dedication exercises honoring its former chief surgeons.

The services featured unveiling of an oil painting there of Dr. William A. Warfield, hospital surgeon-in-chief from 1901 to 1936. Photographs of other physicians who served the hospital were also presented and hung in the hospital foyer.

These included photographs of Dr. Daniel Hale Williams, Dr. Austin Maurice Curtis and Dr. Thomas Edward Jones, all deceased, who served the hospital as surgeons-in-chief, and Dr. Edward Arthur Balloch, late dean of Howard University School of Medicine.

Does your stenographer's WASTE basket look like this?

Maybe not! Yet it may pay you to look. Poorly spaced or smudged letters send too many sheets into the basket. This costs money and stenographic time.

Webster's Micrometric carbon paper helps to eliminate waste. A numbered scale on each sheet makes accurate spacing possible. You can remove the carbon paper with the scale, and avoid smudging your fingers or copies.

Use Micrometric! It costs no more than other quality sheets.

Hoover Fears Rising Budget

By The Associated Press

Herbert Hoover, said, in effect, yesterday that the American standard of living is threatened by the high cost of government.

"The budget three years after the First World War was about four billion dollars per annum," he said, "whereas three years after the Second World War it is 40 billion dollars.

"There are insufficient savings left in the hands of the people to repair, maintain and improve the tools of production and distribution upon which our standard of living depends.

"These figures obviously indicate the necessity for important structural changes in the Government to secure the maximum efficiency and economy."

The former President made his remarks in a letter to Senator Lodge (R., Mass.). Lodge had asked for a progress report on the work of a nonpartisan 12-man commission on organization of the executive branch of the Government. Hoover heads the commission.

Hoover told how the commission is going about its task, but said that findings should not be made public until after the election.

"Only by keeping our effort entirely removed from the political field will the final report be recognized, as Congress intended, as truly nonpartisan," he said.

Brannan Takes Office As Agriculture's Head

By The Associated Press

Charles F. Brannan took office as Secretary of Agriculture yesterday and said he would carry to farmer voters the Administration's plea for a long-range agricultural program.

He told of his plans at a news conference. Shortly before he spoke, Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) had criticized Republican congressional leaders for failing to put such farm legislation on a "must" list of bills to be passed before adjournment.

Man Charged In Slaying

A 57-year-old Alexandria mechanic was held without bail for the Alexandria grand jury yesterday, charged with the Tuesday night slaying of Mrs. Hazel Waugh, a former laundress.

William . Brown, 413 Wilkes st., pleaded innocent to the charge in Alexandria Civil and Police Court, but police said they had obtained a statement from him admitting the killing in self defense.

Mrs. Waugh, 41, also of 413 Wilkes st., was found by police lying on the floor of her bedroom. She died before an ambulance could arrive.

$15,000 False Arrest Suit Filed for Boy, 8

A $15,000 suit was filed yesterday in District Court in behalf of an 8-year-old boy who, the suit says, was arrested as a safe thief and subjected to "false arrest and false imprisonment."

Defendants in the suit are Capt. Beverly Beach, commander of the Seventh Precinct, and two of his precinct detectives, John E. Burke and Benson Taylor, jr., and Dr. William H. Stavsky, superintendent of the Receiving Home for Children.

The boy is John Leonard Crews of 2910 Olive ave. nw. Because the law does not allow a minor to institute a civil suit, the action was filed with his father, Leonard W. Crews, as plaintiff.

The suit alleges that Taylor went to the boy's home last April 21 and took the boy in a police car without informing his mother where or why he was being taken.

Later, the suit alleges, the mother called the Seventh Precinct and was told by Burke that the 8-year-old was being held "for robbing a safe."

The suit charges that the boy was held at the Receiving Home for two nights and was returned home at about 1 p. m. on April 23 by Taylor and Burke, who are alleged to have told the mother:

"We made a mistake, and you can rest assured it won't happen again. We got the wrong boy."

The suit contends the reputations of the boy and his parents have been damaged and asks $1000 actual damages and $14,000 punitive damages.

Capt. Beach when reached yesterday said he was on leave and out of town on the days cited in the suit.

NLRB Ruling On Pensions Attacked

By the Associated Press

Industry spokesmen asked Congress yesterday for legislation overthrowing the recent National Labor Relations Board ruling that employers must bargain with unions on pension plans.

T. S. Petersen, president of Standard Oil Co., of California, said the decision will launch a wave of pension demands "far exceeding in cost" the portal-to-portal suits of last year. Those suits were outlawed by special legislation after many companies protested they would be forced into bankruptcy.

Petersen told the Senate-House Committee on Labor-Management Relations that the complex job of setting up a safe pension plan cannot be left to annual contract negotiations involving perhaps a dozen unions in a single company.

Solvency "Jeopardized"

"Demands of such magnitude could jeopardize the solvency of the employers, let alone the pension plans themselves," Petersen said.

The oil executive proposed changing the National Labor Relations Act to provide that employers shall not be required by law to bargain on pension, profit-sharing and other benefits "of a social security nature."

This and other proposals handed the committee must await action, if any, at a later session of Congress. Senator Ball (R., Minn.) yesterday announced the committee will not recommend legislation at this session to amend the NLRB or the Taft-Hartley laws.

Forbes, Taylor Heard

B. C. Forbes, president of the Investors League and publisher of Forbes Magazine of Business, agreed with Petersen that the NLRB ruling "will tend to discourage, rather than encourage, the adoption of pension plans."

Forbes also asked legislation to curb industry-wide bargaining and suggested compulsory arbitration to solve strikes.

Tyre Taylor, general counsel of the Southern States Industrial Council, asked action to nullify the pension ruling, and suggested changing the Taft-Hartley Act to require that all bargaining be on the basis of a metropolitan district, a county, or a single company. He urged speed in revising the law, warning that Congress should not be "lulled into any false sense of security by the present uneasy truce in the coal and rail transportation industries."

White House negotiations in the wage dispute between three railroad unions and the Nation's carriers broke down yesterday, and the labor leaders moved to ask Congress for an airing of the case.

The Switchmen, Engineers, and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, headed by David B. Robertson, contend that President Truman has the power to grant their principal demands, since the Government is now operating the railroads.

The White House takes the position that, since all the other railroad unions constituting a membership of some 1,250,000 have accepted wage recommendations of a fact-finding board, it cannot order a new pattern for the three recalcitrant unions without the railroads' consent.

Steelman's Meetings

John R. Steelman, presidential assistant, has conducted frequent alternate meetings with the union chiefs and rail management leaders in recent days.

After talks yesterday, the White House said simply that "no time has been set for further meetings." Steelman stated he would call the parties back if any "common ground" can be found to form the basis for an agreement.

Robertson said the White House talks "have failed completely."

Later the three union leaders went into conference and began drafting what was described as a strong appeal for a Senate investigation of the controversy.

The unions were basing their petition on the ground that the rail workers are now technically Government employes. Unless a contract is granted, they contend, the seizure could be interpreted as a strikebreaking gesture.

The three unions are demanding more than the 15½ cents an hour pay increase recommended by a presidential fact-finding board—a figure accepted by all the other rail unions—and numerous changes in the working rules.

Informed sources said the carriers had offered some concessions in the working rules field, but refused to set a general wage "pattern" at a higher level than that granted to the bulk of employes.

Meanwhile, the House Interstate Commerce Committee approved a bill providing for a 20-per-cent increase in retirement annuities of railroad employes, and for varying the tax rate on the railroads according to the size of the railroad unemployment insurance fund.

Mother Born a Twin Gives Birth to Twins

Connersville, Ind., June 2 (AP).—No one was surprised when Mrs. Wayne Murray gave birth to twin boys here. Mrs. Murray is a twin and her mother is a twin. But it was a coincidence that each of two nurses caring for the babies is a twin.

Goldsborough Defers Action

ment, it wanted to block agreement.

Meeting Broken Up

That borke up the meeting, and the NLRB went to court to force Lewis to back down.

Justice Goldsborough made it plain throughout the hearing that he was not going to split these hairs with the lawyers. The court, he said, has a duty to get to the root of the case, and to avert the tragedy of a coal strike.

"The people of this country," said Goldsborough, "are now thoroughly awake to this situation. Just as sure as there is a walkout this summer, Congress is going to act, and it may be unfortunate for both management and labor. But the American people are not going to stand by and see the destruction of society."

Southern Set-up Explained

The justice said he could not see why Lewis should not deal with the Southern association. Moody would be the same negotiator, the justice added, whether he spoke for the association, or for the 400 Southern mine owners.

Attorney Hopkins earnestly explained that the association was run by its directors, among whom all the coal companies do not have an equal voice. Hopkins said an injunction would do no good, and might do great harm, because it would give the association a chance to block a contract.

The justice agreed that while a court could order people to bargain, it could not make them agree. "You can lead a horse to water . . ." he remarked.

Turning to the NLRB counsel—David Findling and Winthrop Johns—Goldsborough said;

"I'm supposed to do something to try to bring these people together. If signing this order would do more harm than good, it is not my duty to sign it."

A Word In Time

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh of Georgetown University, speaking on communism the other day at the annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board, made some telling points that ought to be pondered by the advocates of the Mundt bill. He said the best way to meet the Communist menace "is to wage war in terms of the economic and social needs of the moment, strengthen our domestic economy, assist other people to do the same" and to "expose the hollowness of the Communist claim that Soviet Russia is the champion of human freedom." At present, Congress appears to be following the opposite course. Essential reforms and progressive measures languish while the reactionary Mundt-Nixon bill is pushed. The inescapable effect is to give communism an attractive issue and democracy a shabby record.

Specific Platforms

Senator Taft's call for more explicit party programs at the Philadelphia conventions strikes us as a salutary suggestion to which both Republicans and Democrats might well pay heed. Party platforms are not intended to be entirely academic. On broad issues, at least, they have served to define differences. Nevertheless, no one can reread the 1944 convention pledges without being impressed with the mass of hazy generalities that can be, and often are, interpreted in whatever manner seems expedient. In the platform of Senator Taft's own Republican Party, for example, was a pledge to "reestablish liberty at home," whatever that means. Similar inanities can be found in the Democratic program.

It would be wise, of course, not to hope for too much in the way of more definite statements of principle. Part of the general character of party platforms is attributable to the fact that they are products of compromise. The Democrats, for instance, must draw up a program that is acceptable both to Northern New Dealers and Southern conservatives. There will be some little difficulty in obtaining agreement on a specific stand on such issues as civil rights unless one faction or the other keeps its tongue in its cheek. Furthermore, there is always the danger that efforts to outline party positions more precisely would result in longwinded declarations that are both uninteresting and unintelligible.

Perhaps, however, the platforms under Senator Taft's spur may be something more than ponderous condemnations of extravagance and sin, and that would be a blessing.

Appointive Spoils

The decision of the Republican Policy Committee to hold up confirmation of presidential appointees for the rest of the session, with certain exceptions, is motivated by purely political considerations. By leaving these positions open until next year, the incoming President (whom the Republicans hope to elect) will be enabled to dispense more patronage. In taking such action the Republicans are, of course, following customary procedure. They did not need to defend themselves against attack by citing the record of 1932 when the Senate, controlled by the Democrats, failed to confirm nearly 1200 of President Hoover's appointees. However, a bad practice is no less evil because it is of long standing. Regardless of precedents, the efficiency of the Government service is bound to be impaired, if over a period of many months numerous important positions are left vacant or occupied by appointees with highly uncertain tenure.

In the early days of the Republic, especially from the beginning of Jackson's Administration, the President, his Cabinet, and members of Congress had to devote a large part of their time to parcelling out the spoils of office. They were subjected to the importunities of voracious jobhunters, who camped on their doorsteps and invaded their privacy. Sometimes it seemed as if the chief aim of rival candidates for office in those days was to provide places for their followers in the Government service and to cast out the hangers-on of their political foes. So far as the Federal Government is concerned the crass evils of the old spoils system have disappeared, and the principle of the merit system has become well established. Unfortunately, vestiges of the old system remain today and are reflected in the attitude of politicians toward appointive posts subject to Senate confirmation.

Both the President and members of the Senate on occasion use their powers to appoint and confirm in order to further their political fortunes. Senators still regard certain appointive posts in their baliwicks as spoils reserved for their special use. So long as these practices are tolerated, the cause of good government is certain to suffer. In the present instance the Republican leadership has forfeited an unexcelled opportunity to strengthen the merit system by breaking away from this vestigial spoils system and putting the interest of the public in efficient administration above the selfish interest of their party.

Supervised Broadcasts

The Senate acted wisely in passing the full 28-million-dollar foreign information appropriation, despite the current furor over the "Voice of America." No purpose would have been served by killing the patient in order to cure the defects in the foreign broadcast program. Senator Smith took a sensible line when he stated: "We are definitely opposed to any implication that the Government 'get out of the broadcasting business.' We oppose also any suggestion that this work be discontinued or curtailed. It must be continued with full vigor, but with prompt recognition and correction of any mistakes in its execution . . . If there are more skeletons in the closet to haunt this program, let us dispose of them." The 28-million-dollar figure, including 11½ millions for broadcasts, should be sufficient to enable the State Department to give the program the direction and supervision it so obviously needs. There can be no excuse now for further inadequacies.

If the foreign broadcasts were not of importance in presenting a true picture of this country, all the buck-passing that has occurred since the "Voice of America" has been on the pan would be laughable. The State Department has soft-pedaled its own ultimate responsibility as the agency in charge of the programs and has sought to unload blame onto the National Broadcasting Co. In turn NBC, in almost military fashion, has skipped the echelon of executives to vent its ire on two bottom-rung employes, Mr. Rene Borgia, who wrote the objectionable scripts, and Mr. Alberto Gandero, who was supposed to supervise them. NBC fired them both, and Mr. Gandero is now in Cuba. The whole fiasco seems to have been promoted more by stupidity and naivette than maliciousness. In testimony before Congress Tuesday Mr. Borgia quoted as his "official" sources for a series of broadcasts about American States such works as WPA Guidebooks and John Gunther's Inside U. S. A.

The difficulty with the much-criticized broadcasts to Latin America is not that they did not contain elements of truth, but that, divorced from their context, they amounted to gross distortions. Cromwell put the problem in perspective when he once told an artist to paint the wart on his nose, but not to make his whole nose a wart. To explain the United States accurately is a job calling for great skill and finesse that cannot be done by aliens unfamiliar with the conditions about which they write. Though we have some doubts as to the value of the purely entertainment features of "Voice of America" broadcasts, we think there is a legitimate function for information programs that attempt to answer questions of foreigners. But such programs should be done well or not at all. Clearly the "Voice of America" broadcasts should be restricted to those which can be given thorough supervision. With the augmented foreign information appropriation, the State Department is more than ever accountable to Congress and the public for the responsibility it assumes.

Women In Politics

The virtual naming of Representative Mary T. Norton as chairman of the credentials committee of the Democratic National Convention means that women have made a little more progress toward crashing "smoke-filled room" councils. This is the first time a woman has been made top chairman of a convention committee, though women served in 1944 as cochairmen. Women's recognition in convention politics—and all other kinds—has been snaillike during the 28 years they have had the vote. Many States still do not give them 50-50 representation as delegates to national conventions. Though there are now one and a half million more women of voting age than men, the proportion of women in Congress and even in State and city legislative bodies is very small. Only seven women in addition to the seven who now hold seats are running for Congress in the present campaign, an eighth having been defeated in the primary. And women political leaders have seldom if ever exerted much influence in inner party caucuses.

One reason for this is that women are not as politically active at the grassroots as are men. The National Education Association recently released a sample study showing that, in 1940, 75 out of every 100 men voted, but only 61 out of every 100 women. And when it comes to working in parties, polling precincts, running for office, women trail men at much greater length. They are more inclined to work for welfare goals through their clubs. Representative Norton, who has been in politics 24 years, decries this, insisting that the more direct way to their ends is through their party organizations. Probably women shy away from this because they possess, more than do men, the American social prejudice against "going into politics." Polls show that mothers generally don't want their children to seek political careers. Also women find it harder to go places in man-run political organizations than in their own clubs.

Yet women have a great stake in politics because of their concern for their children's future, and because they own about 70 per cent of private wealth. They have more leisure than men to work at politics. And, according to aptitude experts, politics should be their natural field because they are specially endowed with insight, tact and human understanding. What is chiefly lacking is an interest in public affairs. This, it might be remembered, came to the women of Europe the hard way.

Czech And Finn

The determination of the Administration not to write off either Czechoslovakia or Finland in spite of recent events has been amply justified. Finland's is the happier lot. We made a slip the other day when in passing we referred to Finland as situated behind the iron curtain. The fact is that, measured in a tolerable degree of independence, Finland is west of it. This has lately been demonstrated. The Diet, after hearing a government report that in 1945 the Communist Minister of the Interior, Yrjo Leino, had delivered some Finns and Esthonians to the Soviet government, called for his resignation. Leino refused to quit, and President Paasikivi then fired him. Immediately a series of strikes, organized by the Communists, broke out, but Leino was not reinstated, though the President did make a concession to the agitators. He put in Leino's place a non-Communist named Eino Kilpi, who, though friendly to Moscow, is by no means a puppet like Leino, and added a Communist to the cabinet, but without portfolio.

Thus the Finns rode out of the crisis without "taking the Czechoslovak road," urged upon them by the native Communists and their masters in Moscow. It will be recalled that it was on the occasion of a similar incident that the Communists in Prague grabbed the government. The same issue of misusing the police arose out of the administration of Minister of the Interior Vaclav Nosek, and the cabinet resigned, thus leaving a vacuum for the Communists which they proceeded to fill. Since then a police state has been fastened on the Czechs. But even in Czechoslovakia, which is less actionist than Finland, the spirit of liberty is still very much alive, as the recent "election" testifies. No fewer than 800,000 Czechs went to the polls and left blank ballots in the boxes. The number of dissidents must be far higher than that. The 800,000 figure emerges in spite of intimidation at the polls and allegedly crooked counting by the Ministry of the Interior. How many more of the 6,500,000 who dutifully voted for the Popular Front would have joined them if they had had the courage of the 800,000 is, of course, guesswork. Doubtless the number is sizable, and proves that the Russian fear of a setback for communism in a free election—which is said to have persuaded Moscow to back the Communist coup—was well founded.

The same fear must now be arising over the free elections which Finland will hold in three weeks. No country has a fiercer attachment to liberty than Finland. What has been done to temper its independence has not injured its essential freedoms. The military pact contains a pledge freely given by the Finns that in case of an invasion which Finland feels it cannot cope with unaided, it will call upon the Soviet Union. Under the peace treaty it likewise engages not to join any coalition against Moscow. It was under this promise that Finland stayed out of the Marshall Plan, for the Russians interpreted the Marshall Plan as an anti-Soviet move. In all likelihood the sense of outrage which was felt throughout Finland over the Leino incident will be reflected in the elections in a diminution in the 25 per cent present strength of the Communists. Clearly from neither Czech nor Finn could the Soviet Union expect any substantial aid in any aggressive move against western Europe. They may, indeed, be wondering whether they have not gone too far in Czechoslovakia.

Imponderables

John J. McCloy, President of the World Bank, has called attention to the tremendous importance for the success of the European recovery program of imponderable factors not subject to statistical measurement. If, for example, the fear of war that hangs over Europe can be removed, and if Europeans and Americans alike are determined to make the program work, Mr. McCloy thinks it will work. As evidence of the driving force of intangible recovery aids, he cites the impetus that will be given to agricultural production in France if the French farmer gains confidence in the franc, and the stimulus that will be given to trade—that "multiplier of physical capacity"—by the removal of trade restrictions.

In this connection this country must, as Mr. McCloy says, set an example, and he explains it as "righteous economic conduct." We cannot hope successfully to combat unsound financial practices in other countries or break down barriers to trade among European countries if our own budgets become unbalanced and our own trade policies show a reactionary trend toward higher protection and increased trade barriers. In short, American social, economic and political behavior in the next four years is going to be one of the highly significant imponderable factors in furthering or retarding European recovery. It is a sobering thought that the people of this country cannot afford to forget.

TERMINUS AD QUEM

As long as you are somewhere above ground even across the sea, beyond the hood of globe, while we play hide and seek around ridged continents, so long each day is good.
Though you are absent, fullness is my core,
my center far outside me, my sealed heart.
As long as you are somewhere, I can score our lost togetherness on future's chart and go on living, and embrace the sin
(some call it so) of taking from your hand all there can be of paradise to win here, now, with you, and leave the vast unplanned world where you might not be to the mistake
I dream too many times before I wake.

Depleted Resources

In addition to war and overpopulation, the rapid depletion of natural resources is partly responsible for the present disruption of world economy.

Natural resources are of two kinds—those which can be replaced and those which cannot. Cut a tree and you can plant another; dig and burn a ton of coal and the earth is poorer by that ton. Conservation can replace forests and topsoil, but mined minerals are gone for good—as far as we are concerned.

Each year men cut more trees than they plant, thus reducing the forest area, with consequent floods, soil erosion and changes in climate. Each year the Mississippi, the Yangtze, the Ganges and other river systems carry millions of tons of topsoil out to sea.

As for mineral resources, geologists tell us we have used up more coal, iron, copper and other fuels and metals in the past 100 years than in the entire five or six thousand.

World production of coal, the basic fuel of modern industry, was—in millions of tons—11 in 1800, 81 in 1850, 800 in 1900 and in 1938 around 1300. Coal and iron production are today 120 times as great as they were a century and a half ago. Some of the more easily available sources of coal and iron in the British Isles and Northeastern United States have been largely exhausted and must now be mined at higher cost and the product transported over greater distances.

Petroleum offers a peculiarly significant example of the exhaustion of irreplaceable resources. Petroleum production began 90 years ago in the United States and provided a cheap source of light, heat and lubricants. By 1900, United States petroleum production had risen to 60 million barrels per year; 35 years later, it reached 1000 million barrels. Instead of being carefully husbanded, North American petroleum resources have been squandered with reckless profligacy.

War, over-population and the depletion of natural resources represent three major causes of the present world-wide economic breakdown. All three could be brought under human control and must be if the human race is to survive. To multiply population while destroying the means of subsistence is suicidal.

Subsidy Outcome

This writer submits that if farm subsidies have come to stay, then the first step has been taken toward nationalization of the land in the United States. Nonrevolutionary method leading toward collectivism can vary in its initial stage. In this country, it has taken the form of nationalization of excess farm production. One aspect of this process, however, never varies. That is the business of baiting an important segment of the population into dependence on government by attractive money benefits.

This year, for example, there is included in the Marshall Plan for Europe an item of almost one billion dollar's worth of tobacco. This enormous sum represents excess tobacco production nationalized or bought by our Government to support the price. The basic procedure of nationalizing excess tobacco production, however, is no different from that which resulted in the Government buying billions of eggs or billions of pounds of potatoes which have been destroyed.

Normally, in a healthy, competitive economy, if a producer can't make money because his product is a glut on the market, he tries producing something else. If that fails, then he simply goes to work for some other producer whose product is salable because it is in short supply. And nothing goes to waste.

Unfortunately, waste, taxation and the shadow of bankruptcy never stops governments determined to manage and dominate. The story of government domination, which promises penny-wise security in lieu of free competitive enterprise, is as old as it is grim. It has never led and will never lead to anything but economic slavery for all those who believe they can permanently benefit from methods which impose ruinous taxation on the entire country.

Long Fasts

I was amused at the story in The Washington Post of May 31 about the doctors being astonished at a Chinese girl fasting 19 days.

The statement that "normally a girl undergoing such a fast would be in extremely weakened condition, perhaps even in a coma" is a lot of hokum. Anybody with any experience at all with fasting knows better than that. Even a newspaper man should be able to recall fasts that have lasted more than 30 days. Terence McSweeney went over 90.

"Communist Stratagem"

May I commend your May 29 editorial "Communist Stratagem"? The fight against the establishment of a foreign-controlled totalitarian dictatorship in this country must be won in the people's hearts and not in the legislative halls. If people don't want liberty then no amount of legislation will give it to them.

We have been menaced by foreign-controlled totalitarian dictatorships before. Napoleon Bonaparte tried it and failed. Hitler tried it and failed. Stalin cannot win if the people continue to believe in this as a land of freedom and opportunity.

But if our legislators feel that the will of the people to resist foreign tyranny is not strong enough to resist the siren call of the Fosters, the Wallaces and Marcantonios, if they are afraid that the American people may be weaned away from the principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, then the legislators had better go back home and learn something from their constitutions, before attempting to pass anything like the Mundt-Nixon bill.

We do not need a Mundt-Nixon bill to maintain the eternal vigilance which is the price of our liberty. We don't have to have the "Commie" tagged. We can recognize him as soon as he opens his mouth and begins to spout the "party line." And if, in an emergency, he begins to act like "Hans" did in 1940, then we will know exactly how to handle him with the laws we already have.

Electoral College Reform

You printed on May 20 a letter from Mr. Simeon Goldstein of New York in opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment to "abolish" the electoral college. He fears that the change would deprive the large States of their power while leaving unimpaired the disproportionate influence of the small States (due to the two extra electoral votes allowed each State regardless of size).

He assumes the principal answer of the proponents to such an objection as he raises to be an appeal to State sovereignty, and manufactures a specious counter-argument based on the indivisibility of sovereignty.

The proposed amendment (embodied in H. J. Res. 9 and S. J. Res. 200) does not, of course, "nationalize" the vote for President. It does not actually "abolish" the electoral college. Rather, it provides that the electoral vote of each State shall be divided in proportion to the popular vote therein.

The concession of the two extra votes is probably of much less significance than Mr. Goldstein suggests, except for ratification of the amendment. Thirteen States could block such a change, and it is quite possible they would do so if they were deprived of their 26 extra votes in the electoral college. But that is likely to be the only issue on which those 13 States would cooperate.

Aside from population, they have nothing in common, except the fact that eight of them are in the Rocky Mountain area. Those 13 States "earn," on the basis of population, 22 electoral votes, fewer than any one of the six largest States, and their "earned" and "unearned" votes total only one more than New York's 47.

Compare those 26 extra votes with the 22 votes which Dewey would have received in 1944 in one State alone (his own) under the proposed election system. In both 1940 and 1944 there were about three million Republican votes in New York State which were counted for the candidate those three million citizens had voted against. Three million votes are more than the total vote cast in 1944 for both candidates in those 13 smallest States.

The 22 electoral votes which would have been cast for Dewey in 1944 under the proposed amendment actually strengthened his opponent. If the ballots cast in New York that year against Roosevelt had been divided up among the votes cast for him, each of the latter would carry with it 9/10 of a vote against him—and that is exactly what happened when the State's electoral votes were cast as a unit. In Ohio, on the other hand, each popular vote for Dewey carried with it, in the electoral college vote, 99/100 of a vote for Roosevelt.

The greater accuracy of the electoral vote is, however, only one of the advantages of the proposed amendment. Consider what would happen to a one-party region under a proportional allocation of the electoral college vote. The absence of the Republican Party in the South is probably due today as much or more to a feeling of hopelessness than to a memory of reconstruction days. If every Republican vote in the South could be counted in the final return instead of being merely a futile gesture, there would be an incentive to real political activity in Dixie.

The most compelling reason for a change in our electoral system, however, is the evil inherent in the determination of United States policy to secure the vote of an extremely small minority in an important State. The reports of the House and the Senate Committees on the Judiciary state:

"'. . . our present electoral-college system not only permits, but actually invites and encourages the domination of presidential campaigns by small, organized, minority groups within the large pivotal States. Political strategists, through expediency if not necessity, make direct and overt appeals to these particular groups. The system aggravates and accentuates the building up within these States of religious, racial and economic blocs to the detriment of minorities and majorities alike."

Personal Campaigning

By Malvina Lindsay

President's Testing

THAT HARDY old American institution, personal political campaigning, is again demonstrating its vitality. President Truman's western trip with its numerous personal appearances and "impromptu" talks (though avowedly nonpolitical), is testimony to this. Governor Dewey, Senator Taft, former Governor Stassen, all found in their primary campaigning they needed to let the people look them over and shake hands with them. Governor Dewey, symbol to many of the stiff New Yorker, even followed in Oregon the Coolidge formula of donning Indian headdress.

Though this is the era of radio, of newsreels, of direct by mail advertising, of wireless photography, of daily newspapers delivered from Coast to Coast, the candidate in the flesh is still grabbing the spotlight—and apparently the votes. Though this is a time of such dangerous uncertainty that the voter more than usual is thinking of issues and programs, yet he still wants to measure with eye and ear the man who may put these into effect.

Perhaps voters are now doubly interested in personal appraisal of candidates since they recognize that events move so fast that a leader frequently has to act on his own rather than follow outmoded party platforms and promises.

THE WAY in which the public responds to personality in leaders is demonstrated in the recent poll by Fortune magazine concerning a group of Presidents and presidential candidates of recent years. The two Roosevelts and General Eisenhower easily led in the popular estimate of greatness.

Yet it cannot be said that voters respond only to candidates' magnetism, glamour and gladhanding, or that showmanship alone can win an election. Homely qualities also have their political value. Hence President Truman, despite his lack of man-on-horseback front, is likely to be well received in his trainside chats. He knows the language of Jackson County, Mo., farmers, which is the language of most other counties of the Nation. He may not bring thousands to their feet cheering in public meetings, but he definitely knows how to establish warm, easy relations when speaking informally to small groups.

He also has personality traits to which most Americans respond, simple direct friendliness and complete lack of side. He imparts without effort a genuine personal sense of the democratic spirit, a quality for which American voters are always on the alert.

None of the presidential candidates in recent tours of the hustings has put on personality shows. It is unlikely there will be any color to the campaign such as was given in the past by such glamour boy candidates as Andrew Jackson, John C. Fremont and his wife, Jessie; Rail Splitter Abe Lincoln, "Little Giant" Douglas, Teddy Roosevelt, silvery tongued William Jennings Bryan, "Happy Warrior" Al Smith and F. D. R.

BUT personal appeal to the voter there will be aplenty, even though conditions, to Republicans at least, may seem somewhat the same as in 1920 when Warren G. Harding was elected from a front porch. For no matter how well supported by his party organization, how certain of victory any candidate may feel, he will realize that he can't neglect building up his support at the grass roots. The terrain ahead may well be the hardest one any President has faced. And 1952 is certainly in nobody's bag.

About a century ago George Caleb Bingham, a Missouri artist, who also dabbled in politics, became disgusted with politics and politicians and transferred some of his impressions to canvas. In a series of paintings depicting political campaigns he shows candidates in plug hats and long white alpaca coats importuning voters—perhaps a small group in front of a tavern, perhaps a rural audience gathered to hear a stump speaker. The inevitable cider barrel and dogs are included. The paintings were so realistic, often including personalities of the day, that one pot-bellied political leader, recognizing himself sitting pompously on a platform, challenged Bingham to a duel.

But for all the ignorance and crudeness showing in these audiences, the painter also managed to depict in some of the faces a sense of the pride and personal dignity that free men feel when they sit in judgment on candidates pleading to be their representatives in democratic government. It is a healthy sign that American voters still enjoy that pride of citizenship and that even Presidents must court the people's approval.

"Cease Fire"

In your May 27 editorial, "Cease Fire," you took the position that there should be a delay in lifting the embargo on arms and supplies to Israel. May I remind you that delay means death to that many more Israelis and that you are following classical double dealing tactics if you speak politely and enthusiastically about Zionist aims and at the same time further measures to defeat Zionist purposes?

Delay means death to Israelis. It is as simple as that. I had the impression that The Washington Post was friendly toward Israel until such a statement appeared. One can not further the work of Hitler and keep clean hands no matter how acceptable the motives may appear.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Middle Eastern Policy

WITHOUT counting any chickens that are not yet hatched, it is now clear that organized warfare can be stopped in Palestine by the United States and Great Britain acting jointly for the United Nations. The military and diplomatic developments since the British mandate ended on May 15 have shown beyond any reasonable doubt that the only forces capable of fighting a serious war in Palestine are the Haganah and Abdullah's legion. The Egyptian incursion, the Syrian and Iraqui raids are of minor importance and can easily be dealt with if there is no war between Trans-Jordan and Israel.

LIPPMANN

To achieve an armistice and then peace in Palestine is a matter primarily of imposing an armistice and negotiating a treaty between Trans-Jordan and Israel. The crux of the problem has been to induce Mr. Bevin to use his influence in Trans-Jordan to bring about an armistice and a treaty of peace. There are good grounds for hoping that not only American diplomacy but London but even more than that the pressure of influential British opinion have been persuasive. The scandal of a British satellite army defying the United Nations had to be ended, and we may be confident that it has been.

THERE IS now in sight the main outline of an honorable settlement which will fit the vital interests of all concerned: namely, the expansion of Abdullah's kingdom up to the partition line, except for the international enclave of Jerusalem; a treaty of peace and alliance between the enlarged Trans-Jordan and the state of Israel; and then a confederation with economic union between them. This would bring into existence a Middle Eastern commonwealth which would be under the joint protection of Great Britain and the United States. Instead of Britain and America being divided over Zionism and pan-Arabism they would be brought together in the common task of establishing security and promoting prosperity in the central strategic position of the Middle East.

The development of this mixed confederation would not threaten any other Arab state. It would not threaten Egypt—how could it? It would not threaten Iraq with which Abdullah is closely connected by dynastic ties. It would not threaten Saudi Arabia, which is far away and moreover under American protection. The large Christian minorities and the Druses in Lebanon and Syria will be far more secure as the neighbors of a mixed confederation than they could ever hope to be if Palestine were to become a province of a pan-Arabian empire.

IN THE public controversy which has grown up around British and American policy in Palestine, the argument has often degenerated into charges that the American attitude is determined by the Jewish vote and the British attitude by imperialism and oil. It would be well to stop these recriminations and to recognize that the real question underlying all the others is whether the vital interests of Britain, America, and the western world in the Middle East can be safeguarded by a policy founded on the Arab League.

There are Englishmen and Americans who believe that this can be done, and apparently Mr. Bevin has been one of them. But there are others in Britain and America who take the view that the Arab League is an artificial structure which is held together only by arousing fanatical animosity against the non-Arab world, first against France, then against Zionism, then against Britain and America. Those who differ with Mr. Bevin and with some of our own officials in the State Department argue that to appease and promote the Arab League will mean in the end the expulsion of all the western nations from the Middle East. They regard a policy based on the Arab League as a fatal misconception, destined to lead not to the safeguarding but to the destruction of British and American vital interests.

THEY HOLD that the sound policy in the Middle East is to deal firmly and justly but separately with Trans-Jordan, with Egypt, with Saudi Arabia, and not to deal with them as a unit. For they are politically united only insofar as they ignore their real differences because they are aroused temporarily against the outer world. The political condition of the Middle East is much too primitive for the formation in this generation of a peaceable confederation of Arab states. And therefore a policy which rests on the assumption that such a confederation exists, or is about to exist, can lead only to frustration, disappointment, miscalculation, and perhaps disaster.

Reciprocal Trade Bill Attacked By Labor, Business Opponents

By The Associated Press

Labor and business groups banged away yesterday at the House-adopted one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act.

For the CIO, Secretary James B. Carey said the legislation would throw the country back "to the log-rolling and tariff bickering of the old days."

For the United States Chamber of Commerce, Clem D. Johnston, of Roanoke, Va., said the present law should be extended unchanged to June 12, 1951. This is what the Administration wants.

They testified before the Senate Finance Committee on the bill which would amend the present law to give Congress a veto over tariff reductions if they exceed limits recommended by the Tariff Commission.

Way Law Stands

As it is now, the President can put into force tariff reductions up to 50 per cent without congressional approval. The cuts are negotiated with other countries which agree to make a balancing reduction.

Committee Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.) told reporters he would be agreeable to dropping the veto idea if the Tariff Commission is given "an effective role" in making trade treaties.

Other Republican leaders have looked critically at the veto provision. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said he doesn't want it. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) thinks it isn't necessary, but that Congress should set some binding rate-fixing standards. Vandenberg favors letting the President exceed commission figures, in the national interest, and make it clear he has done so.

Gerard Swope Heard

The hearing also developed:

1. A statement by Gerard Swope, honorary president of the General Electric Co. and chairman of the Citizens Committee for Reciprocal World Trade, that the House bill would reverse the basic principle of the trade act. He defined this as encouragement of tariff bargaining among free nations.

2. A convention by the National Foreign Trade Council that the Tariff Commission is "ill adapted to perform the function of tariff making."

3. Difference of views between two members of the Tariff Commission—Chairman Oscar B. Ryder, Democrat, and John P. Gregg, Republican—over the idea of giving the commission a policy-making job.

Commission's Function

Ryder questioned the advisability of making the commission a policy-making agency. Gregg wrote that it wouldn't be inconsistent with its present functions, or damage its position as a fact-finding agency.

Johnston is proprietor of a public warehouse in Roanoke, Va. He said that to give the Tariff Commission power to say how high or low rates could be without serious harm to American industry "would make that organization vulnerable to the pressure of affected interests to a degree that might challenge the objectivity of this valuable agency."

Johnston opposed passage of the House bill. He said its enactment would be interpreted as a reversal of the United States attitude in respect to international cooperation in recovery and restoration of healthy world trade.

British Lords Refuse to Suspend Death Penalty

London, June 2 (AP).—The House of Lords refused tonight to go along with the House of Commons in suspending the death penalty in Britain for five years.

By a vote of 181 to 28, the Lords struck from the Commons-approved criminal justices bill a clause suspending hangings. The vote cut across party lines.

Suspension of capital punishment was approved by the Commons in April by a 23-vote margin. Most legislative observers predicted the Commons will now agree to restore the death penalty. If Commons votes to reinsert the clause and approves the bill three times, the measure would become law despite the Lords' disapproval.

Chile Takes Bakeries

Santiago, Chile, June 2 (AP).—The government ordered the army to take over the operation of bakeries in Santiago and Valpariaso today after 5000 bakers struck for higher pay. A bread shortage developed quickly.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Promise And Performance

THE TERRIBLE floods in the Northwest are a kind of handwriting on the wall for anyone who cares to read. It is a warning, in words a mile high, of the cost of failure.

Childs

The tragedy in Oregon, so vividly described in the press and on the radio, comes in the immediate aftermath of another event that put Oregon in the headlines. That was the Republican primary fiercely contested by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Harold Stassen.

They talked about housing. They talked about the development of river basins and flood control. And then the rains came and the floods came, to show that promises are empty unless they are backed by more than words.

Under the pressure of high-priced lobbyists, the Republican Congress is chipping away at the Tennessee Valley Authority. TVA has demonstrated that it can control devastating floods and at the same time produce low-cost power to benefit a whole region. On at least three different occasions the TVA system has functioned to prevent damage from flood waters.

It is fairly clear that only through such an over-all coordinated approach as TVA can the job on our river valleys be done. Only through such an all-out attack can the evils of erosion be checked and the damage done by man be overcome.

The Army Engineers have spent hundreds of millions of dollars on flood control over many, many years, and yet year after year the headlines tell of mounting flood damage. The Army Engineers are an efficient corps, but no amount of efficiency can compensate for the pick-and-choose tactics that result from the grab-bag of flood control held out by Congress.

STASSEN, in his campaign in Oregon, flatly opposed regional authorities for river basins. Dewey at first said he favored "development on a regional basis for the drainage valleys of the Missouri, Columbia and the Willamette Rivers." Two days later, however, he announced that a Missouri or a Columbia River Valley Authority would be the equivalent of "tyranny." In Oregon they explain this sudden shift by saying that Dewey got some pointed prompting from David B. Simpson, a Portland realtor who was one of the New York Governor's principal backers.

A Columbia Valley Authority is one of the hot issues in Oregon politics. Ardent boosters for a CVA want a system of storage reservoirs near the headwaters of the river. These storage basins would back the surplus water and release it gradually. The possibility of a disaster like that at Vanport would be greatly reduced.

This is not merely a wordy argument among politicians. Behind the politicians' promises are men, women, children fleeing for their lives before a wall of dirty water that sweeps down unchecked.

HOUSING is another issue which sometimes, in political speeches and before congressional committees, has an empty sound. But the refugees who fled from Vanport could tell us something about "housing."

They were living in flimsy, barracks-like apartments built as temporary quarters for the thousands of warworkers who came to Oregon's shipyards. Most of them were veterans with their families. They could find no other place to live.

Here in Washington the little band of men who rule the House have decided there shall be no housing legislation from this Congress. They are sabotaging a measure already passed by the Senate.

After long and patient effort, Senator Robert A. Taft got a bill through the Senate providing for a modest minimum of houses to be built with a Government subsidy. Because of this provision in the bill the oligarchy in the House means to kill it.

While the news dispatches said nothing about the schools at Vanport, it is a good guess that they were inadequate or worse. Many States, overwhelmed by the influx of warworkers, have been unable to provide enough school rooms or enough teachers. The same little band in the House is holding up a bill to grant a minimum of Federal aid for education.

We are going to hear a lot more promises from the politicians. When the two parties gather in Philadelphia to nominate their candidates, they will put together platforms, which are traditionally full of promises.

Some day people may begin to wonder a little about the relation between promise and performance. Perhaps even the political carpenters at Philadelphia will think about it a little as they promise and promise and promise.

Senate Group Turns Down Buchanan for Power Position

By the United Press

A Senate Commerce subcommittee late yesterday advised against the confirmation of Thomas C. Buchanan's nomination to the Federal Power Commission.

The subcommittee voted 2 to 1 to report the nomination adversely to the full committee.

Buchanan is a former member of the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission, and was nominated by President Truman over strong opposition.

Senator Albert Hawkes (R., N. J.) joined Subcommittee Chairman Homer Capehart in opposing confirmation. Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) favored confirmation.

The opposition vote—along party lines—followed the Senate Republican Policy Committee's go-slow stand on presidential nominees to long-term commission positions.

Witnesses charged at hearings on the appointment that Buchanan did not possess the proper temperament for a position on the quasi-judicial power commission.

[President Truman nominated Buchanan April 15, about a month after he had withdrawn, without explanation, the nomination of Burton H. Behling to the same post. The withdrawal came only 30 minutes before the Senate Commerce Committee was due to begin consideration of the appointment.

[In the absence of a fifth member, the commission has been split over the issue of amending the Natural Gas Act along the lines proposed in the Moore-Rizley bill, which would have fixed statutory standards for natural gas rate-making.—Editor's note.]

Group Going To China for ECA Survey

A survey mission to China was announced yesterday by Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman. It will report on industrial projects to be financed by ECA for recovery.

Most of the experts, Hoffman said, will leave San Francisco Friday by plane with Roger D. Lapham, chief of ECA's special mission to China. They will reach Shanghai June 7.

The survey group is headed by Charles L. Stillman, Southport, Conn. He is vice president and treasurer of Time, Inc., and a director of the Foreign Policy Association. Their report is due August 1.

Other members are Edgar M. Hastings, Richmond, Va., transportation engineer; P. R. Paulick, Library, Pa., mining engineer; Sherman Chickering, San Francisco, lawyer; John D. Sumner, Buffalo, N. Y., and Paul C. Parker, Portland, Oreg., economists; Dr. Raymond T. Moyer, Washington, agricultural adviser; Charles A. Powel, East Pittsburgh, Pa., and J. D. Whittemore, New York, electrical utility engineers; Hugh A. Wilkinson, Washington, administration officer; and James Grant, Watertown, Mass., special assistant to Stillman.

The group will study proposals for the development of railroad, factory, power and other industrial projects to build up the Chinese economy. ECA expects to spend about 60 million dollars of the $33,000,000 aid fund voted by Congress for industrial purposes. The rest will go into food and raw materials.

Harriman in Paris To Work for Recovery

Paris, June 2 (U.P.).—W. Averell Harriman, roving Ambassador for the European Recovery Program, arrived in Paris by plan from the United States today, and said he would set up headquarters immediately.

Harriman said he would maintain headquarters in Paris indefinitely, although he would visit the 15 other Marshall Plan nations from time to time.

Cripps Admits Trade Figure Was Off 46%

London, June 2 (U.P.).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps frankly conceded today the Labor government had underestimated its trade deficit for the first six months of 1948 by 292 million dollars—or 46 per cent.

If the present trend continues, the government may have to cut further its imports of food and raw materials, he told a press conference. These already have been pared to what the cabinet regards as the minimum necessary for recovery.

Britain has abandoned hope of balancing her trade by the end of the year unless world prices fall, Cripps said. He blamed the government's trouble on rising prices, particularly in the United States.

"The governing factor in the whole situation will no doubt be the American internal price level, which powerfully affects the whole world price level in primary commodities and foodstuffs," Cripps said.

Cripps' economic survey issued less than three months ago estimated the deficit for the first six months of the year at only 348 million dollars. The difference between Cripps' estimate and the true deficit is 292 million dollars.

Breaking down the figures, Cripps said the government actually switched more purchases from the dollar to the nondollar area that the economic survey had thought possible.

Guatemala Request On Devine Accepted

The Army, acceding to a request by Guatemala, has withdrawn Col. Mark A. Devine as military attache to that country.

The Army acknowledged yesterday that Devine has been withdrawn, but gave no details.

Guatemala reportedly complained that Devine was "too friendly" with persons opposed to the present government there. Army sources said Devine already has returned to this country, but he could not be located for comment.

Commodity Trader Moore Denies Price Hiking Charges

Ralph W. Moore yesterday denied an Agriculture Department complaint accusing him of issuing a "false, misleading and deceptive memorandum" last fall designed to cause lard price increases.

Moore, a Washington commodity trader, contends a statement he issued last October 1 contained figures on contemplated purchases of fats and oils which had been quoted previously in official statements by President Truman and the department.

The complaint filed by the department yesterday accused Moore of issuing the memorandum for the purpose of causing lard prices to go up so he could profit on his holdings. It said Moore held futures contracts covering 670,000 pounds of lard.

The department's Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) also contended Moore violated its regulations by failing to report his market holdings of cotton, lard and grains.

Moore said in a statement yesterday:

"This memorandum was not written as a press release, nor was it intended to be one. Because of my criticisms of the department's purchasing policies, officials of this agency have sought to retaliate through persecution."

Moore said his memorandum was "highly critical" of the department's buying program.

A hearing on the complaint against Moore has been set for July 7 before a referee to be named by the department.

MEN'S WALKING SHORTS

Men learned to wear shorts in Mandalay, India and Africa long before we realized their sensible practicability. Then, in our American manner, we accepted the idea. California tailors acquired a fabric of fine cotton and rayon, styled and tailored it and produced these handsome Field Club shorts.

Field Club Walking Shorts, $7.95

Correct length . . . plenty of pockets.
Fly, seams and pockets are hand-stitched.
Colors: Natural, oyster and sand dune.
Sizes: 30 to 44.

2 Huge Forest Fires Raging In N. Ontario

Toronto, June 2 (AP).—Gigantic forest fires in northern Ontario roared across more than 125,000 acres today, destroying rich timber, killing wildlife and endangering lumber camps.

Biggest danger spot in the lake-studded north was the Mississagi provincial forest, at one point only 35 miles northeast of Sault Ste. Marie.

Two huge fires—one covering almost 50,000 acres, astride the unfinished Chapleau-Blind River road and another sweeping over 40,000 acres farther south—now are only about 10 miles apart.

A 70-mile single front will be established if the two fires are linked.

A prohibition of nonessential travel in the area was announced yesterday by the Provincial Lands Department. It bars tourists, trappers and fishermen from 50 million acres of bushland.

This area stretches from the Manitoba border to the Quebec border, north to the Canadian National Railways' northern line and south to North Bay. It also includes Algonquin Park, south of North Bay. Normal travel to and from most resorts will not be affected, however.

Housing Bill On 'Must' List

Helen Gahagan Douglas (R., Calif.) had announced that only 70 more signatures were needed to complete a petition to discharge the committee from consideration and bring the bill to the floor at once.

Mr. Truman's call for passage of housing, Federal aid to education and an unmodified extension of the Trade Agreements Act at yesterday's Democratic leadership conference lifted the curtain a bit on some of the speeches he will make on his Western trip.

Truman Discusses Trip

Mr. Truman discussed his trip informally with his leaders, along with highlights of proposed speeches en route. One informant said he will make major speeches on the power question, housing, social security, reciprocal trade and long-range farm problems.

Many of the speeches, it was said, will serve to point up the President's own legislative recommendations and congressional omissions.

Entirely apart from the leadership conference, several leading Senate Democrats voiced demands that Congress stay in session until votes are had in both Houses on all important pending measures.

These included Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), Democratic National Committee chairman; Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.).

Said Lucas:

"It must be disappointing to a lot of people to see Congress planning to adjourn in the midst of a cold war with Russia and the greatest rehabilitation problems in our history."

McMahon said flatly he didn't think Congress could adjourn by June 19. He said he knew of no effort by Democrats to force a longer session by time-consuming tactics, and conceded his party probably lacks the votes to prevent an early get-away.

But he said he and many other Democrats will continue to insist that major pending measures be brought to the floors of both houses for a vote and that "we do something to meet the inflation problem."

Helper Held in Hotel Liquor Theft

Rumors of whisky being peddled to employes at the Wardman Park Hotel at bargain rates have led to the arrest of a 23-year-old storeroom helper at the hotel.

The employe, Winslow B. McIver, 1837 5th st. nw., was arraigned before Municipal Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday on two counts of grand larceny and his trial date set for June 11.

According to Detective Sergt. Edwin F. Talbot, McIver admitted stealing whisky in case lots from the hotel storeroom by hiding bottles in the trash and recovering them when the trash was taken outside.

The hotel made an inventory after McIver's arrest and found $596 worth of bottled goods had disappeared during April.

Bar Association To Hold Annual Outing Today

The District Bar Association will hold its annual outing today at the Bethesda Country Club. Golf, baseball, tennis, swimming and a buffet dinner are on the program with prizes for the winners.

The annual event is attended by the judiciary and lawyers of the city. Last year more than 500 persons attended.

Charles S. Rhyne is general chairman of the outing.

John Poole Wins Chairmanship of Junior Bar Group

John C. Poole, 32, of 5610 Colorado ave. nw. has been elected chairman of the junior bar section of the District Bar Association, it was announced yesterday.

Poole, a member of the law firm of Poole & Skinker, succeeds Thomas M. Raysor for the coming year. Poole beat out his opponent, Bowdoin G. Craighill, jr., by a vote of 43 to 41.

Others elected were:

John Grabber, vice chairman; Bernard White, treasurer; Miss Eileen O'Connor, secretary; Thomas M. Raysor, delegate to the board of directors of the District Bar Association, and Joseph Madey and Mrs. Ella Cooper Thomas delegates to the American Bar Association junior conference.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning
That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low
If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

demonstrators were brought hey two separate groups.

gest and most active was the Nat al Committee to Defeat the Mt Bill, the leaders of which w outspoken boosters of Henry Wallace and his third-party ti . Delegates came from the Ern States, chiefly New York, assembled at Turner's Arena.

e other group, the National Nartisan Delegation for the ge of Civil Rights, had long sduled a meeting here to press fcongressional action on the nch and antipoll-tax bills and tmeasure to establish a Fair Employment Practices Commission. This group gathered at the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church.

The delegations combined forces in picketing the White House and in rallying at 6:30 p. m. at the foot of Washington Monument.

The White House pickets—3169 by Secret Service count—marched four abreast on the Pennsylvania ave. side, led by 6-foot-6 Singer Paul Robeson, who helped organize both delegations.

Several Senators refused to meet with the delegations from their States, and Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) broke up an interview with a delegation when he demanded to know whether all his visitors were non-Communists. When the delegation leader urged his committee not to answer, O'Conor called off the meeting.

Meanwhile, two anti-Communist liberal leaders denounced the anti-Mundt-bill demonstration as a move to provoke the Senate into passing the House-approved legislation. The charges were issued by Leon Henderson, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, and Emil Mazey, acting president of the United Auto Workers (CIO).

1200-Unit Project Blocked by Fairfax

By refusing to rezone from rural to urban residential a 261-acre tract on Route No. 123 north of Vienna, Va., the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday killed a proposed 1200-unit housing community.

Westbriar Corp., builders, had described the project as a 12-million-dollar single family development and had asked the rezoning to permit construction on small-size lots.

Opponents to the rezoning argued the project would overburden the county's already overcrowded school system and would increase county expenses by necessitating expansion of schools, health and police traffic services.

The Vienna, Va., Businessmen's Association, however, urged the rezoning.

U. S. Invites Bids For 10-Year Lease To BelascoTheater

The Belasco Theater may soon be leased from the Federal Government for 10 years—on certain conditions.

This was the sense of the call for bids on July 1 issued yesterday by FWA Administrator General Philip B. Fleming. Lessee, however, must vacate on a year's notice if Congress should appropriate funds for the Treasury Annex, which eventually will be built on the Belasco site.

The lessee must furnish his own equipment, heat and water facilities, and the Government is reserving storage space on the fourth and fifth floors and in the basement for its own uses.

Terms of the lease would be from September 1, 1948, to August 31, 1958.

Truman Names Huddle For Kashmir Group

The President yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of J. Klahr Huddle to be United States representative on the U. N. Security Council's Kashmir Commission.

Huddle is American Ambassador to Burma. He will serve in the U. N. post while continuing his assignment as Ambassador.

Ex-Policeman Identified in Liquor Theft

Two witnesses yesterday in District Court identified former Policeman Donald G. Drager as the man who, staging a phony raid, removed whisky from the home of Jesse Morgan, 2026 Portner pl. nw., last September.

Drager, who was discharged from the Metropolitan Police Force last December after a trial board hearing, is accused of housebreaking and larceny. Codefendant is Horace L. Thomas, former auxiliary policeman here and now a deputy sheriff in Front Royal, Va.

David Millsap and Dorothy Green testified they were in the Morgan home early on September 27 when Drager and another man, whom they could not identify, entered. They both testified Drager broke into a cupboard and removed liquor.

Earlier Morgan testified he had left the house in care of Dorothy Green after taking inventory of 37 half pints and 26 fifths of liquor. When he returned about an hour later, all the stock, $150 in cash and a suit had disappeared, he said.

The trial, recessed for today because of a bar association outing, will be resumed tomorrow before Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff.

40 Eye Health Posters Go on Display

Stock Exchange Needs Story Based on Facts, Not Guesses

By J. A. Livingston

THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE is falling into a trap of its own making. It is lulling itself into a sense of false importance by using untested data which indicates a widespread public interest in the stock market.

In the May issue of The Exchange, official monthly magazine of the Stock Exchange, L. O. Hooper, statistician of W. E. Hutton & Co. and a well-known market letter writer, says: "No accurate census ever has been taken, but the various experts who have studied the matter are agreed that between 15 million and 16 million Americans own stocks—approximately one person out of nine and about one family out of three."

Livingston

The various experts are not agreed. Last August, the Federal Reserve Board published statistics, based on a sample survey conducted by researchers at the University of Michigan, indicating that only 9 per cent of all households in the United States possess securities other than Government bonds. This year the Reserve Board has added to that data, and concluded that about 5,500,000 persons own stocks or bonds. That's a long distance from Mr. Hooper's 15 to 16 million.

AN ELMO ROPER survey for Fortune magazine indicates that 8 to 16 million persons over 21 years of age may own stocks or bonds (non-Government). But the manner in which the survey was conducted suggests a figure in the lower range—12 million or less.

The Stock Exchange's addiction to big numbers is no recent development. Back in 1935, the late Charles R. Gay, then president of the exchange, told the Financial Advertisers Association in a talk entitled "Public Relations and the New York Stock Exchange" that "it is not necessary to make a country stock market-conscious which includes in its population something like 15 millions of security holders." In January, 1944, Emil Schram, present president, told a Nation-wide radio audience of the "investing power of 15 million security holders."

New York Stock Exchange statisticians are well aware of the quicksand quality of stockholder statistics. Robert R. MacDonald, a member of the research staff, showed me a 6-inch file crammed full of collected material. One of the earliest estimates was made by Berle & Means in their book "The Modern Corporation and Private Property," but this was not an unduplicated total. It came to 18 million. A man who owned Pennsylvania Railroad, U. S. Steel, and General Motors was counted three times.

THE FILE also contained the Twentieth Century Fund estimate of 9,000,000 to 11,000,000 in 1930. It contained a 15,000,000 estimate of the Investors League made in November, 1945. It contained an article by Oliver J. Gingold in Barron's Weekly in April, 1943, which referred to "5,000,000 to 15,000,000" shareholders. In the face of this background data, it is surprising that Schram should be dogmatic on the number of security owners or that the exchange's official magazine should narrow the range to 15 to 16 million.

More than statistics are involved.

In an advertisement a year ago, the exchange declared that stockholders "come from every group in the community. They are women as well as men, employes as well as executives, farmers as well as businessmen." Such distribution of business ownership, the "ad" goes on, is a "healthy and democratic development."

Hooper, in his article, observed that "stockholders are not organized as a pressure group but numerically they are as representative as labor unions, which are estimated to have a total of 16 million members. There are about three times as many stockholders as farm proprietors. More people own stock than voted for President in 1944 in the four great States of California, Illinois, New York and Massachusetts. As many people own common stocks now as ever voted for a President in any election prior to 1916.

"It is challenging to observe that the number of stockholders in the United States is approximately equal to the combined population of 20 States, namely Maine, New Hampshire . . ." And so on.

THE FACTS are—and they are borne out by both the Federal Reserve and Fortune studies—that less than 5 per cent of workers' households own securities other than Government bonds. Among farmers, the total runs to 16 per cent. The concentration of security ownership is among professional men and executives—the upper-income brackets.

The exchange needs a theme song, based on facts not educated guesswork. It ought to find out what its story is before it starts telling it to the world. That's Precept No. 1 in J. A. Livingston's unwritten book on public relations.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—Dry weather threw enough of a fear into grain traders today to cause prices to advance several cents. It wasn't that traders felt crops were being damaged. But they remembered last summer's drought, and some were worried about a repetition of that event.

As a consequence, grains started higher, held above the previous close all day, and ended on a new buying movement which made final prices at or near the day's highs. Corn set the pace. It was this grain which was hurt most in last summer's drought.

Wheat at the finish was 1 to 1½ higher, July, 2.34@2.34½; corn was 3½@3⅝ higher, July, 2.21½@2.21¾; oats were 1⅛ to 2 cents higher, July 94@94¼, and July soybeans 6 cents higher at 4.20.

Actually, it was hard for crop experts to see anything to get excited about in the lack of rain over the Midwest for the past week or more. They said the land had plenty of subsoil moisture, which should make a good root system in corn and produce a healthy plant.

D. C. Bankers At Greenbrier For Convention

By S. Oliver Goodman

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 2.—A 13-car "Bankers' Special" of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway chugged in here tonight at 11:15, loaded with more than 200 Washington bankers, their wives and guests.

Another 120 were here already or were expected tomorrow by motor car and other trains.

Occasion was the thirtieth annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at the Greenbrier Hotel, first time since 1937 that the Capital bankers have met here. Since then, the Greenbrier has undergone sweeping changes and few of the bankers could recognize the resort.

Business sessions will start tomorrow and conclude Saturday. On the program are reports by association officials and section chairmen, addresses by five speakers, election and installation of new officers, selection of local officers for four divisions of the American Bankers Association, and various entertainment features and sports contests.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

WHO'S WHO TODAY: R. Kirby Shirley has been elected executive vice president of the Freeport Sulphur Co. and Parson E. Neaman has been named vice president and general counsel . . . Carl Nyquist has retired as vice president and treasurer of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad . . . J. Douglas Darby has been elected vice president in charge of sales of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., succeeding Thomas J. Hilliard.

NEW OFFICIALS: Philip Lemler has been elected a vice president and general manager of the Todd Shipyards Corp., in charge of its operations in San Francisco Bay, effective July 1, John D. Reilly, president of the company, announced yesterday. John D. Reilly, jr., has been appointed assistant general manager and Joseph J. Redington, management consultant.

Lemler

Lemler was born in New York City in 1900 and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1919. He is also a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

ODD LOTS: The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to authorize the issuance of $3,500,000 of equipment trust certificates . . . Commercial and industrial failures for the week ended May 27 totaled 112, compared with 92 in the previous week, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday . . . Postal receipts at the City Postoffice during May aggregated $1,395,660 compared with $1,343,119 in May last year.

WILL ATTEND SCHOOL: Thirty Washington bankers have enrolled for the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University from June 21 to July 4. The New Jersey school is conducted by the American Bankers Association and was established in 1935. It provides advanced study for bankers of officer rank. To qualify for graduation, students are required to attend three annual summer sessions of two weeks each. The Washington men who will attend are:

Maryland Tobacco

Upper Marlboro, Md., June 2 (AP).—Today's sales on the southern Maryland auction tobacco market continued a downward trend which began Tuesday.

Some grades, chiefly tips, showed increases but most grades were down from $1 to $5 a hundredweight. Heavy and thin crops were hit hardest by the drop.

The average of $41.49 per hundredweight was the lowest since May 14, the end of the first week of sales. Net sales today were 601,270 pounds, bringing the season total to 8,485,262, at an average of $43.03.

Prices today were: B2F $61, down $1; B4R $25, down $4; B5R $13.50, down $4.50; T5R $13.50, up $3; T4O $13.25, up 7 cents; C2F $62, unchanged; C4F $60, unchanged; C3R $58, down $3; X2F $30, up $4; X3F $24, down $3; X4R $20, unchanged.

Commodity Index

New York, June 2—The Associated Press weighted wholesale price index of 35 commodities today advanced to 189.02.

Previous day, 188.67; week ago, 189.21; month ago, 185.92; year ago, 171.91.

Drought Slows Crops in West

Chicago, June 2 (U.P.).—Midwest farmers squinted at hot, sunny skies today and feared their corn would not be "knee high by the Fourth of July."

Forest Rangers saw another danger—fires in tinder-dry Midwest woodlands.

Today was the seventeenth consecutive day without rainfall in sections of northeastern Iowa, northern Illinois and Indiana, northern Wisconsin and upper and lower Michigan.

United States weather forecasters at Chicago said that lack of rainfall in the Middle West has retarded crops and created an "acute" forest fire hazard.

Farm experts in most States said crops were not yet in danger, only that their growth had been slowed.

A. J. Surratt, an Illinois farm official, said oats and other grass crops had been retarded, but that dry weather had improved the prospects for wheat.

Science CONTROLS TIME COSTS

The price of repair parts and hourly time charges are nearly the same everywhere. But the length of time a repair takes, the quality of the finished job depends completely upon the knowledge and experience of the men doing the work. Here in our Modern Motor Laboratory, scientific equipment takes uncertainty and experimentation out of motor repairs . . . puts precision into them. Quick and dependable results are guaranteed! This saves excess time charges, and makes repairs cost you less. Bring us your next job.

National Theater Wins Racial Case

Judge Frank H. Myers threw out of Municipal Court yesterday a racial discrimination suit because it was based on a law that has been held unconstitutional.

The suit was a test case brought by Edward B. Henderson, director of health and education for the Negro divisions of the public school system here. He sued the E Street Theater Corp., which operates the National Theater, for $500 under the Civil Rights Act of 1875.

He said he was not allowed to purchase tickets to a performance at the National Theater on December 13, 1946, because he is a Negro.

The Civil Rights Act of 1875 declared all persons should be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of theaters and places of amusement and violators of this right must pay $500 damages.

A series of court cases on the question culminated in 1913 when the Supreme Court declared the Civil Rights Act was unconstitutional because it was an attempt by Congress to create a code of municipal law for the regulation of private rights. This, the court said, could not be done and the Federal courts will interfere with the municipal laws only when they subvert the Constitution.

But counsel for Henderson said the Supreme Court erred in its decision and cited public policy as being against discrimination. They also contended the Supreme Court did not rule specifically on the question as it affected the District of Columbia.

Judge Myers said he was bound by the statutory construction made by the Supreme Court and could not see where there was any error in that court.

The E Street Corp. was represented by Attorneys James M. Proctor, jr., and Robert E. Kline, jr.

Taking Pictures

Prepare for Those Snapshots Of June Wedding Festivities

This is no box Brownie snapshot, but it gives you an idea of what you can do to produce attractive wedding pictures if you'll quietly make your preplanned shots. Note how effective low angle is

By Ollie Atkins

WILL any of your friends be June brides? As a photographer you can present them with a dozen candid pictures of the wedding excitement and produce the most popular gift they will get.

Here's the way to do it.

Prepare a list of the pictures you want and go over your selections with the bride and groom in advance. This lets the couple know what you are up to and you soon find out if they object to your popping flash bulbs at them as the preacher utters the words.

Your list should include a picture of the bride being fitted for her gown; friends pouring into the church; the general scene of the wedding within the church (use your tripod and make this a time exposure); the couple dashing out of the church with handfuls of rice in the air around them; a quick portrait of the bride and her bouquet; a good shot of the couple through car window is often nice; the pair about to cut the wedding cake at the reception; a candid type picture of the bride and the bridesmaids and flower girls.

Be careful not to tell the folks your pictures will supplant the work of a commercial photographer. If your pix are better you'll be praised to the skies, but they'll still put the commercial man's work on the piano. Should you slip up and miss your casual snapshots they'll thank you anyway and forget the whole thing.

A LIGHT speed flash unit called the Reevelec has made its appearance in Washington photo shops and looks like it might be the answer to amateur flashbulb worries. The complete unit sells for $69.50, with plug-in battery charger optional at $9.95 extra. The speed flash works with either Solenoid or built-in shutter synchronizers, and firing controls are on the flash gun. Light output is about that of the No. 11 flash bulb. A trim leather case and shoulder strap make it easy to carry.

Ed Hannigan of U. S. Camera advises us that the deadline for receiving pictures for the annual is this week. If you have any prints suitable for inclusion in this volume of the year's best news and pictorial photography send them immediately to U. S. Camera Annual, 420 Lexington ave., New York 17, N. Y.

The White House Photographers Association will have its annual banquet-exhibit again this fall at the Statler Hotel, with Robert H. Denton, Washington manager of Paramount News, heading the banquet committee; John Rous of Associated Press Photos will manage the photo show, and Guy Bowman, Erland Ericson and William Chaplis, all of AP Photos, putting out the exhibit catalogue.

4 Nazi Doctors Hanged for Torture Tests

Landsberg, Germany, June 2 (AP). Four German doctors and three SS (Elite Guard) officers were hanged today for killing and maiming thousands of people in medical experiments on Nazi concentration inmates.

SS Gen. Karl Brandt, 43, top medical officer of the Nazi state and Adolf Hitler's personal physician, was among those executed. He was the only one who scorned religious aid at the scaffold.

It took 62 minutes to complete the executions. The men died on two black gallows erected in the courtyard of the prison where Hitler wrote Mein Kampf while confined after his 1923 Munich putsch.

The men were convicted last August 20 in the first of a series of trials conducted at Nuernberg by United States war crimes courts. Several died protesting their innocence and complaining against the American system of justice.

Brandt made a final speech so long that after he ignored admonitions to cut it short the black hood was thrown over his face in midsentence.

He called his conviction "nothing but political revenge" and said: "It is no shame to stand on this scaffold. I served my fatherland as others before me."

Brandt once boasted that he was "one German the Americans will never hang." He had attempted to beat the gallows by offering his living body for medical experiments like those the court found he had conducted. United States authorities rejected the offer.

Joachim Murgowsky, 42, chief SS hygienist, shouted defiantly from the scaffold: "I die as a German officer sentenced by a brutal enemy and conscious I never committed the crimes charged against me."

Karl Gebhardt, 50, special physician of Heinrich Himmler and head SS surgeon, said: "I die without bitterness but regret there is still in justice in the world." Gebhardt formerly was president of the German Red Cross.

SS Colonels Executed

Others executed were:

Wolfram Sievers, SS colonel and director of the Military Research Institute.

Victor Brack, SS colonel and chief administrative officer under Martin Bormann.

Waldemar Hoven, chief medical officer at Buchenwald.

Rudolf Brandt, adjutant to Himmler and chief of the SS hygienic institute.

Five other defendants convicted at the trial were sentenced to life imprisonment. Four received lesser prison terms. Seven were acquitted.

The doomed men were accused of participating in experiments in which: victims were frozen to see how much cold they could stand. Lungs were collapsed in high altitude tests. Pieces of bone, muscle or nerves were cut out and transplanted, permanently mutilating the victims. Thousands were sterilized by surgery, X-ray or drugs. Many were fed experimental poisons, shot with poisoned bullets, burned with poison gas or infected with deadly diseases.

Wheeler in Germany To Aid Fritz Thyssen

Frankfurt, June 2 (NYHT.).—Burton K. Wheeler, former United States Senator, announced today that he is in Germany to assist Fritz Thysen, former German industrialist who is having denazification difficulties.

The former Senator reminded the press that the aging Thyssen, who broke with Hitler before the war, had been cleared by the Allies. The German denazification tribunal was slow in acting, the former Senator said.

Landon School Party

The Landon School Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting and dinner tonight at 7:30 in the school auditorium. After election of officers at the Bethesda, Md., the graduating class will be honored at a dance.

One on the Aisle—

You Can't Beat The Numbers, Joe

By Richard L. Coe

DEAR UNCLE RICHARD:

I ain't much on brains, only gettin' through forth grade, but I gess I must have great personal magnetism because to wimmin are fightin' over me.

Dahlia is the pretty one and she's got millions. Made it all on the numbers racket but she wants to be a great lady and for me to be governor. She thinks I'm a great guy but I shore do get tired of her nagging me. She even wants to set me up in biznes but I'm not that kind of guy. I wanna be my own boss, see?

Hepzibah is not as much fun as Dahlia but she lets me alone. She's very edjacated even if she is kinda plain but she never nags at me. Just lets me do as I wanna an if I wanna go fishin I just go fishin. I know I don't love Hepzibah but maybe I could learn. She is a very fine woman and knows that wimmin's place is in the home.

Somethins gotta happen soon. I can't stand seein the to of em lickin their chops over witch way I'm gonna jump. Witch way should I jump?

JOE JUKES.

DEAR JOE:

By positively the strangest chance, your question is being answered this very day on Keith's screen, where "River Lady" has just opened. To a lot of people, this picture will seem just a C-script in A-guise. They'll admire the technicolor, which is beautiful without being violent, but the story will be quite, quite lost on them. They'll all sneer that its script is just a mass of horrible cliches, which is a word you may not understand, Joe Jukes, but you don't need to, you lucky child of nature.

But the struggle between Yvonne DeCarlo and Helena Carter for the body, mind and soul of Rod Cameron will seem tremendous to you, Joe Jukes. It's just the thing that's roaring over your handsome, empty skull this minute.

Rod, you see, just wants to chop trees eight months a year and drink and gamble the rest of the time. It's his inalienable right, Joe, under the Constitution, to chop down this Nation's trees and to revel with cards, whisky and wimmin, wimmin, wimmin when he's not going chop, chop, chop.

Yvonne is the ambitious one. She's built herself up the finest gambling ship on the whole Mississippi and she controls a syndicate that is going to own ALL the trees in the country. But she wants a man at her side—Rod. She wants to give Rod all her winnings and have him build them into a bigger pile.

Helena (who's probably prettier than your Hepzibah) has been to school in the East and speaks with a veddy broad A. She's got a pretty persnickity sense of humor you mgiht not like, Joe, but she's got your idea of woman's place. Anything Rod does is okay with Helena, even though HE sends for HER to apologize for his getting drank and marrying her and even "RIVER LADY." Universal-International tional release produced by Leonard Goldstein. Screen play by D. D. Beauchamp and William Bowers from a novel by Houston Branch and Frank Waters. locks her out of his room one night.

Yvonne wouldn't stand for that and neither would your Dahlia, but Helena and Hepzibah are both bright enough to know that this indicates True Love and that when a woman lets a man's life alone that means it's a perfect marriage.

So, Joe, you just see "River Lady" a couple of times and you'll find the answer to your question. You'll learn that the thing for you to do is to marry that nice little homebody Hepzibah and that the only reward for your dashing, ambitious Dahlia is—sadness, loneliness, and, conceivably, Dan Duryea.

NO "WALLFLOWER" SHE: Edward Arnold pours a couple of drinks at a homey little bar while Janis Paige makes an important call in the comedy opening today at the Warner, "Wallflower." The family comedy, once a stage hit, finds Joyce Reynolds as a shy shadow for sister Janis, but she blossoms for Robert Hutton SOCIETY DEPT.: Mary MacArthur and Elizabeth Ross, of the Olney's "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," will be jaunting into town after tonight's performance to appear at the Balloon Ball in the United Nations Club being given by the Washington Chapter of the Finch Alumnae Association . . . The ball's a benefit for the school's new dormitory, but balloon-purchasers will be lucky, too . . . There'll be over $400 worth of prizes in the right balloons.

COLLEGE DEPT.: The King William Players of St. John's College, Annapolis, tonight and tomorrow night are doing G. B. Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" . . . Don Zion's set is described as "Dahliesque" which also goes for Gene Thornton's costumes . . . Jack Logan, of the faculty—not Washington's man-about-town, will be Androcles.

CHURCH DEPT.: The Calvary Baptist Players Club will be giving its final production of the season Friday night at 8:15 . . . Sidney Howard's "The Late Christopher Bean" is the play, with Evelyn Baumgartner, James Austin and Jean Edwards heading Delight Williamson Holt's cast.

'Senators Make No Move to Call MacArthur Back

By The Associated Press

The Senate Appropriations Committee discussed yesterday Gen. Douglas MacArthur's wish to remain in Japan for the present and made no new move to recall him.

Chairman Bridges (R., N. H.) told reporters after a closed committee meeting that no one moved to make the group's request of last week an order.

The Senators had asked the supreme Allied commander to return to testify on military needs in the Pacific. MacArthur replied that he prefers not to come back until after the Republican convention starting June 21. He has said he would accept the GOP presidential nomination, if offered.

Bridges declined, under questioning, to say that the question of recalling the general had been abandoned, but he did say MacArthur's reply "was accepted without any new move on the part of the committee."

Italians Hail Republic

Rome, June 2 (U.P.)—Pursuit ships and bombers from the Italian air force thundered over the Eternal City at 9 a. m. today on the second anniversary of the Italian Republic.

Realty Case Awaits Ruling on Acquittal

District Court trial of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the Washington Board charged with violation of antitrust laws yesterday was recessed for a day following completion of arguments on motions for directed verdicts of acquittal.

The trial will be resumed Friday when Associate Justice Edward M. Curran will rule on the motions.

In yesterday's shortened session, Justice Department Prosecutor Victor H. Kramer continued to expound a previously expressed opinion that price-fixing, in itself, regardless of any restraint involved is a violation of the Sherman Act.

He emphasized the agreement signed by local board members to abide by a code of ethics recommending standard rates, as a violation.

Justice Curran posed the question that if the national association were cleared by directed verdict as not being a coconspirator, could the local board be charged with conspiring with its own members?

Kramer reiterated his position that the adoption of standard rates in the code of ethics coupled with the member's signed agreement constituted a violation on the part of the local board.

For Basic Rights

Methodists Hit GI Bill on Bartenders

The Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church yesterday called upon the President and the Veterans Administration to halt training of "Mixologists" under the GI Bill.

The resolution scoring training of bartenders with Government funds was one of a number passed by the Conference in the second day of a four-day conference at American University.

The 700 clergy and lay men also passed resolutions opposing legalized gambling in any form and use of gambling devices for religious or benevolent purposes.

In another action, the delegates called for full support of the United Nations and eventual steps towards a federated form of world government through use of machinery now available.

The Methodists urged universal reduction of armaments, but the resolution was amended to state that the church favored "preparedness to protect our liberties."

The conference heard of a new $150,000 addition to the Asbury Home for the Aged at Gaithersburg which will be undertaken this summer and requested that the Rev. Herman Wilson be appointed superintendent.

Reports calling for regional meetings and a speakers bureau on national affairs, seminars for ministers on marriage counseling, and work with juvenile court authorities were also adopted.

Delegates adopted a resolution calling for basic personal rights for all regardless of race, creed or color, but an amendment endorsing the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights was defeated.

At the afternoon session yesterday Dr. William G. Carr of the National Education Association told of the work of UNESCO, and delegates later were guests of Australian Ambassador Norman J. O. Makin at a reception at the embassy.

Sessions today will open with a devotional service at 8.30 a. m. conducted by President Lester Welliver of Westminster Theological Seminary. At 4 p. m. today Dr. Walker Van Kirk of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America will speak to the conference.

Church Urges 'Peace' Effort

Seattle, June 2 (AP).—Calling for "patience in the face of provocation," Northern Presbyterians today urged the Nation's leaders to renew and intensify efforts for an understanding with Russia.

"As a nation, we must be prepared to spend years, if necessary, seeking equitable solutions to the multitude of problems dividing Russia and the western world," said a resolution adopted at the closing session of the 160th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

"We must, at all times, maintain an attitude of patience in the face of provocation and attempt to excel Russia in constructive statesmanship, rather than in toughness."

Northern Presbyterians Still Will Seek Unity

Atlanta, June 2 (AP).—The Southern Presbyterian Church, ending its eighty-eighth general assembly today, received word that the Northern church would continue cooperation toward uniting the two largest Presbyterian systems. The Southern church voted yesterday against immediate reunion.

The Southern church voted to remain in the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America after a lengthy debate over the council's activities in social and economic fields and criticism of alleged political activity of the council.

'Electrical' Girl Confesses Slaying

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ETHEL WOODING, 21-year-old sideshow performer billed as "The Electrical Wonder," told police in Pittsburgh yesterday that she shot to death her hometown sweetheart on a lonely Kentucky road five days ago. Police in Middlesboro, Ky., started a search for the body of Gilbert A. Taylor, 24, carnival handyman, but they knew nothing of a murder in the area and doubted the girl's "confession"

D.C. Schoolboy Gets 3 Firsts in 'Flying Circus'

A 14-year-old Gordon Junior High School senior took 3 of 14 "firsts" to win top honors in the Philadelphia Bulletin Model Airplane Flying Circus Monday in Philadelphia.

Roger L. Barron of Springfield, Va., was one of six Greater Washington model airplane enthusiasts to win trophies in the contest sponsored by the Philadelphia newspaper in cooperation with Plymouth car dealers of that city.

Other local area winers were: Herbert Danick, 16, of 1223 Orrin st. ne.; James Brakefield, 17, of 3106 Mount Pleasant st. nw.; Edgar Weisman, 15, of 3732 Kanawaha st. nw.; Richard A. Vickery, 25, of 610 Bashford lane, Alexandria, Va. and Lyall Steger, sr., 39, of 1341 Queen st. ne.

2000 at Townsend Club Meeting Hear 4 Congressmen

Need for enactment of the Townsend old-age pension plan is "great," Senator Edwin Carl Johnson (D., Colo.) declared yesterday.

He told 2000 delegates at opening sessions of the eighth national Townsend Clubs' convention, at Uline Arena, the proposed program would be beneficial both to the recipients and to business and would help "stabilize" the country.

The delegates, many of them white-haired, whooped and clapped as speaker after speaker lauded the Townsend program to provide Federal benefits of $100 a month for those over 60, and other needy groups. The money would come from a tax on personal incomes and corporation net profits.

Representative Michael J. Kirwan (D., Ohio) warmly praised the movement's followers, estimated at 2,500,000, and asserted that "but for you" there "would never be any social security on the books today." He recalled that they have been called "crackpots and crazy old people," but implored them to "keep up your spirit."

Representative Homer D. Angell (R., Ore.) pointed out that "we have spent, and are spending, billions of American dollars for war and for preparation for war . . . but we have been niggardly in providing a pittance to our old people here . . ."

The delegates, many wearing colorful "Townsend Plan" paper hats, were welcomed by Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.).

CHARLES TOWN, W. VA., JUNE 2.—It was a long haul for Charles Town but the little track in these West Virginia hills has made it, and is now breezing. The other day the folks bet $460,514 into the maw of the mutuel machines. Charles Town has grown up. The State is happy about its take and the early furore about legalized racing has subsided to the mere echo of a whisper.

POVICH

A. J. Boyle once of Baltimore, owns the track. He's a contractor who wasn't racing minded until 1934, and even then you might say he wasn't racing minded. He took over the track for a bad debt. He built it for the Bowie people, and to salvage something from the $300,000 liens against the track he gambled he could make it go where they failed.

He's done that. On Memorial Day 9500 racing fans passed through the turnstiles. The track sold 11,000 programs, and if you're asking what some of the customers might need with more than one program it calls for an explanation. Fifteen hundred fans who couldn't get in were yelling their bets across the fences to friends inside. It was Charles Town's banner day.

A NORMAL DAY'S BETTING back in 1933 was $25,000 a day. The proprietors couldn't make it go with the take from that figure. Boyle upped the purses when he took over, attracted a better class of horses, hired Leeds Riley for his public relations man, and all of a sudden Charles Town began to click.

It's the peepul's track. There are more $2 windows at Charles Town than $5 windows—during the war the betting was up, but not like the metropolitan tracks where the $2 windows were ignored and the easy money was poured into the $10 and $50 sellers.

Charles Town never was more than a $5 track. When the fat war profits were drained off and the $100 and $50 bettors quit, Charles Town wasn't affected.

Charles Town doesn't draw the heaviest betting race track audience but its customers are probably the most racing-wise folks with the exception of Kentucky's. The track is pitched in the center of the Maryland-Virginia race breeding country. It's sometimes said that the horsey set is long on pedigree and short on cash, but they know their horses nevertheless.

JEFFERSON COUNTY isn't famous for Charles Town alone. It's one of the two counties in the United States, the other is in Ohio, that boasts dolomite deposits, the limestone foundation so necessary in the manufacture of steel. It's an element used in the bottom of blast furnaces to deal with the worrisome problem of slag.

Charles Town draws the bulk of its trade from Washington, but it's the rendezvous of the horsey set from Warrenton, Leesburg, Middleburg, Winchester and the Maryland Farms. Virginians have a sort of interest in Jefferson County, anyway. It's one of the three West Virginia counties that seceded from Virginia during the Civil War, when secession was made fashionable by Virginia itself.

The people who opened the Charles Town track in 1933 weren't starting anything new. Charles Town was the scene of a race track back in 1779. John Randolph of Roanoke, the eccentric statesman who never quite achieved a high office, had his imported stallions standing here when he was the 26-year-old wiz kid in halls of Congress.

IN ITS 15 year history, things have happened at Charles Town that have set the track apart. It caught the conscience of the long-shot players on the first day races were held, when a thing named Zombro paid a $500 mutuel.

But Charles Town is best known for its Sweep Vestal episode. That was in 1934, when Sweep Vestal won a race and win, place and show money was collected by the backers of the second horse. There was no disqualification, or anything of the like. Sweep Vestal was running without so much as a $2 ticket held on her by anybody, including the trainer. She would have been a $2,000 mutuel for anybody so bold ast to invest $2.

And another thing. Charles Town is probably the only race track to foal a race track. Mr. Boyle is now engaged in building a course to be known as Waterford Downs, 38 miles this side of Pittsburgh, with his Charles Town profits. He's discovered there's dough in racing—yours mine, and his.

Chisox Keep Macks in 2d By 7-3 Win

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP).—Chicago's lowly White Sox kept the Philadelphia Athletics in second place in the American League pennant race tonight as they pounded Bill Dietrich and Nelson Potter for 11 hits and a 7-3 victory.

Cass Michaels of the Sox hit his second homer of the season in the sixth off Potter.

Joe Haynes went the route for the White Sox and allowed nine hits, four of them bunched in the fifth inning for two of the Athletics' runs. The third crossed on Don Kolloway's error in the eighth.

The Sox picked up two runs in the first frame as Ralph Weigel supplied the key single. They tabbed two more in the fourth on a double by Weigel and triples by Bob Kennedy and Kolloway.

After Michaels' sixth-inning homer, the cellar occupants picked up their final two tallies in the seventh. A right field single by Taft Wright following hits by Floyd Baker and Dave Philley did the work.

Dietrich, going the first five innings, was charged with the defeat.

Yanks Edge Tigers Behind Raschi, 1 to 0

New York, June 2 (AP).—Vic Raschi gained his sixth straight victory today, pitching the world champion New York Yankees to a 1-0 triumph over the Detroit Tigers before 17,143 fans.

Raschi yielded five hits in out hurling young Art Houtteman of the Tigers who was charged with the loss, his seventh as against no victories.

The Yankee right-hander helped win his own ball game—his third this year over Detroit. Raschi opened the eighth inning with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice, to third on a ground out, and then scored as Johnny Lindell laced a double to leaf to end the scoreless tie.

Browns Beat Bosox On Dillinger's Hit, 3-1

Boston, June 2 (AP).—Bob Dillinger's two-run single and a Les Moss homer gave the St. Louis Browns a 3-1 victory as Right-hander Fred Sanford kept seven Boston Red Sox hits well scattered tonight before a 34,303 crowd.

Dillinger's game-winning blow against Lefty Mel Parnell, who lasted the full distance, came in the fifth inning after Browns had loaded the bases on an error and singles by Sam Dente and Sanford.

Moss' four-bagger into the left field screen, opened the ninth inning.

Keller Breaks Hand; Out for Three Weeks

New York, June 2 (AP).—Charley Keller of the New York Yankees broke two bones in his left hand today in attempting a shoestring catch of a line drive. The left fielder will be sidelined from three to four weeks, the Yankees reported.

Sain Hurls 3-Hit, 5-1 Win

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP).—Johnny Sain allowed only three hits tonight to lead the Boston Braves to a 5-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

A crowd of 25,710 saw the Bucs pull the first triple play of the National League season in the eighth inning.

Dodgers Beat Cardinals, 5-3

St. Louis, June 2 (AP).—A two-run double by Gil Hodges gave the Brooklyn Dodgers the margin needed for a 5 to 3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight. It was the Dodgers' first triumph over the Redbirds this season and the sixth consecutive loss for St. Louis.

Louise Suggs Gains British Golf Final

St. Anne's-On-Sea, England, June 2 (AP).—Tiny Louise Suggs of Atlanta, United States women's amateur golf champion, sloshed into the finals of the British Women's Amateur championship today.

She will meet a Scottish lassie, Jean Donald, tomorrow in the 36-hole final over the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's links for the title which Babe Didrickson Zaharias won a year ago but couldn't defend because she turned professional.

Hanging at Louise's belt after two rounds played in pouring rain and a tearing, icy wind, were the scalps of a couple of other Americans, Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta and Dorothy Kielty of Los Angeles.

Miss Suggs bounced them from the tournament by proving a better mudder under drenching conditions, puddled fairways and waterlogged greens suitable only for web feet.

Miss Kirby, Louise's hometown rival, bowed out on the twentieth hole in the quarterfinals. Tall Dorothy Kielty, Los Angeles flying instructor, gave up in the semifinals when her ball almost buried itself in the side of a grassy hill on the fifteenth hole. Louise's winning margin was 4 and 3.

Miss Donald, 25-year-old twin daughter of a country doctor at North Berwick, Scotland, gained her berth in the final by ousting Mrs. E. M. Hartley and Maureen Ruttle, both of England. Jean's foes both lost by 3 and 2 margins.

When Louise, a 24-year-old mite who learned the game on sunny days from her professional golfing father back in Carrolton, Ga., walked in from the fifteenth green, she confessed the weather had worn her out.

"I'm numb," she said. "I've played in the rain before, but never in anything like this. I'm going to the hotel for a hot bath and a good sleep."

Wildman Graziano Briefed by Greene On Knockdowns

Newark, N. J., June 2 (U.P.).—Rocky Graziano was warned today that he may lose the world middleweight championship on a disqualification if he attempts to strike Tony Zale when the latter is down in their fight here a week from tonight.

Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, delivered the admonition at a conference among fighters, managers and seconds, after Rocky and Tony had undergone a physical examination.

The warning was not addressed to Graziano personally; it was given to both fighters. But it resulted from the request of Sam Pian, co-manager of Zale. Pian recalled that Graziano continued to hammer away at Zale in their Chicago fight when Tony's head was thrust through the ring ropes, and that Rocky had gone beserk in other fights.

The conference rejected the National Boxing Association's recent recommendation that a fighter be required to take a count of eight when knocked down so that his head might clear before risking further punishment.

Each fighter will wear 8-ounce gloves, as is customary in this Stat

Carolina Police Chief Claims Proof of 'Thrown' Ball Games

Winston-Salem, N. C., June 2 (AP).—Police Chief John Gold said today he had evidence indicating a gambling syndicate interested in "throwing" baseball games had operated in three North Carolina cities.

Gold said the syndicate allegedly had a hand in the throwing of a Carolina League game here May 14. He declined to name the other two cities.

Clark Ties for 2d In British Golf

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 2 (AP).—Art Clark of Huntington, W. Va., was tied for second place today after the first of four rounds of the Spalding $6000 golf tournament.

Clark and Reg Whitcombe, a former British Open champion, both cardeds 71's over the St. Andrews "old" course. Alf Padgham, another former British Open champ, led with 68.

Barney DeForge, pitcher-manager of the Reidsville Luckies, and Ed Weingarten, an official of the Florence, S. C., Tri-State League club, and the Leaksville, Blue Ridge League club, were banned yesterday from organized baseball for life. Their expulsions were ordered at Columbus, Ohio, by Minor League President George Trautman. Trautman said DeForge admitted throwing the Reidsville-Winston-Salem game here May 14 for $300. Weingarten denied any connection with the incident.

Meanwhile, Police Chief Frank Littlejohn disclosed at Charlotte—a Tri-State League city—that he had assigned detectives to investigate reports of a betting coup at the Florence-Charlotte game May 16. Charlotte is a farm of the Washington Nats. Littlejohn said the investigation produced no indication of a "fix." Charlotte's business manager, Phil Howser, denied vehemently that the club had been involved in a fix.

At Florence, Club President Willis Gregory disclosed today that Right-fielder Connie Creedon left the club last night without notice. Majority Stockholder Weingrattn had obtained Creedon from the House of David team a month ago. Latest averages showed Creedon hitting .346 for Florence, known as the Steelers.

Weingarten, a 44-year-old native of New York City, entered organized ball in 1946 when he and associates took over the Greensboro club of the Carolina League.

Giants Whip Cincy, 7 to 4

Cincinnati, June 2 (AP).—The New York Giants began their second invasion of the West with a victory today as Larry Jansen pitched the National League pace-setters to a 7-4 edge over the Cincinnati Reds.

Jansen went the route for the Giants, scattering 11 hits to gain his sixth triumph of the season as against three setbacks.

The star Giant right-hander also helped his own cause by driving in three runs on two singles.

Yale's IC4A Margin Reduced by Officials

New York, June 2 (AP).—Yale's winning margin over New York U. in last week-end's IC4A track meet was reduced from 4 to 2½ points today by the games' committee, which ordered some corrections after viewing movies.

George Cook, Yale captain, was dropped from second in the 120-yard high hurdles to a tie for third with Dana Payne of Princeton. Ed Dahl of Rhode Island State was given second place, moving up from fourth.

Scarborough Limits Tribe To Five Hits

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Ray Scarborough pitched a sweet five-hitter to enable the Nats to squeeze out a 2-1 victory over Bob Lemon and the league-leading Indians last night.

To the howling delight of 20,405 Griffith Stadium observers, the hustling Washingtonians backed up Scarborough's masterful mound demonstration with terrific defensive work and five timely hits.

The opener of the three-game set was reeled off in 1 hour and 41 minutes, but the result wasn't certain until the last second of play.

That's when Scarborough induced the league's leading home run hitter, Kenny Keltner, to ground into a double play with two Indians aboard and only one down. It was the second double play of the evening for the Nats and enabled Scarborough to register victory No. 4.

The defeat was the third for Lemon, the shutout specialist, who was trying for his eighth success. He took the mound with a record of two straight wins over the Nats and not having allowed the Nats nor anyone else a run in 25 consecutive innings.

Nats Finally Score

He continued to hold the Indian sign on the Nats, whom he had blanked for 18 innings previously, until two were down in the fourth, But Gil Coan spanked a single which started him on his downfall.

After two attempts to pick him off failed, Coan stole second on the first pitch to Ed Stewart. On the next pitch he came home as Stewart pickled a Lemon curve into right field for a single. Prior to that outburst, Lemon had set down the first 11 Nats in order.

The Indians tied it up for him in the fifth when Johnny Berardino singled and Jim Hegan doubled over Earl Wooten's head in center and the game moved along at 1-1 until the home seventh.

Coan once again started it, beating out a drag bunt down the first-base line. First Baseman Eddie Robinson, Lemon and Boudreau argued that Robinson's toss to Lemon beat Coan, but Umpire Jim Boyer felt differently. Coan didn't tarry at first, speeding to second on Stewart's sacrifice.

Steal Backfires

Mickey Vernon grounded out, sending Coan to third, but Wooten did better. He almost tore the glove off Keltner's hand with a single to left to score Coan and move Washington in front again, Mark Christman kept the rally going with a single to right, Wooten racing to third. It expired on the first pitch to Jake Early, however, as Wooten was trapped between home and third on an attempted double steal.

Scarborough retired the Indians one-two-three in the eighth, but he was in a peck of trouble in the ninth. Larry Doby pumped his second single and Boudreau drew his second walk after Walt Judnich skied to Stewart.

With Tom Ferrick and Forrest Thompson getting hot in the bullpen, Scarborough hitched up his belt to pitch to Keltner. Keltner took the first pitch for a ball, but swung into the next one. He drove it hard to Christman on two hops and the Christman-to-Kozar-to-Vernon double play ended the suspense.

IN SHORT—Boudreau made several nifty plays at shortstop, but Al Kozar turned in the beaut of the evening. He raced in to field Keltner's hopper over the mound, skidded on his stomach, but got off the throw to beat Keltner to first by a half step. . . . Al Evans was notified by League President Harridge that he had been fined $25 for being bounced from last Saturday's game against Boston here . . . Washington climbed into a tie for fifth place with Detroit, only one-half game out of fourth . . . It's Bob Feller vs. Micky Haefner tonight.

Cubs Top Phils In 12th, 2 to 1; Leonard Loser

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—Eddie Waitkus opened the twelfth inning with a single, raced to third on a combination passed ball and wild throw by Andy Seminick, and then scored on Phil Cavarretta's single to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies here today.

Dutch Leonard and Dutch McCall, Rookie Cub southpaw, went down the line in a scoreless duel until the eleventh, when both sides tallied. Del Ennis slammed his No. 6 homer for the Philly run. The Cubs scored theirs as a result of a collision in the outfield by Eddie Miller and Richie Ashburn.

Bill Nicholson's pop fly dropped for a double as the result of the outfield mixup. He scored on a sacrifice and Al Walker's long fly.

$1500 Claim Killed After Fall in 8th

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 2.—Jockey Freddie Kratz, who reversed the usual procedure by coming to the flat races from the steeplechase, gave a good saddle exhibition here today and caused an upset in the Atchison Purse, featuring the mid-week program.

Kratz, of whom somebody said, "He's the only jocky who could take in washing and ride at the same time," booted W. C. Ensor's Connie Morse to victory. The leading rider at the meeting to date, Kratz has an unusual style, pumping his arms as if he were working on a washboard. However, he proved effective enough today to win with a filly previously ridden by top-flight boys on this circuit.

Connie Morse, a failure in 11 starts during the last two years, got home two lengths in front of Mrs. M. M. Dunaway's Rogers Moose. Three lengths farther back came H. Howard's Ringtime to be third in the field of eight.

Spread Wings Fades

Backers of Connie Morse, trained by C. P. Chenoweth, received a $27.20 mutuel after most of the play had centered on Spread Wings. The winner was clocked in 1:17 for the 6 furlongs plus 120 feet.

Spread Wings shook off Ringtime to take the early lead. These two dominated the front running to the far turn where Rogers Moose moved up boldly on the outside. Going toward the stretch, the three leaders were head and head.

Kratz was saving ground with Connie Morse and saw an opening on the inside entering the stretch. He sent Connie Morse through as Rogers Moose disposed of Spread Wings and Ringtime.

In the final drive, Connie Morse responded to the whip and was drawing out at the wire. Spread Wings was the most tired of the other three and dropped out of the money circle in the straightaway.

Those with a hunch to bet No. 7 in the early races collected a bunch. Horses with that post position won the first four events. The daily double on the seven and seven combination paid $532.60.

Fred Perry paid $1500 for a dead horse here this afternoon. He put in a claim for that amount for Henry J. Jones' Jab Me in the eighth race. The 7-year-old broke a leg while moving up at the far turn, threw Jockey Clarence Wright and had to be destroyed. Wright was not injured. The race was won by Worthowning, the 13-year-old distance star.

CONNIE MORSE, $27.20, $11.00, $5.60; ROGERS MOOSE, $4.40, $3.60; RING TIME, $4.40.

CONNIE MORSE was steadied early, while saving ground, slipped through on inside to get to serious contention and wore down ROGERS MOOSE in final drive. ROGERS MOOSE came around on outside to dispose of SPREAD WINGS, but could not retain winner. RING TIME saved ground to backstretch, made bid and then weakened. SPREAD WINGS set good pace, but weakened in closing stages.

SEVENTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1200. For 4-year-olds up. Start good. Off at 5:02½. Owner, Mrs. H. R. Miller. Trained by B. K. Miller. Time, 1:19⅘.

Anacostia Upsets Eastern, 7-4, in Interhigh Playoff

Tribe Meets Coolidge for Title Friday

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Scoring six times in the first inning, Anacostia's surprising Indians eliminated Eastern, 7-4, yesterday in the playoff semifinals at Griffith Stadium, and moved the Indians within two games of their first Interhigh baseball championship.

The Indians meet defending champion Coolidge Friday at 3:15 at Griffith Stadium. If Anacostia wins, Coolidge and the Indians play the title deciding game Monday. If Coolidge wins, the Colts take their third straight diamond crown.

Eastern's Coach Rolland Lund announced after the game that he would protest Anacostia's victory, but he was overruled by his principal, John P. Collins.

Lund based his protest on Anacostia's use of two graduates on the coaching lines. Collins said the two coaches, Don Purdy and Duke Mathieson, "had nothing to do with Anacostia's splendid show of hitting power." Without Collins' approval, Lund's protest cannot be filed.

Hits Pay Off

The Indians did some heavy hitting to avenge two earlier defeats at the hands of th Easterners. They landed on Eddie Kline for five hits and six runs in the first before he was removed with no one out.

Two walks and an Eastern error filled the bases. Jim Faulkner then slashed a single through short to score two. Johnny O'Brien's single to center brought in another. Two more came in on George Reeden's triple to deep left. Jerry McPherson's single to left, scoring Reeden, sent Kline to the showers.

Indians Outhit

Anacostia garnered only two hits the rest of the way, Eastern winning hitting honors, 9-7. However, George Sengstack, Anacostia's star right hander, stayed out of serious trouble by giving up seven of Eastern's hits after two were out.

Eastern scored once in the first on an error and Billy Kallas' triple. The second Rambler tally came in the second on a walk and singles by Marty Cribbins and Spike Bauroth. Singles by Bauroth and Don Jamieson and their double steal gave Eastern another in the fourth. The last came in on an error and Ted Dyer's two bagger to left.

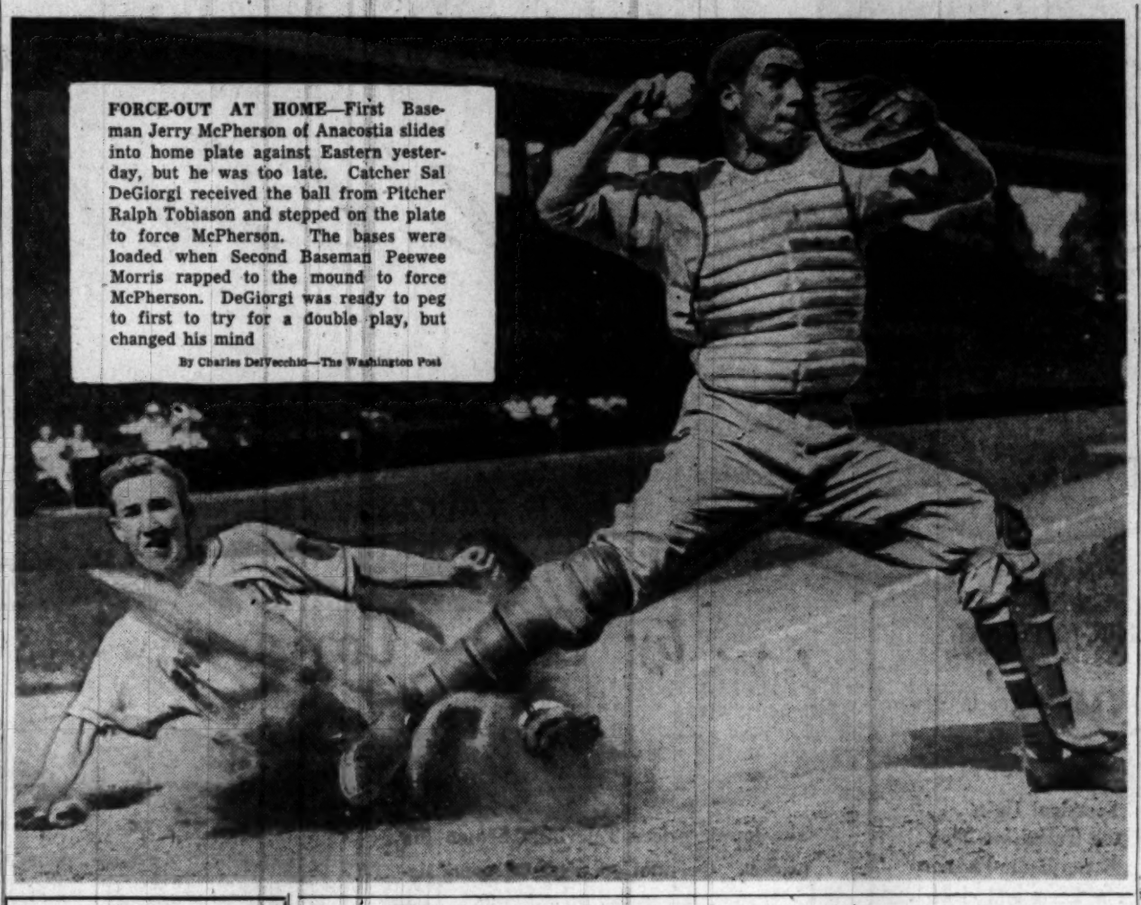
Navy Nine Picked For NCAA Playoff

Annapolis, Md., June 2 (AP).—Navy's baseball team will compete next week in District 2 playoffs of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament, Capt. E. B. Taylor, athletic director, announced today.

The Middies, victor in 13 of 19 intercollegiate games this spring, will run up against Rutgers, West Virginia and Lafayette in the first rung of the NCAA championships.

Winner of the district competition at Easton, Pa., next Wednesday and Thursday, will advance to the Eastern playoffs. The national finals will be held later at Kalamazoo, Mich.



FORCE-OUT AT HOME—First Baseman Jerry McPherson of Anacostia slides into home plate against Eastern yesterday, but he was too late. Catcher Sal DeGiorgi received the ball from Pitcher Ralph Tobiason and stepped on the plate to force McPherson. The bases were loaded when Second Baseman Peewee Morris rapped to the mound to force McPherson. DeGiorgi was ready to peg to first to try for a double play, but changed his mind

Columbia Ace Tops Gehrig's Batting Mark

New York, June 2 (AP).—Columbia University statisticians discovered today that Third Baseman Adam Rakowski had hit safely in every one of the Lions' 13 games this season and had finished with an average of .467—60 points higher than Lou Gehrig hit in 1923.

Rakowski, whose home is in Philadelphia, has hit safely in 18 straight games, including the last 5 of the 1947 campaign. He has another year of eligibility.

Cocky Jersey Joe

Grenloch, N. J., June 2 (AP).—Jersey Joe Walcott said today he was glad to hear Joe Louis is in such good shape because "I want him with all his strength, so he'll be able to go a few rounds before I take care of him."

The challenger made this comment after hearing that the heavyweight champion was just 1 pound over his desired fighting weight for their return bout at Yankee Stadium June 23.

City Fathers Kick

Bluefield, W. Va., June 2 (AP).—The Bluefield City Board of Directors has taken official notice of the dismal showing of the Bluefield Blue-Grays in the Appalachian Baseball League this season.

The board authorized Mayor A. Harry West to write President Louis Perini of the Boston Braves a letter protesting the "impotent team sent to Bluefield."

The Blue-Grays, a Braves' farm team, are deep in the league cellar after losing 21 games while winning only 8.

Bidding Starts Today

Thomaston, Ga., June 2 (U.P.).—Hugh Frank Radcliffe, 19-year-old high school baseball marvel, said today that he probably will make up his mind by Thursday whose contract he will sign.

Radcliffe was not eligible for official bidding until last night when he graduated from Thomaston High School. Regarded as perhaps the greatest prep school pitcher ever produced in Georgia, he has a half dozen no-hitters to his credit. He is best known for his 28 credited strike-outs in one game—one more than the regulation maximum. He got the extra one when the catcher dropped a third strike.

7 Ford Drivers Face Offys Again at Lanham

Among them are Jim Forte, Len Graham, Carl Miller, Johnny Jars, Hawley Kight, Mike San Felice and Shorty Bowers. San Felice and Bowers have been the leading money winners among the Ford drivers.

Heurich Wins, 8-2, Takes 1st; FBI Loses to Plumbers, 9-3

Heurich yesterday took undisputed possession of first place in The Washington Post Industrial League by walloping Thrifty, 8-2, on the Ellipse. Joe Kauffman led the winners' attack with two doubles and a single.

Left Fielder Red Giegerich had an unusually busy afternoon with nine points credited him. Heurich also did some long clouting to left field with Thrifty's Tim Aud gathering in six long drives.

12 Support, 7 Question Zone Ban in Georgetown

Acheson Is Among Backers of Plan To Curb Business East of Wisconsin

Former Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson was one of 12 witnesses yesterday to indorse a proposed ban on retail store expansion and new apartment house construction in Georgetown areas east of Wisconsin ave. nw.

Six other Georgetown residents and property holders at a zoning commission hearing did not object to the ban in general but opposed its application to particular properties they own or represent.

Only one witness opposed the plan in its entirety. The commission took the matter under advisement following the hearing, which was attended by approximately 50 persons.

Request Followed Survey

The change from commercial to restricted residential zoning in certain areas was proposed by the zoning commission and indorsed by the zoning advisory council. It followed a land use survey requested by the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown and the Georgetown Citizens Association.

Areas which would be affected include south side of P st. nw. between Wisconsin ave. and 31st st.; north side of O st. nw., between Wisconsin ave. and 31st st.; both sides of 31st st. nw. between M and N sts.; both sides of Olive st. nw. between 27th and 30th sts.; both sides of 28th and 29th sts. between Olive and M, and east side of 30th st. between Olive and M sts.

Sole objector to the whole plan was Attorney Rudolph B. Behrend, who represented the Connecticut Pie Co., 3159 O st. nw. He opposed it as "unnecessary" and said it would "confiscate" more than half the company's property if adopted without modification.

The advisory council report described the proposal as "the final step" in creating a "comprehensive plan" for all of Georgetown. A similar change affecting areas west of Wisconsin ave. was approved by the commission February 25, after a sharply-contested public hearing February 11.

Seen Boosting Values

It would encourage a "tendency" to build or reclaim houses "in harmony with" early Georgetown housing, enhance "stability" of the residential neighborhood, and boost property values, the council said.

These views were supported by Acheson; John Walker, curator of the National Gallery of Art; John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority, and other witnesses.

Attorney Robert E. Lynch, representing 50 Georgetown property owners, said petitions favoring the plan had been signed by 300 owners.

A Forest Hills Citizens Association request for a zoning amendment permitting nursery schools in residential areas was unopposed.

Dog Case Dropped As Owner Agrees To Destroy Animal

Charges against a woman whose watchdog inflicted serious bite wounds on a 5-year-old boy were dropped yesterday when the woman agreed to pay the boy's medical expenses and have the animal destroyed.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King quashed the case against Mrs. Ophelia Martin, a housemaid of 1026 Florida ave. ne., after a hearing in his office.

The victim of the dog's attack was Philip Donahue, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Donahue of 1114 Florida ave. ne. He suffered gashes on his face, abdomen and legs.

Laborer Shot Critically at 10th and I Sts.

Barber Arrested As Assailant on Witnesses' Tipoff

A 34-year-old laborer was shot in the abdomen and critically wounded about 6:10 last night at 10th and I sts. nw., and a suspect was immediately apprehended.

The shooting, police said, followed a street argument between the victim and his alleged assailant.

At Emergency Hospital, the victim was semiconscious, his condition described as critical. He was identified as Eddie Barnes, 1023 22d st. nw.

Victim Refuses to Talk

When police arrived at the scene a few minutes after the one shot rang out, Barnes was lying about 25 feet from the corner in the 900 block of I st., his head on the sidewalk and his feet in the street.

Barnes tried to get up, refusing to tell officers who he was.

As Barnes was rushed to Emergency Hospital, several witnesses to the shooting told police a man had run into the house at 923 I st., a few doors from where Barnes had lain.

In the building, police found a man they identified as Jett P. Mundy, 53, a barber. They said he lives there and surrendered without resistance. In his possession, they said, they found a German-make automatic pistol.

Climax to 12-Year Feud

Under questioning by detectives at First Precinct Station, Mundy was reported to have admitted the shooting. Detectives said he told them the shooting climaxed ill feelings between them since they first met nearly 12 years ago.

Yesterday afternoon, the barber told detectives, Barnes "became particularly abusive" when Mundy refused to purchase a "baseball pool" ticket. He allegedly twitted Mundy about losing a job at one barber shop where both had once worked, Barnes as a porter.

At height of the bickering, Mundy turned, went to his room and got the gun, returned and opened fire at Barnes from a distance of 15 feet, detectives said Mundy told them.

Vandals Raid Ninth District School in Week

Vandals raided the Garfield Elementary School late Tuesday or early Wednesday, pouring paint, ink and paste over attendance and scholastic records—the ninth ransacking of District schools within a week.

In earlier depredations during the week, three movie projectors valued at $395 were stolen, police reported yesterday.

Forcing a glass pane only about 12 by 14 inches, the vandals—believed to be revengeful students expelled from school for previous vandalisms—created havoc in a dozen classrooms at Garfield.

Rendered illegible were records of some 50 fifth and sixth grade students. But Principal Edward J. Edwards said these could be reconstructed from duplicate files—and teachers' memories.

Police reported two projectors worth $350 were stolen from the Jefferson Junior High School, 8th and H sts. sw. and a $45 projector was taken from the Blow School, 19th st. and Benning rd. ne. recently.

Other schools ransacked recently include the Garrison School, 12th st. between R and S sts. nw.; Kenilworth School, 44th and Nash sts. ne.; Randle Highlands School, 30th and R sts. se.; Bowen School, Delaware ave. and M st. sw.; Wilson Teachers College, 11th and Harvard sts. nw., and Turner Elementary School, Alabama ave. and Stanton rd. se.

Playing With Matches Leads to Traffic Tieup, Hospitalization of Chief

Children playing with matches in the musty, closed-down Gales School here were blamed by police last night for starting a three-alarm fire yesterday afternoon.

Three of the youngsters, 8, 9, and 10 years old, were rounded up and readily admitted accidentally starting the blaze which hospitalized one battalion fire chief and tangled home-going traffic for 45 minutes, police said.

The trio, police said, told them they found a paper book of matches on the street earlier in the afternoon and inadvertently dropped a lighted one on paper on the classroom floor. They were released in custody of their parents pending Juvenile Court action.

Seventh Battalion Fire Chief William C. Rees was overcome by the smoke shortly after ordering the second alarm. He returned to the heart of the fire, an unfurnished third-floor classroom of the three-story brick structure between G st. and Massachusetts ave. at 1st st. nw., where he was stricken. Fellow firemen helped him from the building.

At 6 p. m., after the 45-minute fire was out and smoke had cleared, it was found that the flames had attacked only the flooring and ceiling of the one classroom. Water damage, however, was estimated to be heavy.

First Precinct Detective D. J. Slattery said the search for the children began shortly after firemen reached the scene. Even before the fire was out, he said, police had the three in custody, soot-stained and watery-eyed from the smoke.

The trio told police, Slattery said, that they often played in the old school, gaining entry through a broken window. About five other children rounded up by Slattery and Detectives O. J. Schelin and C. K. Daub were later released as innocent.

After 74 years' service as a school building, Gales School was closed by the Board of Education on March 17, 1944, and released for servicemen's lodgings for war-filled Washington.

More recently, the District Health Department was authorized funds to convert it into facilities for a health center. Remodeling work, however, had not yet begun said A. G. Hutson, District director of construction. The District planned to use the structure to house its main pharmacy offices, maternal and child welfare clinics and offices of the schools' medical services.

The first alarm was sounded, apparently by a passerby, at 4:56 p. m. Two minutes later the second alarm was rung, and at 5:05 p. m., Fire Chief Clement Murphy ordered third-alarm equipment to the scene.

Aerial extension ladders were used to reach the third-floor room, where flames, visible through the windows, did not break through the roof.

Late afternoon streetcar traffic on G st. and Massachusetts ave. was halted more than a half-hour, and automobile traffic was slowed considerably on 1st st. and New Jersey ave. The firefighting equipment attracted thousands of spectators.

Though the building has been kept locked since discontinuance of its use as a servicemen's center, police said most of its windows were broken. They said they received frequent complaints of residents near the school of children tossing stones through the panes.

Gunman Who RapedGirl Still Evades Police

A gunman who Monday night bound a blonde 22-year-old insurance clerk and her boy friend and then raped the girl was still eluding police yesterday.

Police yesterday picked up another suspect, a 36-year-old janitor. He was paraded in a lineup before the victim's escort, Samuel C. Farr, 22-year-old grocery clerk, but the latter could not identify him. He then was released.

Death Held Suicide

Arlington Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn yesterday issued a certificate of suicide in the death of Gueron E. Cowan, 24, of 1408 S. Kent st., Arlington, who shot himself with a .22 rifle yesterday.

Police found Cowan's unconscious body near his parked car at S. Nash and Arlington Ridge rd. He died in Arlington Hospital 15 hours later. Relatives said that Cowan, a student at Central High School, had suffered from "war nerves" after combat duty in Europe.

D. C. Schools Set Sept. 13 Opening Date

Board Backs Vote Of Parents Asking One-Week Earlier Start of Classes

Schools will open a week earlier than usual next September and close a week earlier in June as the result of a vote of parents.

The Board of Education approved the change yesterday after receiving a report from Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning that 40,643 parents favor the earlier opening and closing while only 17,758 oppose it. The teachers voted 1810 for and 1476 against.

The school opening date was set for September 13 and the closing date June 16.

Powell Transfer Studied

The board also took under consideration a proposal by Dr. Corning to transfer students of Powell Junior High School, Hiatt pl. and Lamont st. nw., to other junior high schools and to use the Powell building to house the Bell Vocational High School.

Corning said enrollment at Powell has dropped from 1001 students in 1941 to 573. He recommended that plans previously approved by the board to combine Bell and the present Central High School in the Central building be abandoned in favor of transferring Bell to Powell.

Corning said no change should be made, however, until "interested citizens" have a chance to express their views. A group of Powell parents will visit his office at 11 a. m. today to discuss closing of the school.

Won't Close Corcoran

In other actions the board:

Rescinded a previous decision to close Corcoran Elementary School, 28th and M sts. nw., and use the building for storage. Corning reported there are now 235 preschool-age children in the area who will attend the school within the next few years.

Postponed action on turning over school playgrounds to the Recreation Department for a summer program, pending further hearings on whether the areas are to be racially segregated.

Asked the Corporation Counsel if it is necessary for school principals to remain in empty buildings over the summer months to collect their pay. Under a ruling of the District auditor's office, principals and school officers receive 26 days leave and must report when this leave runs out even if schools are not in session.

District Court To Ease Off July 1 to Oct. 1

With the criminal court calendar reported "in excellent shape," District Court will go into the annual summer low gear July 1 to October 4, it was decided yesterday at the spring term conference of judges.

In addition to planning the recess, the jurists:

1. Reappointed C. Melvin Sharpe, John H. Wilson and Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith to the School Board.

2. Named Dr. Marshall deG. Ruffin and Dr. Philip Litvin to the Commission on Mental Health, succeeding, respectively, Dr. Elmer Klein and Dr. Harold Stevens who have resigned. The change is effective June 8.

3. Reappointed Mrs. Eunice B. Thomas as jury commissioner serving a three-year term.

Two judges will sit through July. Only one will be on hand in August for emergencies. No criminal cases will be heard during August. Three judges will sit, starting the last two weeks in September until the court resumes full swing the following month.

Assignment Commissioner John Sullivan reported 192 cases awaiting action, a decrease of 54 under that of the same period last year. Of the 192 cases, 51 are not available for trial because the principals are fugitives or are awaiting trial in other jurisdictions. Only 17 cases are a year old or older and only 33 are more than six months old.

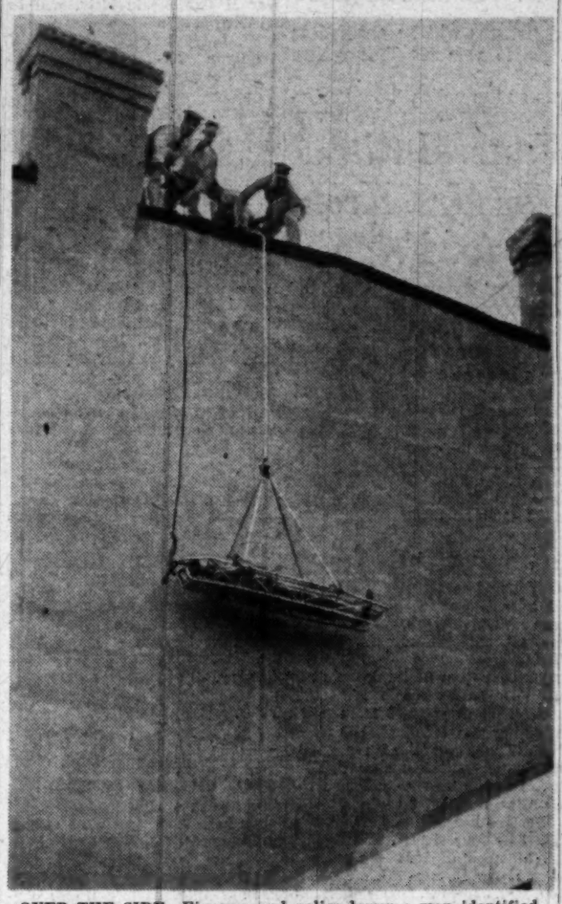
Brentwood Group Organizes Fight On Rent Increases

More than 150 tenants of Brentwood Village, Brentwood Gardens and Brentwood Development at 14th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne. have organized a Brentwood Village Tenants League to oppose proposed rent increases in the 750-unit development.

At a meeting Tuesday in the Social Oyster Club at 1251 Saratoga ave. ne., the group elected a nine-man executive committee and authorized it to fight the rent hikes. Tenants will be asked to contribute $2 or more each for attorney's fees and other expenses.

The District Rent Control Administrator said petitions by the village asked to raise rents ranging from $38 to $62.50 to new levels of $41.99 to $62.50. The Development asked to raise rents ranging from $57 to $69 to new levels of $67.84 to $82.12. The Gardens asked to boost rents ranging from $50 to $85 to new levels of $57.33 to $97.79.

Roof-Climber Removed . . .



OVER THE SIDE—Firemen and police lower a man identified by police as Edward F. Howard, 19, of 2313 Pennsylvania ave. nw., from the roof of a four-story building at 2405 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Howard, a former Marine, was spotted there yesterday about 6:15 p. m. by two patrolmen who said he was throwing bricks down on the sidewalk

Pay Raise Plan Is Advanced For D. C. Police and Firemen

Washington police and firemen figured yesterday in these legislative moves at the Capitol:

1. A pay raise plan for members of both departments cleared its first hurdle. It calls for giving the firemen and Metropolitan, Park and White House police increases equaling whatever Congress gives to Federal workers generally. The plan was approved by a House District Subcommittee headed by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) for action of the House District Committee today.

2. The police department budget for the year starting July 1 was trimmed back $125,000 by the Senate Appropriations Committee. The cut knocks out of the city money bill funds for 50 of the 207 new police positions allowed by the House. The action was based on a report of the U. S. Civil Service Commission predicting only 100 jobs could be filled in the department next year.

Crackdown on Sick Leave

3. A crackdown on abuse of sick leave by policemen was ordered by the Senate Appropriations Committee in its report on the District funds bill. The group directed that no policeman be excused from duty on sick leave without examination by a physician.

4. Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett's recommendation that new physical examinations be given policemen who were retired for disability and that those found fit be recalled to active duty was strongly indorsed by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The report said:

"The committee has been informed by the Superintendent of Police that if all men on retirement for disability with less than 30 years' service and under the age of 55 were examined, between 60 and 70 would be found physically fit and available for restoration to duty.

Examinations Ordered

"The committee directs that the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons make an examination of all such cases and report its findings to the chairmen of the two (House and Senate) Appropriations Committees."

5. Three new assistant Police Superintendents' positions were allowed by the Senate committee in next year's budget. The jobs would insure that a high-ranking official would be in charge of the department on all three shifts. Knocked out of the bill was the disputed new inspectorship recommended for Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Police Women's Bureau.

6. For the Fire Department, $15,000 was added by the Senate group to the money bill for new fire house sites, one near 49th and East Capitol sts., the other near 24th and Irving sts. se. The new amount is an addition to $114,600 previously appropriated for the sites.

Operating Cut

7. In the Fire Department's budget for operating expenses, a cut of $50,000 was ordered by the Senate committee to be absorbed by a reduction in the purchase of equipment.

8. In the police budget, $25,000 was knocked out of the House figure for repair of automobiles, but funds were allowed for buying 68 new cars next year instead of the 38 allowed by the House. The idea is that with the new cars, the repair bills will be trimmed.

9. The Senate Committee took a crack at the practice of transferring sick inmates of the District Jail to Gallinger Hospital. Its report ordered the Corrections Department "to keep all prisoners in the infirmary provided in the District Jail which has adequate beds and a first class operating room."

Evangelists to Sing

The Rev. H. Evan McKinley and his wife, musical evangelists of Morristown, Tenn., will play, sing and speak at the Takoma Park Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Carroll ave., today at 8 p. m. During the meeting the Anti-Cigarette Alliance, Inc., of the District, will elect officers.

3 Buildings Planned for Gallinger by Senate Unit

Big Improvement Program Aims to Make It a Leading Municipal Hospital

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday charted plans for improvements at Gallinger Hospital to make it "one of the outstanding municipal hospitals in the country."

The plans, woven into the District budget for the year starting July 1, call for a start at three new buildings—a combined pediatrics and crippled children's building to cost $2,050,000; a new laboratory to cost $478,000 and a new psychiatric building, the cost of which is not yet fixed.

For the first two buildings, the District money bill fixed the cost in the form of contract authorizations which will permit the city to start on the project.

The idea of combing the plan for a pediatrics building with a replacement for the crippled children's building originated in the District Appropriations Subcommittee headed by Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho). It was based on a study of hospitals for children in other cities ordered by Kimball Sanborn, committee staff member assigned to the District bill.

Has $620,000 Already

The city already has $620,000 from earlier appropriations for a new pediatrics building to be applied toward the combined building for pediatrics work and for crippled children.

The House had allowed $300,000 in new cash for a pediatrics building to cost $1,610,000. The provision for the new cash in the coming year was knocked out by the Senate group, to be deferred until future appropriations.

For the laboratory building, the city has $190,000 to use from previous appropriations for the project.

For the psychiatric building, the bill approved by the Senate committee carries $30,000 for plans and specifications. Also included is $15,000 previously approved by the House for an additional amount to construct a Gallinger Hospital incinerator.

The Senate committee also ordered a sharp reduction in the rate charged to the District by Freedmen's Hospital for the indigent patients it treats. Sanborn said the present rate is $13.95 a day. The committee ordered this reduced to $9 a day for patients in the hospital, and $2 per visit by outpatients. This is the same scale fixed for District payments to private hospitals here for the indigent patients they treat.

Other Items Approved

In its report on the District money bill, the Senate Appropriations group approved these additional recommendations for the city's health setup.

1. District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler was directed to provide within the funds granted the Health Department money for 15 nurses to be assigned exclusively to the care of tuberculosis cases. The decision was in line with a request from Health Officer George C. Ruhland to make the nurses available for following up the city-wide X-ray survey for tuberculosis.

2. Employment of an additional full-time chief medical officer to head Gallinger's psychiatric service was ordered, with the money to come from available hospital funds.

3. Budget Officer Fowler was directed to provide out of the existing appropriation funds for four additional positions in the crippled children's ward at Gallinger. The committee said the ward is now understaffed.

4. The committee report made this declaration on Gallinger personnel: "This year more than $250,000 will be returned to the Treasury from unfilled positions. It is the intention of the committee to hold the Health Officer and the Superintendent of Gallinger Hospital responsible for any criticism attendant to the improper care of patients as Congress has been most generous in providing adequate funds."

Area News in Brief

Police Vehicle Use For Injured Curbed

From now on sick or injured persons will be entitled to transportation to hospitals in police vehicles—but return trips are out.

In a memorandum to members of the police force yesterday, Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett said that after such persons "have been brought to medical attention, the emergency is over as far as this department is concerned and the method and means of returning home is then the responsibility of the subjects or their families."

Barrett said that scout cars or patrol wagons must immediately report back in service after delivering persons to hospitals.

The chief later told reporters in some cases police vehicles have waited at hospitals as long as two and three hours to return emergency cases to their homes.

Jaycees Off for Session

The Virginia delegation will support Joseph W. Saunders, Alexandria architect and retiring Virginia Jaycee president, for national vice president at the annual election. A truckload of Virginia apples, tobacco and mill goods was taken along for distribution at the covention.

Student Bus Cards

Montgomery and Prince Georges County school children will receive Capital Transit student identification cards this week entitling them to 3-cent-per-zone streetcar and bus fare.

Capital Transit Co. officials said the cards will be handed out by teachers and will be good for reduced fare from June 6 to June 18 when schools close.

Budget Cuts Protested in Montgomery

Montgomery County school and police officials served notice yesterday they will protest recommended slashes in their budgetary requests when the county's 1948-49 budget comes up for hearing June 15.

County Supervisor I. G. McNayr, in his budgetary proposals submitted to county commissioners, cut $544,000 from the $3,429,000 asked by schools and $121,000 from the $686,000 asked by police.

The schools' request was a "rock bottom figure and we need every penny of it," H. Stanley Stine, president of the county Board of Education, said. He and Nathan R. Gilbert, president of the county's Council of Parent-Teachers Associations, said they would protest McNayr's recommendations.

Police Chief Charles M. Orme also openly criticized McNayr's police recommendations which eliminated police pay raises and the proposed establishment of a county traffic bureau. Orme said he had "dozens" of letters from business and civic groups supporting higher police salaries.

McNayr's recommended $2,225,000 for schools is $487,000 more than schools received this year, although under the amount requested, and his recommended $565,000 for police represents a $113,000 increase over this year's.

9 Launch-Upset Victims Found

Norfolk, Va., June 2 (AP).—Naval spokesmen today reported 100 lifejackets were stored in the Liberty launch that swamped in Hampton Roads Monday night and left 28 sailors and Marines missing.

There were 76 jackets in the launch when it was hoisted from the water. Doors to several lifejacket lockers were open.

Eighteen Navy men and 10 Marines perished when the 50-foot launch capsized while returning about 90 to 100 men to the carrier Kearsarge after Memorial Day liberty. Bodies of nine victims have been found. Naval officers said the bodies probably were carried into Chesapeake Bay.

Meanwhile, an investigation of the accident is in progress aboard the Kearsarge as she leads a 72-ship naval task force to the Mediterranean for a five-month tour of duty.

The death toll equaled that of the explosion of depth charges at the Norfolk Naval Air Station September 17, 1943, when 28 persons were killed and 250 others injured.

Iceland Envoy to Speak

Civil War Widow Observes 100th Birthday in Arlington

Farewell, my friend, I must leave you;
Remember, listen here to what I say,
That my departure should not grieve you,
For we shall meet some future day.

The Washington Post
MRS. ROSETTA POST
"Unreconstructed Yankee"

Those lines, written 87 years ago, explain why Mrs. Rosetta Post, who celebrated her 100th birthday in Arlington yesterday, is still an "unreconstructed Yankee" today.

In brown ink which is now faded, lines were composed by her future husband, John Martin Post, just before he left their native town of Camillus, N. Y., to fight on the Union side in the Civil War.

During Mrs. Post's 100th birthday party in her home at 3457 N. 13th st. yesterday, the worn leather autograph book with her late husband's poem played a prominent part.

In it, members of her family, friends and fellow-members of Arlington's Wilson Blvd. Christian Church signed their names.

Headed by Mrs. Parrie Bollinger, a delegation of church friends presented Mrs. Post with a "love gift" of $66 collected from parishioners of the church she attended for more than two decades.

To crown the day, her granddaughter, Mrs. Margaret McInroy, 113 B st. se., had made her an elegant, three-tiered birthday cake with "100" standing boldly on its crest.

Of Mrs. Post's five children, three are living. She now lives at the 13th st. address with her youngest daughter, Mrs. Edna M. Council, and her husband, Paul. Mr. Post died in 1917.

Postlude

Virgil Fox's Organ Playing Brilliant; Program Shameful

By Paul Hume

Virgil Fox drew a capacity audience to National City Christian Church last night for his first organ recital in Washington in more than a year.

He should be ashamed of the program he listed. Fox is one of America's outstanding organists, and commands the admiration of thousands across the country. Yet no one looking over the composers' names on the recital (Bach, Franck, Mendelssohn, Langlais, Vierne) would guess that he was American or under 50.

His playing is almost, though not quite, impeccable. But artistry and style are prime requisites in organ playing as in any other music. Is it right to play Bach as though one were seated at a color organ, with liberties of tempo and dynamics that would make Stokowski blush? Bach, as Fox himself said in his verbal and somewhat precious program notes, was not only a great musician but a great man.

It does not seem probable, from Bach's manuscript, that when he wrote a simple song with the lines, "Come sweet death, come gentle peace," that he expected to have it inflated on an organ to a fortissimo that shakes buildings. These qualities are not the work of a profound musician.

Rather they are brazen theatricality. Music which must be sugar-coated for a public is not worthy of playing. Music which can speak for itself without distortion should be honored by being permitted to do so.

One technical slip we were surprised to hear was the last note of the D Major Fugue. Fox was no doubt carried away by his own brilliance, for he missed the hurdle.

These are small points. The playing was superb technically. As a program of music in 1948 it was shameful.

Arlington Board Hears Arguments on Zoning

Arlington County Board members last night heard arguments from the public for and against a proposed new county-wide zoning ordinance.

The board held up a decision on the ordinance until after a series of smaller hearings in various areas of the county.

The smaller group meetings were proposed by Basil DeLashmut, board member, after 250 persons filled the Arlington County Courthouse room for last night's hearing.

A hearing for the area south of Lee blvd. will be held at the courthouse at 8 o'clock tonight.

Middies Given 67 Awards at Brigade Review

Annapolis, Md., June 2 (AP).—Midshipman E. Newbold Smith, a 10-letter man, received honors today as the Naval Academy's foremost athlete.

Altogether, 67 trophies, medals, cups, weapons and commendatory letters were presented to standout Midshipmen at a brigade formation on Worden Field.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, chief of naval operations, took the brigade review with full honors—four ruffles and flourishes and a 17-gun salute.

Midshipman Smith, Navy's football, wrestling and track star from Ardmore, Pa., was presented Naval Academy Athletic Association binoculars for excellence in general athletics. He was described as "the first athlete in recent Naval Academy history to win 10 varsity letters."

Richard U. Scott of Highland Falls, N. Y., was presented the Thompson trophy cup for "the Midshipman who has done the most during the year for the promotion of athletics."

William Wagner of Annapolis was awarded the National Society of Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, the Thompson, and the American Bureau of Shipping prizes. The National Women's Relief Corps prize went to Boone Case Taylor of Greensboro, Md.

In another June Week ceremony, the "Blue Angels," Navy flight exhibition team from Jacksonville, Fla., buzzed Annapolis in six fighter planes.

Navy battlewagons steamed into Annapolis Roads today and immediately rigged for visitors.

Thursday will be visiting day aboard the Battleship Missouri, the aircraft carrier Coral Seas, two heavy cruisers, eight destroyers and a landing ship dock.

Negro Found on Bed Of White Woman Shot

Jacksonville, Fla., June 2 (AP).—A white woman awoke today to find a Negro lying on her bed. He was promptly shot to death by her husband and brother-in-law.

A 14-month-old child of Mrs. C. A. Green was wounded in the hand as Green and his brother shot the Negro, Dosier Sapp, 28, nine times. Police said the Negro, before dying, said he had broken into the house by cutting the screen in a window. Officials said no charges would be placed against the Greens.

Boy of Eight Rated Youngest N. Y. Burglar

New York, June 2 (U.P.).—A boy of 8 and his 12-year-old friend told police today they had staged a dozen burglaries in three months, spending their loot on candy and soda. The 8-year-old lad was the youngest burglar on record in the city.

His mother said the child has a speech defect, and writes backward and upside down. He said he had been troublesome since he began school two years ago and that frequently he plays hookey. He is one of six children.

Who Sits Above Salt?

Protocol Pops Up at ECA As Minions Anticipate Welter of Public Eating

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ALREADY protocol problems are raising their nasty little heads in anticipation of the welter of public eating Economic Cooperation Administration minions must do. Obviously, Averell Harriman and Paul Hoffman, when separate, rank next to our overseas ambassadors. But what happens when they pop up at the same festive board? In which place do deputies, and directors of ECA Bureaus in various Marshall Plan countries, tuck their napkins under chin? To find out we called the State Department. The arbiters of protocol, with caution so admirable in their delicate position, replied "it depends, of course, on who is present. We cannot be quoted nor go on record. We will meet situations as they arise. So far we have only had to deal with David Bruce." (Mr. B. is director of the Paris Bureau)—help, help, help Emily Price Post.

Incidentally, or rather, far from incidentally, D. J. Zellerbach, director of ECA in Italy, flew in from San Francisco and breezed back 36 hours later. Humorous, smart as a whip (why a whip should be smart we wouldn't know) when at home he heads U. P. Crown, Zellerbach, one of the country's big paper companies.

He lives practically on top of Presidio Hill, owns at least one Matisse, is lucky enough to have a wife willing to go anywhere at the drop of a hat, claims he is making no sacrifice, except personal comfort in taking on his tough assignment.

As light reading he was skipping through a volume entitled "Why Men Work" written by a vice president of his company. Forgetting some fortunate beings don't have to work to eat, we thought there was only one answer to this question. "It's a sense of responsibility," said well-heeled Dave Zellerbach cheerfully. "It is a fear of boredom," we snapped ungraciously. Anyway, boredom or responsibility, Italy is lucky to get him.

Scored on Moscow

POSITIVELY the only man who has ever defeated the Russians single handed passed through town briefly en route to the International Labor Conference in San Francisco. He is Sir Godfrey Ince, Britain's permanent secretary of the Labor Ministry. A civil servant, not member of the cabinet, Sir Godfrey is the wizard who mobilized his country's stupendous wartime labor effort, then demobilized it and now is responsible for the Empire's accelerated production program. Sir Godfrey's deed of derring-do happened in Russia before the war. He captained the last British football team which journeyed Moscowards and personally ran up the only score on either side—a toughly contested touchdown.

Forrestal to Foxcroft

YOU WOULD scarcely associate astringent Secretary of Defense Forrestal with a female academy of learning, but come next Monday he is going to Foxcroft School, out in Middleburg, to make the graduation address. It is not as incongruous an idea as one might think, for the hundred plus Foxcroft girls have been drilled in marching, countermarching and handling real guns since the war. They are put through their paces by Maj. Charles Cushman, a Middleburger who owns a neat assortment of horses, yet still keeps up with his martial life.

The Marshall Plan Wit

HIGH MUCKA-TO-MUCKS in politics and such methods of gainful employment help keep abreast of current and undercurrent events with a shower of "confidential" and "intelligence" reports circulated by smart laddies. Sometimes these thumb-on-the-world-pulsers come up with a delightfully quotable crack. The best and most conversationally usable, at least to this department, headlined a pessimistic dissertation on Marshall Plan distribution. In big, solemn-black letters it read "Tabering Off."

Happy Birthday, Mr. B.

NEATEST way of encouraging important acquaintances to sing "Happy Birthday," even at considerable distance was worked out, we are told, by genial elder statesman, Bernard Baruch. Some time back, asked by the White House Camarilla to set his own time and drop in for a confidential chat, Mr. B. wired back promptly. In approximate wording the message said "Free any time except my birthday, August 19."

MISS BEATRICE CARDOZO

. . . to be married

Cardozo—Long

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cameron Cardozo of Greensboro, N. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Beatrice Louise, to Robert Clifton Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clifton Long of Richmond, Va.

Miss Cardozo, a resident of Washington, is a graduate of Westhampton College of the University of Richmond. Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Richmond and served three years with the Army. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity.

Eleanor M. Ong Chooses June 12 For Wedding

Miss Eleanor Marie Ong, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Alfred Ong of Chevy Chase, has selected June 12 for her marriage to Cadet Richard Chatfield Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor of Washington. The wedding will take place at All Saints' Episcopal Church and will be followed by a small reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

Miss Ong and Mrs. Chatfield Taylor left yesterday for New London, Conn., to attend the graduation of Cadet Chatfield Taylor from the Coast Guard Academy. When Miss Ong returns to the city, she will face a busy schedule of parties.

Wednesday, June 9, a luncheon will be given for her by Mrs. Richard Wilmer. That evening Miss Julia Bruce will entertain at a dinner in her honor, and the following day, June 10, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar K. Legg, jr., her cousins, will give a luncheon for the bride-elect at their home, "Graydon," in Leesburg, Va. The afternoon of June 10 Miss Benair Mills will give a cocktail party at her home for Miss Ong, and later a dinner will be given by Miss Jean McBride at the Chevy Chase Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Chatfield Taylor will entertain Friday, June 10, at a dinner for the bridal party, members of the two families and out-of-town guests.

At Greenbrier

Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley and Mrs. Bradley left yesterday for White Sulphur Springs and will spend a few days at the Greenbrier.

Return From Greenbrier

Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson of Washington have returned after a motor trip to White Sulphur Springs, Va., where they were guests at the Greenbrier. Other Washingtonians stopping at the Greenbrier over Memorial Day weekend were Mr. and Mrs. James K. Vardaman and Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould.

Public Relations National Group Elects Mrs. Woods

Election of Mrs. Thalia S. Woods, executive secretary, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Washington, D. C., to the office of national secretary of the American Public Relations Association, marks the first time a woman has been seated on the national board of governors of APRA.

MRS. WOODS

The election took place during the First International Public Relations Institute and third annual convention of APRA, held at American University, May 24-27. Mrs. Woods is the first woman to hold a national office in APRA.

Mrs. Woods became associated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs as secretary to the president in 1931 and was named executive secretary in 1944. The General Federation has a national membership in excess of 3,500,000, in addition to a large foreign membership. Her previous Washington experience had been with the American Association of University Professors and the Industrial Survey and Research Service. She attended Oakland City (Ind.) College, Indiana University and George Washington University.

Unable to be present at the induction of APRA officers because of her duties at the annual federation convention in Portland, Oreg., Mrs. Woods' telegraphic acceptance was read here. She is now vacationing on the West Coast during the month of June before resuming her work at GFWC headquarters here.

MRS. McKINLEY KRIEGH, JR.
. . . double ring ceremony

In a double ring ceremony, Miss Beverly Claire Bumgarner became the bride of McKinley Wesley Kriegh, jr., at the Wesley Methodist Church yesterday, the Rev. C. Stanley Lowell officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bumgarner and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kriegh.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with a veil of illusion. She wore an heirloom diamond pendant and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Richard Goverman, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Another sister, Miss Norma Jean Bumgarner, was junior bridesmaid. Other attendants were Miss Mary Beth Kriegh, sister of the bride groom, and Miss Betty Hobart. The attendants wore taffeta dresses in pastel shades and carried roses. Alice Goverman was flower girl and her husband, David Groverman, was the ring bearer.

Charles Robert Kriegh was best man for his brother, and Richard Groverman, James Burt, William Cooper and Andrew Moore were ushers.

On the Party Calendar

Mrs. Lewis Entertains For Adm., Mrs. Ewen

By Marie McNair

IT WAS a summertime party picture at Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis' cocktail party yesterday afternoon at the Sulgrave Club. Pastel frocks, ankle length, and wide brimmed hats in the mode of the moment, needed only beruffled parasols to revive a scene in which guests there, from "old Washington" had played a part.

Mrs. Lewis, in a long gown of black chiffon and a magnificent purple orchid pinned to her shoulder, was introducing her nephew and niece, Admiral and Mrs. Edward C. Ewen, not entirely strangers to our town, but who are here for station now. Mrs Ewen, a charming, bright-eyed woman with a mass of gray curls covering her head, wore a colorful print frock of red and deep blue patterned on white.

The widow of J. Ham Lewis, for many years a leading figure in the Senate, numbers her friends from all circles. Yesterday there was a large group from Washington of a quarter of a century ago, and diplomats newly arrived in town. There was also a sprinkling of young people, sons and daughters of old friends, some of them with sons and daughters of their own.

The Luxembourg Minister and Mme. LeGallais were there and Mme. van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, brought her sister, Mrs. Raymond Wilson, visiting her from London.

Justice Reed Attends

Justice Stanley Reed sat comfortably on the side lines talking with Mrs. Edward Everett Gann. Pretty Mrs. Loy Henderson in a pale print and big natural colored hat, told me she's going soon to Madison, Conn., for the summer, with Mr. Henderson joining her whenever he can.

Mrs. George Barnett was in the center of one conversational group after another. Mrs. Claude Pepper I met coming in, looking cool as the proverbial cucumber in a green and white silk jacket suit and a halo of white flowers in her hair.

Former Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings were there and Mrs. Arthur MacArthur in white and black scroll print. Mrs. Henry Flood who has just bought a house in Chevy Chase, says she'll by no means give up her apartment at the Shoreham, but will enjoy having a porch and garden for the summer.

Mrs. Clark Woodward, there with the admiral, wore a gay printed gown with the design picked out in sequins on the bodice and Mrs. Fred Britten in sheer black had two red roses on her black horsehair hat.

I saw at a distance Breckenridge Long, Mrs. William F. Sowers, Capt. Robert P. Jackson, and Mrs. Jackson in a garden party frock of black chiffon with the off-the-shoulder decolletage fashioned of rows of filmy lace and a cartwheel hat of toast colored straw.

Rossos Are Guests

Then there were the former Italian Ambassador and Signora Rosso; the former Austrian Minister and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik talking with Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim and Mrs. Mason Gulick quietly chatting with Mrs. Wade Ellis, who was there with Mr. Ellis. Fred Roy in a white linen jacket and George Williams had been asked to "assist." Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, judging by her floor-length gown, was going on to dinner.

Judge Clarence Norton Goodwin and son Norton were joined by Mrs. Goodwin, who had been to the tea given by Mrs. Thomas Stone, wife of the Canadian Minister, as a farewell fete for the White House, Senate Ladies and Shoreham Spanish classes. Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. George Malone and Mrs. James Gilman had also been at the tea, and to keep on—I saw Mrs. Randall Hagner, Jack Logan, Lyle Brookover, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, former Ambassador and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, Miss Margaret Frazer, Kurt Hetzel, John Caswell, without Betsy, who is home with a cold; Dr. and Mrs. George Trible, Miss Mary Howry, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. Albert Niblack, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Diggs, Mrs. English Gordon, Mrs. Bissett Norment and Edward Van Devanter.

Whitneys Entertain At Dinner Party

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT WHITNEY, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, and Mrs. Whitney entertained at dinner last evening in their apartment at the Shoreham.

Their guests were the Governor of Alaska and Mrs. Ernest Gruening, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, Sir John Balfour, British Minister, and Lady Balfour; Countess Laszlo Szechenyi and Joseph Alsop.

Mrs. Vandenberg Entertains For Senate Ladies

MRS. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg, entertained the Senate Ladies Luncheon Club yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club. Mrs. Vandenberg, as the wife of the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, heads the group of Senate ladies who meet weekly during the congressional season to sew for the Red Cross, then hold a picnic luncheon at the Capitol.

Miss McNamara Gives Luncheon

A LUNCHEON in the Mayflower Lounge Tuesday was that given by Miss Lois McNamara for 11 of her classmates who graduated yesterday from Immaculata Seminary. Miss McNamara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. McNamara of Norwalk, Conn., who came to Washington for the graduation exercises.

The young ladies at the luncheon were Mary Anne Vlakos, Ruth Cravin of Scarsdale, N. Y., Kathleen Sullivan, Betty Jean Burke, Vera Neubauer, Betty Murphy, Carolyn Sadawsky, Janet Hall, Maureen Conly and Ann Marie Emmett.

Crusade Gifts Committee Meets for Luncheon

THE Special Gifts Committee of the Crusade for Children met for a buffet luncheon Tuesday at the United Nations Club. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman made an appealing speech for the "Crusade," which is organized for immediate relief of 232,000,000 underfed children all over the world.

Pierre Jasper Is Dinner Host

PIERRE JASPAR, chief of the Belgian Economy Mission, entertained at a dinner party last evening on the Shoreham terrace in honor of Mrs. C. de Bosque and her daughter, Miss Mary de Bosque, who are completing a tour of the Americas and will soon be returning to Belgium.

The Washington Post

"WHO is going to be the next President?" queries the interested group, gathered around the crystal ball at the benefit garden party yesterday sponsored by the D. C. Chapter, Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace. In the huddle are (left to right) Mrs. George Maurice Morris, member of the hostess committee; Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Florida Senator; Representative Brooks Hays of Arkansas, and Mrs. Evangeline Balfour, graphologist and handwriting reader. Scene was historic Evermay, 1623 28th st, ne.

Garden Party Benefits Peace Cause

By Genevieve Reynolds

A LARGE sprinkling of Washington's official and residential society strolled across the spacious, verdant lawns at historic Evermay, 1623 28th st., and sighed, "with this beautiful, cool spot and mansion, nothing could tear us away from the Capital—except the forthcoming political conventions." Occasion was the benefit garden party, sponsored by the D. C. Chapter, Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace."

Agreeing that a Washington summer wouldn't be too suffocating in such pleasant surroundings were Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Associate Justice, and Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the Assistant to the President. All took turns at the punch bowls and had their fortunes told as did Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Tom Connally and Mrs. Brooke Hays.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint, was another presiding at the punch bowls as was Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

The gala event was "emceed" by Representative Brooks Hays of Arkansas. Music was furnished by the Metropolitan Police Band under the direction of Capt. Charles Benter.

Futures were read by palmists, graphologists and character analysists. Contributing their service and knowledge for the cause were Mrs. Ellis Meredith, Mrs. William A. Rhodes, and Mrs. Stella Kopulos.

Glimpsed here and there among the guests were Mrs. Nathan Hurwitz, Mrs. "Bobby" Prew, Miss Charlotte Phinney, who has just moved to town from Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Perrin, Senora Jewell de Bonilla of New York City, Mrs. Richard Harkness, member of the hostess committee, who darted here and there to see that all was running smoothly; Miss Marguerite Griffin, newly elected president of the Women's City Club, with her close friend, Miss Etta Mai Russell.

Still others were Mrs. Elizabeth Nowinski, Mrs. Leslie Ruebush, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, the latter all active members of the committee.

Edgar Ansel Mowrer showed up to give a helping hand to his spouse Lillian, who heads the local chapter of WACLP.

Hersheys Have Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hershey announced the birth of a daughter, Kathleen Louise, on May 20 in Seattle, Wash. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Lewis B. Hershey of Washington are grandparents of the baby.

Eric Johnston Fetes Griffins

DR. AND MRS. FRANCIS GRIFFIN—she's Irene Dunne of Hollywood fame—were the guests in whose honor Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, and Mrs. Johnston, entertained at dinner last evening at the 1925 F Street Club.

Senator Harry Cain was among the guests and Mrs. Cain, who has just arrived from Washington State after an absence of several months. Also there was Mrs. Verbena Hebberd, who accompanied Dr. and Mrs. Griffin from California, and Representative and Mrs. Walt Horan.

Dr. and Mrs. Griffin who are at the Mayflower, expect to leave Washington today.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 22, Engaged to Intelligent Exemplary Young Man, Wonders If Her Feeling Is Love; She's Never Bored. But Still Never Thrilled

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 22 and I seem to have no mind of my own. I am engaged to a very nice young man who is intelligent, holds a good position and is everything a girl would wish for. My problem is, do I love him?

Almost every evening for the past six months we have been together. We have everything in common, yet I don't exactly enjoy myself when we are together.

He doesn't bore me; I look forward to his company and never tire of him; but what makes me think something is lacking is that my girl friends who have dates always tell me how much in love they are; how thrilling it is to hold hands and be kissed; and they lie awake nights wondering how soon "He" will call again.

Just what is this thrill, and why don't I have it? If I don't love Charles, why don't I tire of him? Why do I look forward to seeing him?

Man Is Eager For Marriage

HE WANTS us to marry soon, to start building our home; and one minute I think I would like very much to have my own home, but the next minute I'm not sure.

I have an offer to spend the next six months working at a vacation resort, where there would be fun and adventure, and I would like to go; but I know it isn't fair to Charles. I wouldn't want him to go away for six months; yet the thought of my leaving him for six months doesn't bother me too much, though I'm sure he would feel brokenhearted.

I have tried to explain my indecision to him but he won't listen and he doesn't want the engagement ring back. He says he will wait forever, if it takes that long for me to decide; but he urges me to marry him now. He says if I would just give him a chance, he is sure he could make me happy. Sometimes I'm sure that he could, and then I feel that haunting thought, "I don't know." What do you think? Please answer soon.

G. L.

Thrills Attend Dangerous Sport

DEAR G. L.: What your girl friends are describing is the thrill of excitement, uncertainty and suspense involved in testing their wits and powers of attraction against those of young men whose intentions aren't "definite."

In this game, the idea of each is to make a conquest of the other, without exposing his own heart to hurt. Each is resolved, at least unconsciously, not to be "first to fall in love" with the other. Thus in this duelling match, holding hands and kissing has some of the elements of "forbidden fruit," or of "playing with fire."

What goes on is a form of sex play, which certainly isn't love per se. This type of dalliance is a nervous excitant, which is likely to leave the participants keyed-up, restless, emotionally hungry, unsure of the impression they've made for good or ill, etc., hence wakeful and wondering in the hours after parting. And the reason you don't feel this way about Charles is because you are sure of his love, which is wholesome, generous and loyal.

No Suspense In Her Love

BASICALLY you and Charles are friends. You like each other, quite apart from being "in love" with you, which explains the placid tempo of the courtship, as well as your eagerness to see him daily.

As to whether you love him, I think you do; so much, I daresay, that if he were to take back the ring and seriously address himself to me other girl, you would feel as if the ground had dropped from beneath your feet. You would feel soulsick with panic and pain, wondering why you hadn't fully appreciated him when he was yours to command, ever considerate of your moods.

Your willingness to go away for six months, little concerned about Charles' dismay, derives from your strong conviction that he's yours for keeps any time you say. It doesn't mean that you don't love him, because the truth on that score is told in the fact that you wouldn't want him to go away!

SANDALS for hot weather wear will be good again this summer. The four styles above are, left to right, the Scheherazade, which features a turned up closed toe, platform wedge sole and a gold ankle strap; two versions of the perennially popular T-strap in new wedge heel styles; and the cross-strapped multi-color sandal. Available at Chandler's Boot Shop

Something Special For Party Menu

Something special in sandwiches for the new homemaker's buffet meals or party snacks are these made of homemade nut bread and banana-ham spread, a newcomer among sandwich fillings.

PARTY NUT BREAD

½ cup sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 cup bran
2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup chopped nutmeats

Beat egg and sugar until light. Add milk, shortening and bran. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Combine with nutmeats and add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Bake in greased loaf pan, with waxed paper on bottom, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 1 hour. Recipe makes 1 medium-sized loaf.

BANANA HAM SPREAD

¼ cup diced celery
¼ teaspoon finely chopped onion
1½ teaspoon prepared mustard
1 ripe banana, peeled
8 slices bread
Butter

Mix together ham, celery, onion and mustard. Dice the banana and mix lightly with the ham mixture. Spread 4 slices of bread with ham mixture. Cover with slices of buttered bread to make sandwiches.

How to Insulate Playroom Walls

What can unpainted insulating wallboards be treated with before painting? Our recreation room has such walls, but in the hot weather last summer condensation made them moist. We want to paint the walls, but want to be sure we treat the walls with the proper priming first to avoid condensation.

E. Du F.

Wallboards can be sized before painting with oil by using a commercial glue size or a varnish size. Or you can prepare a size yourself by mixing 1½ pounds of chip glue in one gallon of water. The sizing will help keep moisture from penetrating the wallboard from the back, but it cannot be expected to prevent condensation unless there is an air space or insulation between the wallboard and the cement basement wall. Without this air space or insulation, the wall board becomes the same temperature as the cellar wall which, in summer, is cooler than the room air. When the warm air touches the cooler wall the moisture condenses from the air, causing moisture to collect on the wall. The only way to prevent condensation on such a wall is to keep basement windows closed to prevent entrance of warm air and use a fan in the room to improve air circulation.

I have just moved into an apartment with parquet floors. The previous tenant had allowed the rather deep cracks between the squares to become clogged with dust, and as a result they were literally alive with moth worms. After laborious use of the vacuum and DDT I have finally eliminated these pests. Do you know of any product on the market which may be used to fill up these large cracks? Is any type of coloring available to darken regular crack filler or plastic wood? E. G.

You can buy plastic wood in colors such as mahogany and walnut. A paint store on 13th st., which can be reached by calling National 6386, is expecting a shipment of these in a week or 10 days. Here is, however, a word of warning. Plastic wood has a solvent in it which will remove the varnish on the floor if it comes in contact with it. Because of this and because of the large number of cracks which are possibly present in your parquet floor, it is a real undertaking to fill them. Unless expertly done, the floor may require complete refinishing when the cracks are filled. Therefore, unless you wish to undertake a complete refinishing job, I would suggest you not try to fill the cracks but use the vacuum frequently to prevent dirt lodging in them. Running a moth preventative liquid along the cracks with a squirt oil can will prevent moths locating in them.

What is the procedure for finishing an unpainted oak dinette suite to get a dull or limed oak finish? M. M. L.

To the bare, smoothly sanded wood, apply a coat of flat white paint and wipe it off almost immediately. The idea is to fill the pores of the wood with the white. Allow the piece to dry thoroughly for a day or two and then sandpaper the surface until smooth. When thoroughly smooth, apply several thin coats of colorless wax, allowing each to dry and buffing well before applying the next.

Do you have a recipe for making eggnog ice cream? If so, please publish it. F. C. G.

EGGNOG ICE CREAM

2 teaspoons gelatin
2 tablespoons cold milk
1 cup coffee cream
¾ to 1 cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons vanilla
1⅛ pints (3 cups) whipping cream
Several tablespoons of rum, brandy or whisky.

Soak gelatin in cold milk. Heat cream in the top of a double boiler and stir sugar and salt into it until dissolved. Pour mixture over beaten egg yolks and stir until thick and smooth. Add soaked gelatin and allow mixture to cool. When cool, add vanilla and place in refrigerator trays until thoroughly chilled. Now, turn into bowl, whip with a wire whisk, and fold whipped cream into mixture. Put back in refrigerator tray and freeze. When frozen, place in a bowl and stir the liquor into it. Return to the refrigerator to harden. Makes 1½ quarts.

Is there any place in Washington or nearby that would sell some small crocheted dolls that I make? O. L. D.

Your best chance to sell your dolls is to take a sample and contact the buyer of a gift shop which sells handmade articles. It will save your time and energy if you look in the classified section of your telephone book for "Gift Shops." Then you can find out by phone which shops are apt to be interested in your wares, and you will need to visit only those who are in the market for such merchandise. You will find, I think, that the small, privately owned shops in residential shopping areas are more interested in handmade merchandise than the larger downtown shops.

Try Balancing From Wishbone In Order to Move Gracefully

By Ida Jean Kain

Offhand, correct body mechanics would seem to have little bearing on glamour—on or off the stage. But when a well-known producer claims that beautiful movement is more important than a perfect figure—even in the movies where excess fat can break a contract—then it's time to check up on body mechanics. In fact, beautiful movement is the very basis of glamour. Anything else, including an original gown, merely comes under the heading of finishing touches.

A topnotch actress makes all small movements from a center of balance, the wishbone . . . maybe you call it the breastbone. In sitting down, reaching for an object, rising from a chair, and bending down she takes great care not to get away from perfect alignment.

Let's try it. Place a chair sideways to a mirror. Now walk over to the chair, turn around, and sink into the chair as if a string were attached to the wishbone and were lowering you from that balance point. See how graceful you appear? That technique prevents you from flopping, or, worse yet, leading with posterior. In sitting down, use only the powerful muscles located on the front of the thighs, keep your back straight.

If a screen heroine crosses her legs, she does not "hitch" or shift the sitting bones; that would appear gauche. The smooth technique is to use the thigh muscles, cross the legs at the thighs, just above the knees, and point the toes straight forward. She would never have them in an ungainly criss-cross! Nor would she twine them around the chair rungs, or sit with knees separated!

When she reaches for a letter, she bends forward at the hips, keeping her spine in a nice straight line, instead of yanking her arm out of its socket. Try that movement, watching your image in the mirror. The minute you jerk your shoulders around, and strain at the armpit, you appear awkward. Always bend forward at the hips and move the balance point until you are within easy reach of the object—that way every move is smooth.

Move in balance

In stooping down to pick up something, an actress would never bend over, skirt a-flutter in the air! The right technique is to bend both knees, one foot slightly ahead of the other, and again use the thigh muscles, keeping the back straight . . . in perfect balance.

That is correct body mechanics—or call it glamour.

Good Nature Leads Job Assets

The most efficient mechanical performance—the greatest talent—becomes almost useless to an organization unless an employe works well with others in the office, write Glamour's job editors in the June issue of the magazine.

The article, preface to a questionnaire which tests ability to work harmoniously with employers and employes, is one of several features of particular interest to women-with-jobs. In this, the semi-annual career issue, Glamour also announces a contest, "Why I Like My Job," open to employed women throughout the United States. The contest is planned to discover just what makes a girl-with-a-job a happy girl.

Contestants will write a 500-word essay on "Why I Like My Job." Top winner will receive a $500 cash prize and her choice from a pool of prizes which includes, among other things, a refrigerator, a silver fox stole, silverware and dinnerware. Nine other contestants will be awarded prizes.

Since 1942 Glamour's job editors, under the direction of Miss Mary E. Campbell, have been studying and interpreting woman's place in the business world. The magazine has a staff especially trained to help young women (and sometimes men) find information about usual and unusual careers. As a result of surveys, questionnaires and from information gleaned from thousands of letters they've received, Glamour believes that the ability to be pleasant and cooperative on a job is a vital asset in a successful career.

"Personnel people tell us that they make every effort to keep their age and experience requirements for a job as flexible as possible," states the article in June Glamour. "The one requirement they cannot and will not waive is a record of pleasant harmonious working relations."

Sherry in Tapioca Gives Old Favorite Flavor of Eggnog

Tapioca cream, a real old-timer in the dessert world, is coming back to its own, now that tapioca is once more on the grocer's shelves.

SHERRY TAPIOCA CREAM
(Serves 6)

1-3 cup quick-cooking tapioca
1-8 teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
3 cups milk, scalded
1 cup California sherry wine

Whipped cream and cherries for garnish.

Combine tapioca, sugar and salt. Add the egg yolks which have been beaten slightly. Scald the milk and add 1 cup scalded milk to the tapioca mixture. Add remaining milk and cook over hot water until mixture thickens. Add the cup of wine and cook 2 minutes longer. Remove from over hot water. Fold small amount of hot mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Mix with remaining hot mixture. Chopped nuts, dates or shredded coconut may be folded into cream, if desired. Turn into dish to cool. Chill. Serve piled high in sherbet glasses garnished with whipped cream and maraschino cherries.

If pearl tapioca is used, double the amount of tapioca, soak in cold water for one hour and cook longer—until the pearls are clear.

Cooking Cues

Vary the fillings for stuffed eggs by adding any of the following: chopped parsley, prepared mustard, finely-ground nuts, crumbled crisp bacon.

It is often economical to use a half turkey for a family. It may be stuffed in the usual way, using heavy paper to hold the stuffing in place. Roast at 300 degrees F., allowing 35 to 50 minutes a pound for a half that weighs from 7 to 9 pounds.

Use meringue with which to frost cupcakes. Just beat an egg white with ⅛ teaspoon salt until stiff but not dry, and add ¼ cup brown sugar very gradually. Continue beating until mixture is stiff and glossy. Spread on cup cake batter in muffin pans and bake as usual.

Always sift flour once before measuring. This helps to give an accurate measure, since flour packs down in the storage utensil or box. After sifting, measure in a standard cup, filling it lightly and leveling off with the straight edge of a knife.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Go

Badly Lighted Cars Are Menace to Traffic

Was it just my imagination, or were there an unusual number of badly lighted autos on the roads over the holiday week-end?

They seemed to fall into three main categories: The first showed only one headlight. The second had both lamps burning, but one was very dim and the other very bright.

The third was the pest who has always been with us; whether on city streets or interurban roads, he never dims his lights for anybody.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I am a pupil in the fifth grade at Barnard Elementary School, 5th and Decatur sts. nw.

Our class has been studying French since the third grade. We are going to present the play "Cinderella" in French on Thursday, June 3, at 1 p. m.

We would appreciate it if you would come and see it and bring a photographer with you, so that we can get our picture in The Washington Post.

Phyllis Fox.
126 Webster st. nw.

Dear Phyllis:

Lo siento mucho, pero no hablo el frances; solo el espanol, y con pronunciation de Cincinnati.

El fotografo habla solamente una oracion del frances: "Quand mangeons-nous?"

SUGGESTION

Several weary visitors to Arlington National Cemetery returned from their Memorial Day pilgrimage with a pertinent question:

"We're just some out-of-town old folks," they said. "Our names aren't important. In ourselves, we aren't important either.

"But, like so many other mothers and fathers, we came here to visit the graves of our loved ones.

"We came by train, and had no auto. After we got off the bus at the cemetery, it seemed that we walked endlessly before we reached our destination.

"Couldn't the various veterans' organizations join together to furnish some kind of transportation for old folks like us on Memorial Day?"

GIVE-AWAYS

"Five nicely marked kittens." (Wisconsin 5114.)

"Twenty assorted mother cats and kittens." (Marlboro 3632).

"Two playful girl kittens, born on Easter Day." (Chestnut 2695).

PERSONAL NOTES

Ed Bendure, 8205 Baltimore blvd., College Park, Md.: I checked, but couldn't find the item you mention.

BASEBALL BROADCASTS

Maureen Marlowe wants to know whether I can think of "one good reason why out-of-town ball games are not broadcast directly from the city where the game is played."

She points out that the radio reporters follow other big league teams around the circuit (the Yankees, for example) and they also travel with the Redskins and college football teams. So why can't they do as much for the Nats?

The answer is that it costs big money to send broadcasting crews along with the teams and unless the sponsor is willing to pay the freight, it just isn't done.

If the Nats were up there fighting for first place, it might be a different story.

WHOM DOES CARL CALL?

Wayne Randall was walking along near 18th and I sts. nw. when he became aware of a tr fic jam up ahead.

The honking horns of a lo line of blocked cars were urgi a truck to move along and cle the path. But the driver of t truck couldn't budge; his star ground doggedly but vai against a stubborn motor.

What tickled Wayne's funn bone was the sign on the truc which said:

"Auto Trouble? Call Carl

NEW YORK.—David L. Cohn, the Mississippi author, one night told of his visit with Somerset Maugham at the Riviera. Maugham told him that once, when he wanted to be alone and free to write, H. G. Wells came to the Riviera hotel where he was staying, and spent all his time with Maugham. "Here's how I got rid of him," said Maugham. He confessed that he saw a pretty American lady, and told her: "That's H. G. Wells over there. He's been talking about how attractive you are." The next day Maugham told Wells: "That pretty girl is an American, wealthy, and quite interesting. She's been saying how much she admires you." And the next night Maugham saw them dining together.

HAIR TREATMENTS
FROM WASHINGTON'S OWN AND LARGEST SCALP EXPERT

R. W. PLASTERER

METHODS?
Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments are locally applied and consist of everything that has been proven beneficial to the treatment of hair and scalp problems. Cleansing and germicidal agents, electro-therapy, including Ultra Violet ray; physical and mechanical massage. The very methods used and recommended by foremost authorities.

WHERE?
Hair & Scalp Clinic specialists are outstanding because of their past record of achievement. They administer the most effective, fastest acting methods, developed in their own laboratories. Professional, business and theatrical people—people in all walks of life—take these treatments and praise the results.

RESULTS?
Each client accepted for treatment sees visible results within 3 treatments. New replacement hairs are visible within 10 treatments. Thicker, healthier hair—stronger hair is evident within a few months. Dandruff, too dry or oily hair, other annoying scalp conditions, respond immediately to Hair & Scalp Clinic treatment. No one is ever accepted if results are not certain.

HOW?
If you are worried about your hair—have the symptoms of approaching baldness—don't delay. Come in today, for a FREE, PRIVATE CONSULTATION. Phone, if you wish, for an appointment, but don't put off giving your hair a chance. Let us prove to you that you need not accept baldness, and weak, unhealthy hair. If we accept your case—you'll get results.

COST?
Any man or woman can afford Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments. Fees are reasonable and vary slightly with each case, but can be paid as treatments are taken. The cost is the lowest available for the most advanced treatments anywhere.

EXPERIENCE?
Over 125,000 cases in Washington treated. This experience in the field of Trichology is only available at the Hair & Scalp Clinic.

Lewis Had Education Bill Role

By Drew Pearson

In the minds of most people, the thorny problem of John L. Lewis is far removed from the problem of American education. Yet, through no fault of his, Lewis got into the middle of the battle over Federal aid to education. In fact, he nearly did the teachers a good turn.

Martin

Here is the inside story of what happened. The chief, though secret, opponents of the Federal-aid-to-education bill are Speaker Joe Martin and GOP Leader Charles Halleck of Indiana. They have decided that this 300-million-dollar grant to the Nation's schools is not going to pass this session, even though it has already passed the Senate and with the backing of such Republican leaders as Senator Taft.

However, since it isn't politically popular to oppose education, especially with the Nation's schools in their present condition, Speaker Martin and Halleck have passed the buck to Congressman Fred Hartley of New Jersey, chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Hartley isn't running for reelection, while Martin has presidential ambitions, and secretly, so has Charlie Halleck. Thus it has been more convenient to let Hartley take the rap for blocking education, and it was announced that he was holding up the Senate bill in his committee.

This worked well until John L. Lewis went on a coal strike rampage recently, causing Hartley to introduce a bill pinning Lewis' ears back. Simultaneously Speaker Martin stepped in, pulled some fast footwork with Lewis, and helped to settle the strike.

This infuriated Hartley. There is no man in public life whom he admires less than John L. Lewis and, as a result of Speaker Martin's intervention, Hartley's anti-Lewis law became unnecessary.

So, out of spite, Hartley threatened to report the aid-to-education bill out of his Education Committee. This, he figured, was a good way of getting even with Martin.

In the end, the speaker persuaded Hartley he had been working too hard, told him to take a six-week vacation. He did.

Hartley has now come back, meekly willing to cooperate with Republican leaders in playing politics with the Nation's schools. Unless the teachers find some real political dynamite, the education bill will not be passed at this session.

Note—Meanwhile literacy in the United States has sunk to the same point as in Russia. Proportionately, far more Japanese can read and write than can Americans.

Merry-Go-Round

Gov. Earl Long of Louisiana, brother of Huey, has appointed S. L. Digby as conservation commissioner. It's significant that Mr. Digby is attorney for Oilman-Senator William Feazel who contributed thousands of dollars to Governor Long's election. And in his new job Digby could hand out some lush favors . . . Nebraska Democrats are hopping mad at President Truman for assigning his old pal, Insurance Executive Ed McKim, to handle the presidential visit in Nebraska next week. McKim, who won Truman more enemies than friends while in Washington, now is doing the same thing among Nebraska Democrats . . . For a fascinating and first-hand account of the war's greatest morale builder and military aid—radio—read "Star-Spangled Radio," by Edward M. Kirby and Jack W. Harris, who lived the great story they wrote . . . Senator Joe McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, is writing a handbook on the ABC's of building a house. He will try to clear up the mysteries of Government red tape and outline in simple steps how to proceed. He hopes to be able to publish the book for 79 cents a copy, and sell it to the public at cost . . . The Senate Small Business Committee was quick to call Paul Hoffmann to explain why European recovery contracts are going to big business. It's a repetition of what happened with Army-Navy contracts during the recent hostilities.

Salesmen Lose Benefit

The House Ways and Means Committee really is ringing the cash register for upper-bracket taxpayers. Not content with reducing gift and inheritance taxes, the committee now is going to the rescue of corporations in a bill revising social security taxes.

Highlight of the bill, prepared by GOP Representative Dan Reed of New York, is a definition of "employe" based on the 18th century British "master-servant" principle. Reed defines an employe as "one over whom an employer exercises such control as to make him an employe at common law."

Anyone outside this category cannot go on social security rolls, this automatically excludes salesmen and other semi-independent job-holders who work on commissions. More important, it relieves corporations employing them, such as insurance companies, of the burden of social security taxes.

To offset this big loophole, the Reed bill adds two minor employe groups to the rolls—members of charitable and other nonprofit organizations and employes of State, local and county governments. However, such employes can be enrolled only on a voluntary basis.

Popsicle man

Each day we hear his jingle bells . . . As he comes up the street . . . With ice cream bars and popsicles . . . To beat the summer heat . . . Our children hurry out and jump . . . Upon his running board . . . To get the little treat we feel . . . That we can well afford . . . Because the purchase price is just . . . A nickel or a dime . . . And it assures the youngsters of . . . A most delightful time . . . They wait for him each morning with . . . A healthy appetite . . . And watch him drive away until . . . His truck is out of sight . . . We hope he makes a fortune from . . . The goodies that he sells . . . Because it means so much to us . . . To hear his jingle bells.
